FOCH'S ARMIES ADVANCE TO SEIZE MORE GERMAN TOWNS AS LONDON REPARATIONS CONFERENCE ENDS IN FAILURE; NO PEACE TILL GERMANY MAKES DEFINITE SETTLEMENT

HARDING WILL CALL SPECIAL SESSION FOR APRIL 4 OR 11

VIEWS DIFFER ON TARIFF

CABINET WILL MEET TODAY

Coolidge Will Attend the Session—Chief Executive Has a Long, Hard Day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Coming out on the front portico of the White House after midnight this morning President Harding met and talked with fifty correspondents, gathered there, about the four-hour dinner conference which he had just held with a score of Senate and House leaders as a means of breaking the ground for the big talks of the coming special session of Congress.

Mr. Harding announced near the outset of the interview, during which the correspondents piled him with questions, that the special session would be called for a date not prior to Monday, April 4, and might be deferred for a week later.

Asked whether the tariff or revenue laws would be revised first, Mr. Harding said:

"We were trying to determine which was the most pressing, tariff or revenue revision. That's a question about which there is a wide difference of opinion and it was passed up to the Ways and Means Committee and the Finance Committee to further canvass the situation."

The President said that he wished to make it clear that no attempt was being made by a few men to lay down a program. He said that the heads of committees had been brought into the conference and others would be held later.

"We are starting to formulate a program in advance of legislation," the President added. "This is the beginning of the program of co-operation between the Executive and Congress. It is the early step in the fulfillment of campaign pledges."

There is much opposition in Congress to any attempted tariff revision for some time, and some leaders, particularly Senator Penrose, Chairman of the Committee on Finance, think a mistake would be made to undertake revision now. They believe that revision of the revenue law, including repeal of the excess profits taxes, should first be undertaken.

From what President Harding said, it is surmised that it was differences of opinion at the gathering as to the method of procedure that resulted in the decision to leave it to the Ways and Means Committee and the Finance Committee to consider the subject further.

Domestic Issues Discussed.

The President said that the Army and Navy bills which failed at the last session were casually discussed, but nothing was agreed upon as to these or other measures.

He added that while foreign matters in general were not discussed, the Colombian treaty was touched upon slightly.

There were twenty-four persons at the dinner, the first held in the State dining room in this Administration. Mrs. Harding was the only woman present.

Those who were invited by the President to the dinner were Vice President Coolidge, Senator Lodge, floor leader of the Senate and Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations; Senator Curtiss, Republican whip; Senator Penrose, Chairman of the Committee on Finance; Senator Warren, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations; Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce; Senator Knox, Chairman of the Committee on Rules; Senator Wadsworth, Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs; Senator Poindexter, Acting Chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs; Senator Smoot of Utah and Senator Hiram Johnson, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee; Representatives Mondell, floor leader; Fordney, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee; Man, former floor leader; Longworth, a member of the Ways and Means Committee; Porter, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs; Campbell, Chairman of the Committee on Rules; Fess, Kelley of Michigan, Anthony, Slemp, Towner and Winslow.

Clashes Over Tariff Plans.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Following the White House conference, one member of the House said the legislative situation, in so far as it affected tariff revision, was more "muddled" to his mind than it was before the conference. He referred to differences between

Kahn Will Press Inquiry Into Bergdoll's Escape

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Investigation of the escape of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, draft dodger, from a military guard at Philadelphia will be called for in a resolution to be introduced the first day of the new session by Chairman Kahn of the House Military Committee.

Before starting for his home in California Mr. Kahn announced that he would insist on a full inquiry. Meanwhile all War Department records bearing on the case have been retained by the committee pending action on the resolution.

GEN. WOOD TO STUDY FILIPINO DEMANDS

After Conference With Harding He Undertakes Mission to the Philippines.

GOVERNORSHIP IS DROPPED

Returning to Chicago, He Stops Off to Meet Trustees of University of Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON, March 7. — After a conference with President Harding and Secretary of War Weeks in which an invitation for him to become the Governor General of the Philippines was withdrawn, Major Gen. Leonard Wood returned to his headquarters at Chicago tonight under orders to proceed to the Philippines on a special mission to investigate conditions in the islands. On his way to Chicago General Wood stopped at Philadelphia tonight to discuss with trustees of the University of Pennsylvania the offer to become the Provost of that institution.

General Wood's appointment with the President was arranged through Mr. Weeks. At the conclusion of the conference, which lasted an hour, Mr. Weeks issued the following statement:

"The President is not unmindful of the change of policy recommended by his predecessor in dealing with the Philippines. He is anxious to settle definitely our policy and has asked General Wood, because of his extended experience there, to go to the islands and report conditions there as he may find them."

It was indicated that there has been a change of plans since Mr. Harding saw General Wood in Marion last week and offered him the post of Governor General of the Philippines. At the Marion conference it was said that General Wood desired more time in which to consider the appointment, and that the matter would not be decided until after the General had conferred further with the President in Washington.

"Did General Wood say that he would comply with the President's request to go on a special mission to the Philippines?" Mr. Weeks was asked.

"General Wood is a soldier," he replied.

As he left the White House General Wood had nothing to say concerning either the Philippine Governor Generalship or his special mission.

"I am a servant of the Republic," he said. "That is all I care to say now."

The General added that his date of sailing for the islands has not been determined.

May Determine Harding Policy.

In view of President Wilson's recommendation to the last Congress to grant independence immediately to the Filipinos, General Wood's report of his investigations in the islands will have a direct bearing upon the Philippine policy of the Harding Administration. While in the Senate President Harding, as Chairman of the Senate Philippine Committee, took an active interest in the affairs of the island. During his campaign for the Presidency he made no reference to the agitation for Philippine independence, but during his term in the Senate he placed himself on record as opposing an early grant of complete self-government to the islands.

The President's former consideration of General Wood for Governor General of the Philippines was based upon his appreciation of the General's services in the islands, where for five years he was first Governor of the Moro Provinces and then commander of all American troops in the islands.

For a number of years Filipinos have carried on an active campaign in Washington agitating independence for the islands. With Francis Burton Harrison, Governor General in the Philippines, the Wilson Administration showed its sympathy with aspirations for early independence, and through the Jones bill a measure of self-government was granted. To the agitation for immediate Philippine independence, however, there has been active opposition on the part of influential Republican members of Congress, which was also backed by army officers familiar with insular affairs. The opposition held that while the United States is virtually committed to ultimate Philippine independence, many years of American occupation and education are necessary before the natives are capable of running their own affairs.

HOT BOMBARDMENT BETWEEN PETROGRAD AND REBEL FORCES

PART OF PETROGRAD TAKEN

SOVIET PROPOSES TERMS

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 7 (Associated Press.)—The revolutionaries are bombarding Petrograd, and Soviet batteries at Systerbäk, Revonnena and Tarbovka (Tolboukin?) are bombarding Kronstadt, says a dispatch from Viborg received here.

[The places named are in or on Neva Bay, the water entrance to Petrograd, which is commanded by Kronstadt, on an island at the outer or western end of the bay. Viborg is about sixty miles northwest of Petrograd.]

The fortress at Krasnoya Gorko, the dispatch adds, is participating in the fight, but, owing to the fog, it is not known on which side.

It is stated that General Kozlovski, the rebel leader, sent an ultimatum Friday ordering all Communists to leave Petrograd within three days, failing which the city would be bombarded.

All classes of citizens at Kronstadt have united in the uprising against the Soviet Government, says a dispatch to the Russian Union Agency here. The organization of a revolutionary committee, which later became the Provisional Government, was carried out without the participation of political parties, and its members were chosen almost exclusively from seamen and workmen having no political affiliations.

The Provisional Government has published a program, the agency announces, the essence of which is a demand for the immediate convening of a Constituent Assembly and the restoration of freedom of trade between individuals.

LONDON, March 7.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Helsingfors says that 37,000 men from Kronstadt are marching to Petrograd. The Soviet officials have sent Chinese and other troops with artillery to meet them. The Soviet troops tried to get in contact with the reds across the ice near the suburb of Waschostroff, but the cruiser Petropavlovsk shelled and routed them.

Big Peasant Revolt in the South.

A dispatch to The London Times from Warsaw says a peasant revolt of unusual proportions is spreading in the Russian Governments of Tambov, Voronezh and Kursk under the leadership of Antonoff, a former regimental commander of the Red Army.

According to General Boris Savinkoff, head of the former Russian Political Committee here and political adviser to General Bulak Balakovitch, the Finnish leader, Antonoff's forces have seized Gmjazi, an important railway junction in Tambov, co-operating with General Makno, the Ukrainian anti-Bolshevist leader.

"These revolts are premature and may be suppressed," said General Savinkoff today. "But even if they do not succeed there is not the slightest doubt that before the beginning of the Summer there will be a peasant outbreak on a large scale all over Russia. The success of this rising will depend on whether the Red Army can be used to suppress it. That is not very likely at present. The cavalry is dependable, but the morale of the infantry is very bad. Certain divisions, at any rate, would not fight the insurgents.

"I do not expect peasant armies to be formed which will march on Moscow and Petrograd to overthrow the Government; but if local risings of village populations are repeated all over Russia the towns certainly will follow suit and eject the Communists from power."

The Central News correspondent at Helsingfors reports receipt of news of the most serious character from Petrograd since midnight. The advices said many of the residential and business quarters were in flames.

The Soviet Government, the message continued, was dispatching a large number of troops from Moscow to Petrograd to assist in restoring order. The Petrograd rebels, it was added, were planning to accord these troops a friendly reception in the hope of winning them over.

Moscow Now Admits Revolt.

A wireless message received here from Moscow today says:

"The leaders of the Petrograd rising are Petrichenko, Yakovlenko and Savchenko, father of Serge Savchenko; Captain Vladimir Bourtseff, Engineer Oryeskin and a former clergyman, Putilin. Although General Koziovski has been reckoned the official head, he is in no way the principal leader of the move-

State Department Silent On Effect on Our Troops

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Officials of the State Department this afternoon declined to comment on the decision of the allied powers to move into Germany in application of penalties for non-fulfillment of the allied reparations requirements or indicate how this action will affect the policy of the United States Government with regard to the American forces in the occupied area.

It was explained that the department had not been informed officially of the decision of the allied powers, also that the American troops in Germany were sent there under the terms of the armistice of Nov. 11, 1918, and that the occupation bears no relation to the Versailles Treaty. It was intimated, however, that the American forces might not properly be employed to enforce the terms of that treaty.

MAYOR OF LIMERICK IS SHOT DEAD IN BED

DUBLIN, March 7.—Limerick is a city of tragedy today. Mayor George Clancy was shot dead in his bed early this morning and his wife wounded in a heroic attempt to protect him from his assailants. Michael O'Callaghan, ex-Mayor, died from wounds inflicted by unknown assassins, and a resident named O'Donoghue was taken from his residence and his lifeless body was found later in a neighboring field.

These tragedies throw a lurid light on the condition of Ireland today. Both Mrs. Clancy and Mrs. O'Callaghan sought to save their husbands, and in the struggle it is stated that the latter secured fragments of the men's goggles with which the raiders concealed their identity.

The curfew hours were chosen by the murderers. O'Callaghan's house was the first visited. The raiders climbed the garden wall, knocked at the door, and in response to an inquiry from within replied that it was a search party in charge of two officers. Unsuspectingly Mrs. O'Callaghan opened the door and the men rushed in, one crying: "We want you, O'Callaghan."

Noticing their threatening attitude, Mrs. O'Callaghan threw herself on her husband, but she was torn away and several shots were fired at him.

Apparently the raiders next visited the Mayor's residence, but Mrs. Clancy offered so determined a resistance that they fired and she fell wounded in the hall. They then attacked the Mayor and fired several shots into his body. He lingered in agony for an hour.

O'Donoghue's was the third and last house visited.

Beyond the bare statement of the murders no light is thrown officially on the occurrences.

Fire was opened on a patrol of military when about to search a house today at Hymenstown, County Tipperary. In the shooting which followed a man who was firing on the soldiers from a window was shot dead. He was ascertained to be Patrick Hogan, a commandant of the Irish Republican Army.

Another man, armed with service revolver, surrendered. He proved to be B. Keane, signaling officer of same republican battalion. Valuable documents were found on Hogan's body.

An officer of the patrol was slightly wounded. The two regular occupants of the house were arrested.

Afraid to Aid Dying Mayor.

DUBLIN, March 7 (Associated Press). —Meagre reports received here state that Mayor Clancy and his wife were shot at about 1:30 o'clock, but that owing to curfew restrictions members of the household were afraid to venture on the streets to secure aid, and friends with whom they communicated by telephone could not go to the house for the same reason. About two hours later a doctor arrived from a hospital and found Mayor Clancy dead and Mrs. Clancy in a critical condition.

De Valera Issues Manifesto.

The long-awaited manifesto by Eamon de Valera, the Irish republican leader, was issued this evening through the Sinn Fein publicity department. It is signed by de Valera and almost all the other members of the Dail Eireann, including Arthur Griffith and several men at present in jail. It is issued in the form of an address, adopted at the January meeting of the Dail Eireann to the representatives of foreign nations.

The manifesto reviews the Irish struggle from earliest times for independence and recites the circumstances

COLOGNE, March 7 (9 P. M.)—The French have been moving up to the Rhine all day—horse, foot and guns. They occupied Langenfeld and Wiesdorf tonight, right on the frontier ready to cross into Düsseldorf.

The British forces are much smaller. Two battalions are under orders to advance.

The Cologne newspapers came out with extras at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon saying that the London Conference had been broken up, that the German delegates had received orders to quit England and that the allied troops would advance at midnight. This report, published at the time the allied Ministers were still conferring with the Germans, stirred up considerable excitement.

However, for some days the Germans of the Rhine district and of the Ruhr Valley have believed the Allies would advance. They seem more or less resigned to it, and the remark one hears often is: "Better end with horror than horror without end."

The Germans declare that the Allies will not get one pfennig by occupying the Ruhr towns and that if they set up a Rhine customs barrier they will not collect enough to pay the cost of maintaining it.

Under the allied plans the Belgians, assisted by the British, will occupy Düsseldorf while Ruhrort and Duisburg will be occupied by the French mainly.

One point being considered by the allied officers relative to the establishment of a customs barrier is what shall be done about the Coblenz bridgehead, occupied by Americans, who naturally are not expected to take any part in enforcing the penalties of London. It is presumed that some friendly arrangement can be made so as not to leave a hole at Coblenz in the proposed customs line.

BERLIN, March 7 (Associated Press.) —The first contingent of French troops assigned to participate in the occupation of Duesseldorf is reported to have arrived at Benrath, six miles southeast of Duesseldorf.

DUISBURG, Germany, March 7 (Associated Press).—The coming of an army of occupation across the Belgian-guarded bridge from Homberg, on the other side of the Rhine, is being awaited calmly. The Chamber of Commerce has urged the Berlin Government to pay no attention to commercial interests but to act patriotically, although the business leaders here are pessimistic over the effect of the occupation.

The combined harbors of Duisburg and Ruhrort, now one community, make this the largest river port in the world. It handles more than 20,000,000 tons of shipping annually. It is the chief outlet for the Ruhr district and Germany's principal coal centre.

DUESSELDORF, March 7 (Associated Press).—Heavy-hearted, Düsseldorf tonight was awaiting the coming of the allied troops across the great Rhine bridge. As in the case of Duisburg, the city officials, with the approval of the industrial concerns, have telegraphed the Berlin Government not to let possible damage to the city's commerce weigh against the best interests of Germany.

The city is quiet and there are no signs of disorder or of probable resistance to the Allies, although the population since the war has grown more radical. The last election showed a return of 20,000 Communists, as compared with 30,000 Independent Socialists.

The leaders of the women voice the fear that allied occupation may be accompanied by customs and other regulations which will interfere with the infik supply from Westphalia for children, which was recently arranged after many difficulties.

The city's port facilities now consist of seven large basins, which handle a large annual shipping tonnage. The four kilometers of docks are equipped with fifty large electric cranes. Business interests here express the fear that the regulations of the occupation forces will cut off the city from the Ruhr district and cripple or ultimately stifle trade.

Paris Hears Simons May Stay.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 8.—Premier Lloyd George in the House of Commons late last night said that instructions had already been given for troops to occupy the Rhine towns already determined upon. These instructions were handed to Marshal Foch this evening and a telegram was dispatched from St. James's Palace a little before 7 o'clock ordering the troops to move forward tomorrow.

The War Office also instructed a detachment of British troops from the Rhine army to proceed to Düsseldorf.

It is pointed out here that French, British and Belgian troops will take part in the advance, but the American Army of Occupation will not participate.

The Allied troops already in the occupied area include 90,000 French, 20,000 Belgians and 8,000 British.

FRENCH REJOICE AT INVASION ORDER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 7.—At 6 o'clock tonight the French War Department sent secret orders to General Degoutte, commanding the French Army on the Rhine, to proceed to the occupation, in co-operation with the English and Belgians, of Düsseldorff, Duisburg and Ruhrort on the right bank of the river. In all likelihood the operation will be begun tomorrow. There is the barest chance that it may be delayed one day for special reasons, the chief of which is that the Allies may prepare measures for setting up a customs barrier when they occupy these three towns.

To one who has watched Frenchmen since the day the armistice was signed there is great significance in the spirit with which they received the news of the measures to be taken against Germany. In the past six months there has been a remarkable growth of sentiment in favor of hitting Germany a whack or two, and there is little regret in Paris tonight. Many Frenchmen regard it as a good outcome of the London conference, holding that the German signatures, even if they had been obtained this afternoon would not have been worth having while Germany remained unchastised.

All over Paris tonight the crowds which watched all day at the newspaper bulletin boards are asking, "What next?" Paris does not believe the London penalties will be sufficient, and Paris, or at least most of it, would go even further were the Germans to promise tomorrow to sign the reparation accord.

The theory on which this attitude is based is: "It is easier to do it now than later."

Indeed, France appears determined to go to almost any length to force Germany to pay half of the war damage—what is asked. Should the War Department tomorrow call for the re-enlistment of the discharged classes the world would be surprised at the spirit in which the response would be given.

Those who direct affairs on the other side of the Rhine would do well to remember that France has become aroused. France has a strongly Nationalist Chamber, and she has the strongest army in the world today. She will not hesitate to use it if she judges it necessary. Foch has bold plans in his pocket, and he is not one of those who refuse to believe that Germany can be made to pay. Neither is M. Poincaré.

The biggest fact in European relations today is that France has made up her mind not to be "buffaloed" by Germany.

SIMONS STATES HIS CASE.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

"Now that the conference is over I am quite willing to give a short statement regarding the negotiations.

"Germany came to the conference with the best intentions of settling the question of reparations. The German delegation proposed a plan which so far as was possible was based on the Paris proposals.

"The Allies characterized our plan as impossible of consideration and have refused to discuss it. They gave us an ultimatum of four days—either accept the Paris proposals or make equivalent proposals.

"The German delegation then found itself in a dilemma. After the Allies refused to take into consideration the sum we have already paid, totally new ways had to be found by us for payment.

"The German delegation then suggested a five-year payment scheme.

GERMANS TO MAKE APPEAL TO LEAGUE

Dr. Simons Says Protest Will Be Filed Against the Infliction of Penalties.

BRIAND ON OUR ABSENCE

French Premier Says It Has Had Its Effect, but Looks for a Settlement Now.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 8.—Dr. Simons, in protesting in his speech at yesterday's conference that the menace of penalties cannot be based on the Peace Treaty and that it is in contradiction with the League of Nations compact, said:

"According to Article VII. of the League of Nations compact, in quarrels between members of the League of Nations and a State which is not a member of the League, the procedure of arbitration provided for by Article XV. is also to be applied. Germany is not a member of the League, but she has signed the compact of the League, and I thcrefore announce, in the name of the German Government, an appeal to the Assembly of the League of Nations against the sanctions with which, we are menaced."

Germany's decision to make such an appeal is not treated seriously in the morning's papers. The Daily Telegraph says Dr. Simons's announcement was a "final touch of insincerity," and adds: "Those in Germany who are pulling the strings that actuate Dr. Simons in London take the League of Nations about as seriously as they took the guaranteed neutrality of Belgium in 1914."

The same paper's diplomatic correspondent says: "I have reason to believe that the League of Nations will show itself singularly unappreciative of Germany's appeal. The Versailles Treaty not only preceded the League, but created it. It could not repudiate its creator. Dr. Simons's appeal is not a little humorous—unconsciously of course."

America Was Missed.

LONDON, March 7.—(Associated Press) —M. Briand, the French Premier, considers that the action of the Allies will be of real assistance to German public opinion in arriving at an appreciation of what must be done, and that the result will be acceptance of the allied terms.

"We missed America," said M. Briand this evening. "If America had been alongside of Great Britain and France we would have had very little trouble. The German delegates were undoubtedly hoping for encouragement from President Harding's inaugural address. They did not receive it; but the absence of America has, nevertheless, had an influence upon the situation.

"If America were to take the same position now for right and justice that she took during the war we would be able to arrange the future easily."

The French delegates had a moment's anxiety over whether the British Government would join France in using troops to occupy Rhenish towns. Allied unity was near the breaking point at the Wednesday's conference while the ultimatum was being prepared.

Premier Lloyd George is described as having explained the German difficulties and the desirability of reaching an arrangement by negotiations, without holding too closely to the decision to apply penalties.

"Then I see only one thing to do," remarked M. Briand quietly.

"What's that?" inquired Mr. Lloyd George.

"For the French delegation to take the next train for Paris," replied M. Briand.

"The Belgian delegation will leave for home tonight," added M. Jaspar, the Foreign Minister.

"Don't be too hasty," said Mr. Lloyd George, with one of his winning smiles. "I was only discussing hypotheses. It clarifies the judgment to examine all sides of a question."

Mr. Lloyd George and M. Briand really got on admirably together. They are fellow Celts and not unlike each other in temperament. It was mentioned in one of their meetings that Mr. Hughes, the American Secretary of Contrasts Sum Germany Must Pay Yearly With Greater Burden of France and Britain.

LONDON, March 7.—Orders were this evening dispatched to the allied military commanders on the Rhine to put into immediate operation the plans drawn up for enforcement of the penalties outlined in the four-day ultimatum delivered to Germany last Thursday, and the forward march will begin tomorrow morning. Düsseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort will, it is expected, be occupied within a few hours of daybreak.

This was the upshot of today's proceedings of the London conference from which so much had been hoped, and by which so little that appears to promise relief to the weary world has been accomplished.

The session of the conference at which these fateful decisions were notified to the German delegation began shortly after 4:30 P. M. at Lancaster House, where the morning session, which had been mainly occupied with listening to the new proposals put forward by Dr. Simons, had been held. When the various delegates had taken their accustomed places Premier Lloyd George rose to make a statement on behalf of the allied Governments. His manner was grave and restrained and he spoke with evident realization of the serious import of his words.

It was with much regret, he began, that he had to say that Dr. Simons's proposals did not represent such an advance on the Germans' first proposals as to justify postponing execution of the penalties. He and the other allied representatives deeply deplored that, especially in view of misapprehensions in their own various countries.

Appeal to Common Sense.

"Settle up as soon as you can," was the world's view. That was an appeal to common sense. All the world, including the neutrals, wanted a settlement. The Allies had examined the German proposals in the light of the paramount interest of Germany, the Allies and the neutrals. Those proposals completely failed to satisfy the Allies who wanted to know exactly how they stood. "And," added Mr. Lloyd George emphatically, "until we get proposals from Germany which will be a definite, unchallenged settlement, there can be no peace between us."

What was the German proposal? the British Premier then asked. There was an appearance of accepting the Paris proposals for five years, and for five years only. But that was apparent and not real. The German proposal was subject to conditions which made it uncertain, and Mr. Lloyd George mentioned the specific condition that it was subject to the plebiscite in Upper Silesia.

If the plebiscite were adverse to Germany, Dr. Simons would be able to come and say the situation had changed, and that Germany was deprived of territory on which she depended to pay those annuities for five years, and that therefore the arrangement made in London was at an end.

"That is not a proposal for five years," said the Premier. "It is a proposal for five weeks."

The British Premier did not consider it necessary to examine the other German conditions, because the first one laid down was in itself a complete demonstration of the fact that their proposals, far from settling anything, were unsettling. He continued:

"Then what happens after the end of five years? Supposing Upper Silesia voted in favor of remaining in Germany; supposing we were ready to accept the conditions about German trade and all went well for five years, what happens afterwards? After the five years we have no proposal, not even a conditional one, not a figure, not even a precise method of arriving at a figure. There is no minimum even. It is perfectly vague. There is nothing the Allies, especially those who want to raise money for repairing their ravaged country, could raise one paper franc upon in the market, let alone a gold mark.

Some Disquieting Indications.

"There are some indications which are disquieting. For instance, it is part of the five years' proposals that Germany should pay even the low figure fixed for the annuities for those five years, not out of her current revenue, but by means of a loan. She is to borrow. By borrowing she mortgages her future. She will borrow, must necessarily borrow, with a guarantee of priority for those who lend even over reparations. So that what happens after five years is that Germany, not anticipating that she will be able to pay out of her current revenue for the first five years, will mortgage her income for the years that come after in order to pay the annuities of the first five."

Mr. Lloyd George then traversed Dr. Simons's position in regard to responsibility for the war and made the point that Dr. Simons himself was not really in a position to negotiate, inasmuch as he represented German public opinion which was not ready to pay its debts.

"Another significant feature of Dr. Simons's speech in view of the character of the proposals," Mr. Lloyd George continued, "was his refusal to accept on behalf of Germany responsibility for the war, which is the very basis of the Treaty of Versailles. Not only did he refuse to accept that basis, but he appealed to history for a revision of the sentence.

"When does history begin? When I see a proposal limited by five years it leaves an uneasy feeling in my mind that there is an inclination in Germany to consider the possibility of history beginning five years hence, and an appeal for revision of that sentence being one of the considerations to be examined at the end of this short period. The Allies cannot possibly enter into any discussions on that basis.

War Responsibility Question Vital.

"The responsibility of Germany for the war is with us fundamental. The whole Treaty of Versailles depends upon it, and unless Germany, whatever she may think of the verdict, is prepared to act upon it then no arrangement which is made can give confidence between the parties and restore that atmosphere of neighborly good will which is essential to the peace of Europe. The Paris proposals represented a considerable abatement of the full claims of the Allies, but that abatement was made in order to ensure a settlement.

"The Allies must insist on the settlement of two questions: First, the amount of payments or factors which should determine those amounts automatically according to the prosperity of Germany, and second, the method of payment. In regard to the first point they were prepared to discuss what those factors should be—whether the index of German prosperity should be 12 per cent. on her exports or some other method of arriving at an essential element; and in regard to the second point he said that a mere paper agreement promising payment was unsatisfactory.

"We have plenty of paper money in our own country, and we don't want to further dilute our currency with paper promises," he remarked.

In conclusion the British Premier said:

"In the interest of the Allies in the interest of Germany, in the interest of the world we must have a definite settlement. Proposals such as we have heard are not a settlement. They simply evade and postpone a settlement.

What the Allies Have to Pay.

"Dr. Simons talked about the enormous sacrifices necessary for Germany to make in order to pay annuities for the first five years. Let me give the case of Great Britain and France.

"Even if Upper Silesia is torn entirely from the side of Germany, Germany will have a population 10,000,000 in excess of Great Britain, even if you include Ireland. This year we have a little over 1,000,000 unemployed. That is a direct result of the war. But we have to find for the paying of debt charges and for pensions and disability allowances £500,000,000. If Germany carries out this year's Paris proposals she will have to find £120,000,000, not for Great Britain but for all the Allies—one-fourth of what Great Britain alone has to find for war debt charges and for pensions, with a million unemployed.

"The case of France is more striking. France, in addition to her war charges and her very heavy pension list, has to find 12,000,000,000 francs for repairing her devastated area. She must find it this year somewhere or leave those provinces unrestored. Germany would have to find, therefore, this year, one-ninth of what France has to find, for the whole of the Allies—of what France has to find herself for charges of war. And we are told that the effort Germany puts forth with her population of 55,000,000, as against France with 42,000,000, or 43,000,000, is a colossal sacrifice!

"It shows that Germany has not yet quite realized the essential facts of the situation, and that has impressed me more each time I have attended these conferences and heard these proposals being made. I am quite prepared to make allowance for the difficulty of paying beyond frontiers. That is not a question of sacrifice, that is a difficulty of currency that can easily be overcome by any well-thought-out arrangement for deucting from the price of German sales to allied countries a proportion of the purchase money.

Dr. Simons then asked for a brief adjournment to discuss the Premier's reply with his colleagues. Answering a pointed question, he intimated that a quarter of an hour would be enough. This was given.

When the Germans withdrew, Lloyd George, Briand, Sforza and the other principal members of the allied delegations stepped apart for a private conference. They talked quietly among themselves till word came that the Germans were ready to communicate the results of their own deliberations.

The gravity of the situation was manifest as all took their places for the final words of the momentous conference.

Dr. Simons's Final Words.

Dr. Simons in his statement said Germany would agree to the Paris decisions for five years subject to Upper Silesia remaining German. As to the proposal that allied nationals should pay to their Governments 50 per cent. of what they might owe to Germany in the course of trade, Dr. Simons said that reasonable suggestion had been discredited in German eyes by being included in the penalties.

He quibbled about German taxation. He dwelt at length on his proposal of a loan. He threw aside the charge of Germany being responsible for the war. He harped on German poverty, and finally appealed to the League of Nations against the penalties.

Dr. Simons's speech was listened to with no little impatience by the allied delegates. It contained no reasonable proposal. Indeed, some valuable suggestions which had been conveyed on Sunday evening from the Allies to Dr. Simons were wholly disregarded. They included payment over 30 years, for which the Germans have always had a lot that was favorable to say. They suggested annuities of 3,000,000,000 of gold marks supported at Brussels.

Dr. Simons's last plea on behalf of Germany was most ineffective. It was described by one of the delegates as merely intended for home consumption, inasmuch as it sought to lay blame on the Allies for the present breakdown of the conference. The Allies, he complained, had by their ultimatum given Germany no time to bring forward such new proposals as she might have produced. "And now," he exclaimed, "the whole atmosphere of the discussion will be embittered by the penalties."

Those were the last words spoken at the conference table and the Germans withdrew with the intention, as it later appeared, of returning to Berlin tomorrow afternoon.

Further Move by Berlin Expected.

Dr. Simons's view expressed at the conclusion of the conference proceedings that the experts would meet in an atmosphere embittered by the penalties and that this would make the situation more difficult is not accepted as an altogether correct appreciation. On the contrary, it is believed in many quarters that enforcement of the penalties will bring Germany to quicker realization of what Mr. Lloyd George called the realities of the situation than any other procedure, and that proposals may be forthcoming speedily from Berlin which will permit of further discussions.

Mr. Lloyd George's statement is held to have shown clearly that the Allies do not desire to shut the doors of negotiations to Germany. The interests of the world require a settlement, and the view of the British Government generally is that any plan which promises a satisfactory settlement shall receive the fullest consideration.

Acquiesence in the decisions taken today is wholehearted in the sense that it is believed no other course was possible, but this does not imply willingness to pursue stern measures if other methods are available. The Italian delegation takes practically a similar view with perhaps somewhat greater reluctance.

A large crowd had assembled to see the end of the conference from the outside. They lined the sidewalk facing Friary Court, where the delegates had entered, and the lighted windows in Marlborough House, the home of Queen Alexandra, told of the interest taken there in the proceedings. The Germans left the palace first, and officials called for a motor car for "his Excellency Dr. Simons" as nonchalantly as they had summoned earlier in the day taxis for those who had attended the King's levée.

Conway Davies of the Government Hospitality Department was there to see that all was done decently and in order and the German delegates drove off without a vestige of a demonstration. Even General von Seeckt in full Prussian uniform was passed amid silence.

LLOYD GEORGE TELLS THE COMMONS.

Late in the evening Premier Lloyd George made a speech in the House of Commons which was mainly a recapitulation of his statement at the conference. The Prime Minister, however, added some remarks which, in view of contentious points as to the present enforcement of the penalties instead of delay till May 1, is of importance.

"We came to that conclusion [that there was no proposal before the Allies which would justify postponing the putting into operation of the penalties indicated last week] with very great regret, because we naturally would prefer an arrangement with Germany to taking any action to enforce demands, however reasonable and just they might be, because it is quite clear it is better to get an agreement. One is more likely to get the agreement honored than to get the penalties enforced."

That was their experience with the Spa agreement, the Premier went on. On the whole the arrangement that was made then by Germany, he would not say that it had been completely honored, but the effort put forward on that occasion to carry out the arrangement was a real one and a bona fide one, and it was right that that should be acknowledged at the very moment when the Allies were enforcing the penalties upon Germany. For that reason he would have preferred an agreement to a penalty.

But the conclusion he had come to after sitting there for days and seeing Dr. Simons, about whom personally he had nothing to say, was that he was not in a position to put forward any proposal which could be accepted by the Allies. German opinion had not in the past realized that the Allies were determined to enforce the legitimate conditions of the Treaty of Versailles. Dr. Simons had in his mind the kind of reception which he would get when he returned to Germany, and probably felt he was not in a position to put forward proposals which in his heart he was really anxious to have submitted to the conference if he had been a free agent.

Therefore the Allies had decided that the penalties should be put immediately into operation.

Parliament to Pass on One Penalty.

The question which may concern America in her direct trading relations with Germany was dealt with by the Prime Minister. He said he attached very great importance to the penalty which enables the Allies to compel every purchaser of German goods in an allied country to pay a proportion of the purchase money into the exchequer of his own country.

In explaining the character of this proposal and assuming that the figure deducted would be 50 per cent., Lloyd George said that he would ask Parliament for legislation providing that the man in England who bought £1,000 worth of German goods would pay £500 into the British exchequer. The exchequer would give the purchaser a receipt. He would then send over to Germany a bill of exchange to the German seller for the balance and he would pin on to that the Treasury receipt. It would be retroactive for everything that had not been paid for to the present moment.

"The German seller would then go to his Government and say: 'Here I have a bill of exchange for £500. I have a British or French treasury receipt for another £500. I ask you to cash this £500.' He cashes it in currency, which is quite useful to him but no good to us, because he can pay his wages and can pay for his goods in the currency of his country. So we get our currency and they get theirs, and both are satisfied.

"That, I hope, will form part of any arrangement which is made. Dr. Simons was prepared to recommend that to the German Government, which makes a very great difference.

"By a levy of 50 per cent. even at the present rate of import, you get the whole of the proportion of the British indemnity for the current year."

Asked by a member how he purposed to deal with these goods if they came from Holland or any other country, Mr. Lloyd George replied:

"We should give notice in respect of any goods of German origin. We could not allow any fraudulent transaction of that kind. We should have to make it quite clear that what settled the transaction was the origin, and there is no difficulty in following it."

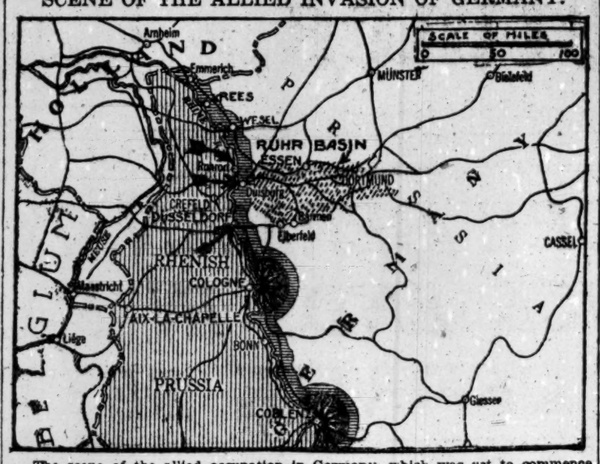
Mr. Lloyd George answered:

"I don't care whether they have a preference or not. If an Act of Parliament is passed here that in respect of goods of German origin half the price is to be paid into the Exchequer, then the Swede or the Dutchman knows what he has got to expect. Therefore, there is nothing that is unfair to him. Otherwise it would be possible to get round that arrangement by selling to Holland, Sweden, Denmark, America or any other country. As long as notice is given that we shall deal with goods in that way the responsibility will be theirs."

Sir F. Hall—"Can that apply to the colonies?"

Mr. Lloyd George—"We cannot legislate for them. We should certainly pass on the proposal to them. As they are interested in the indemnity exactly as we are they may find it the best way of collecting it."

SCENE OF THE ALLIED INVASION OF GERMANY.



The scene of the allied occupation in Germany, which was set to commence at daybreak today, is on the River Rhine in the heart of the great industrial region of the Ruhr Valley, with Essen, the city of steel and munitions, its centre.

The three cities announced for occupation are Düsseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort, lying along the Rhine, commercial ports into which flow the vast traffic of the Ruhr iron region. These cities adjoin the British zone of occupation at Cologne. The American zone is at Coblenz, seventy-five miles further south, and the French zone at Mayence, another seventy-five miles south.

DECLARE SIMONS WENT BEYOND INSTRUCTIONS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 7.—At a Cabinet session lasting until nearly 11 o'clock last night it was decided that the manner in which Lloyd George, Briand and Sforza received Dr. Simons's counter-proposals at the meetings on Thursday and Sunday did not justify the German Government in continuing its negotiations, despite the fact that Dr. Simons had gone beyond his instructions to meet the Entente's wishes.

Meanwhile Dr. Simons received orders that at today's conference he must keep strictly within the limits of the proposals on which the German Cabinet had agreed Friday evening and Saturday, and which had been transmitted to London immediately, leaving it to the German delegation to find a suitable form for their presentation.

In the conferences at Lord Curzon's house, where he met Lloyd George, Briand, Sforza and other Entente statesmen, Dr. Simons made concessions not within his instructions. These concessions, of which the Berlin Government knew nothing at the time, seem only to have increased the Entente's desire for more, according to a view here.

Full report of these informal negotiations reached the German Cabinet toward evening yesterday and led to an immediate conference which all the party leaders were invited to attend. Dr. Simons's telegrams were read and discussed and when a vote was taken there was not a single Cabinet member who could support him. The party leaders present, from Helfferich to Ledebour, were outright angry with him, many demanding his immediate recall.

With great difficulty Chancellor Fehrenbach pleaded to give Dr. Simons, who, it was felt, labored under very great difficulties in London, at least a chance to present his original instructions at the London conference today. Finally a telegram to that effect was sent to London and the Cabinet members and party leaders departed in a most pessimistic mood.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent hears that one of the most objectionable demands from the German viewpoint, made by the Entente at the informal meeting at Lord Curzon's house, was for direct control of all German financial operations and that Germany should be forbidden to make any loans whatever, whether Federal, State or municipal.

which in the short time given us for consideration appeared to be the best way out of the dilemma.

"After it became clear that the Allies would not agree to the plan, the German delegation, in a second sitting of the conference, declared itself prepared to offer a new plan for settling the reparations problem, and for that purpose asked an extension of one week.

"Mr. Lloyd George in his comprehensive speech today emphasized that immediate settlement of the reparations problem was absolutely necessary for the peace of entire Europe.

"I cannot, with the best will in the world, see how it is necessary to the peace of Europe that the Allies, instead of waiting one more week, should now precipitate the greatest possible unrest in the whole world through further occupation of German territory.

"To my proposals that the sanctions (penalties) be examined legally in the light of provisions of the Peace Treaty the Allies would not agree. Nor can it be denied in my opinion that the Allies by their application of the sanctions have acted contrary to the Peace Treaty and the laws of the League of Nations.

"The German Government, as I indicated at this afternoon's conference, will ask intervention by the League of Nations against the sanctions.

"Application of the sanctions is all the more deplorable because for a time there seemed to be considerable concord between the President of the conference and the German delegation.

"Germany is absolutely ready to allow the future improvement of her position to be investigated by the Allied Council and to apply appropriate methods for payments to the individual countries concerned.

"But it seems doubtful to me, in view of the tenseness created by the enforcement of the sanctions, that such conferences can take place in the near future."

LONDON PRESS SPLIT ON MOVE BY ALLIES

ASSAILS MOVES FOR DELAY

Daily News and The Express, Dissenting, See Only Calamity in British Participation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 8.—Discussing the rejection of the German reparation proposal and the allied order for infliction of penalties, The Morning Post says:

"Now the troops, it is announced, have received their marching orders. They are to advance and occupy cautionary towns and territories. There can be no going back upon this. The nation is now committed. Dr. Simons decided it for us, and we may hope now that there will be no more of that painful halting between two opinions which has led to such disastrous loss of prestige for the British Government both in its own country and the world.

"If the Allies carry out their intention it will succeed. The only risk of failure lies in faltering and paltering with the position. If France, Belgium and England now work whole-heartedly and cordially together the Germans will submit. They will bluster. They will pretend to go Red. They will whine, but they will not fight—a German never fights at a disadvantage."

"The Paris terms, which no sane man outside of France believes to be anything but a mad impossibility, are to stand," it says, "and Foch must be given his marching orders. From this ominous event three consequences will almost inevitably follow.

"In the first place, Germany's plight will in all probability cause her the loss of Silesia in the plebiscite and thus still further reduce her paying capacity. In the second place, the indemnity will become worthless as an economic reality, and, last of all, Foch's armies will not rest long at their immediate destination, but will surely find convenient occasion to take under their protection that vast industrial territory on which France has cast covetous eyes throughout the negotiations.

"The ultimate consequences to Germany and to Europe of this reckless adventure can only be guessed at, but the march of Foch may too easily prove before many months are past a march to perdition. We can but enter a solemn protest against the bankruptcy of statesmanship and the wicked folly which have made this possible. If Europe falls into ruin by the desperate action of the allied Governments it will be on them and not on Germany that the curse of posterity will fall."

The Daily Chronicle says editorially:

"The Democratic tides which swept over Germany at the time of the armistice have ebbed. A few bits of their seaweed are left stranded on the various parts of the beach. Herr Ebert in the Presidency, for instance. But the rulers of the beach are coming more and more to be those who ruled it in 1914, and it is with their wishes that a spokesman like Dr. Simons has had to fall in. They are quite impenitent. They denounce as a lie the view that Germany made the war, and they are received if they can by bad faith and by dogged delays to undo at every point every result of the allied victory.

"Unless the Allies now apply as much pressure as may be needed to put this reactionary conspiracy down the allied game is lost and the people a generation or two hence will see and say that every life given for us in the war was given in vain."

The Daily Mail says:

"The Germans maintain their attitude of deliberate defiance. It is difficult to see in Dr. Simons's new proposals anything but fresh insults to the Allies. The obvious purpose was to gain time for Germany to arm and recover from the war. The Allies have spoken their last word, now in justice to the suffering and overtaxed allied peoples it remains to get the goods and to apply such pressure that Germany will produce the cash. Her economic and industrial recovery is far greater than is generally supposed, and neither the British nor French Governments in justice to their own people can afford to be weakly lenient with these defiant defaulters."

The Daily Telegraph says:

"The application of the penalties is to be put in hand forthwith. Dr. Simons's parting words indicate that his Government will be at the same time attempting to formulate new proposals, embodying suggestions made on behalf of the Allies during the week-end. In the meantime Germany has got, in a colloquial phrase, what she asked for, and the result can be left without doubt which the German Government appears to have reckoned upon, a salutary change in the state of German opinion as to the payment of reparations.

The Daily Express says:

"We do not quarrel with the Allies' unanimity of sentiment and action, yet we must recognize the tragedy and acknowledge misgivings as to the future. The French Government could offer no further concessions lest it be swept from power by a blast of popular disapproval in a devastated France. The German Government was in a similar position. Only the British Government enjoyed real liberty of action, and for them choice was circumscribed by the necessity of keeping alive the alliance.

RELYING ON OUR AID.

German Comment Cited in Support of That Theory.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 8.—The Daily Telegraph's Berlin correspondent says that Germania, which as the organ of the Chancellor's party speaks with special authority, lets out at last that Germany is reckoning on American support. In an article obviously written before the rejection of the provisional arrangements had become known, it asks what would happen if this proposal should be refused, and replies:

"The basis on which alone reparations can be carried out is the economic position of the world, and the steady pole of this at the present moment is unquestionably America. Therefore, in our opinion, the factor of America under Mr. Harding's leadership should be brought forward, and it should be submitted to the Allies that Germany can only negotiate profitably with them if America is taken into account, or, best of all, appears herself at the conference table."

State, is also a Celt, being of Welsh origin.

They both arrived at the conclusion that what the German Government and people required was an order, and an order that would be obeyed; that otherwise Germany would wear out the Allies by continually shifting the bases of negotiation.

The troops sent into the Rhine ports will be the minimum necessary to maintain order. Germany will be notified that the troops will be withdrawn immediately the allied conditions are accepted. If Germany maintains an attitude of passive resistance, the allied Governments will examine further means of coercion.

The new customs levy on the Rhine at the bridgeheads will be established by the Inter-Allied Rhine Commission, of which Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen is the American member. A plan has been worked out in all details and will begin to operate Thursday.

FRANCE ANNOUNCES VIVIANI'S MISSION

Special Envoy Will Sail March 19 and Remain Here Several Weeks.

WILL SEE HARDING FIRST

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 7.—The French Foreign Office announced tonight the appointment of René Viviani as special envoy to the United States to present the case of France to the new Administration. This confirms the announcement made by THE NEW YORK TIMES several days ago. M. Viviani will sail March 19, and will remain in America two or three weeks.

The following official statement was issued:

"The French Government is going to send to Washington on a special mission M. Viviani to carry to the United States the good wishes of friendly France on the occasion of President Harding's entry into power. This visit will have in the eyes of Americans a special significance. It will mark at the moment when the direction of the affairs of State in the United States has passed into new hands the continued affection of the French people for the sister nation, which in the critical hours of the great war continued the good traditions inaugurated between the two countries at the epoch of the war for independence.

"M. Viviani was at the head of the French Government at the tragic hour of the declaration of war by Germany. He has already received in the United States, in company with Marshal Joffre, an unforgettable reception when he went to thank them for the co-operation they had decided on with enthusiasm. Finally he has participated in the work of the French Parliament and of the League of Nations in a manner which cannot be forgotten.

"Better than almost any one, he is fitted to bear witness to the pacific purpose of France, to trace the picture of the magnificent effort she has already made to resume in the world the place to which the service she has rendered to humanity entitles her, to explain the necessity for her to find in the just execution of the Treaty of Peace by Germany means of repairing her ruins caused by the war, of which she supported the heaviest burden and to prevent by disarmament a repetition of that crime against civilization and liberty.

"M. Viviani, in view of the nature of his mission, will go alone. He will sail March 19 on the La Lorraine and will return in April."

When asked for a statement tonight, M. Viviani said:

"Several weeks ago Premier Briand asked me if, after Mr. Harding had entered into power, I would go to salute him in the name of the French democracy and to manifest through him to the American people the ardent sympathies and eternal gratitude of the French. I could only accept this mission, which the Government of the republic, through its chief, wishes to confide to me.

"Since the Minister of Foreign Affairs has told you of my mission, I may say a few words about it. Four years ago, before the effective entry of America into the war, in company with Marshal Joffre, I went to salute, through President Wilson, the people of America. By a curious coincidence I shall leave by the same ship about the same time of the year. I expect to reach Washington about March 28, and I do not need to say that my first duty will be to salute the new Chief of State.

"The note of the Minister of Foreign Affairs clearly explains my mission. It will be my task to make known the real democratic and pacific character of the French and to explain that this disinterested nation, which fought for civilization and liberty, claims only her right and even recently diminished her demands in the interest of the peace of the world. I shall go alone, counting upon the precious help of our Ambassador, M. Jusserand."

HOT BOMBARDMENT BY SOVIET AND REBEL

ment. The General's two brothers were arrested in the Marine School in Petrograd."

The foregoing dispatch, showing the existence of a revolt in Petrograd, comes from official Soviet sources, the Moscow wireless service being conducted by the Russian Soviet authorities. This official statement that a revolt actually has occurred follows closely recent declarations from the highest Russian authorities that no uprising existed in Petrograd.

Petrograd Garrison in Retreat?

PARIS, March 7.—Russian Bolshevist forces have been driven out of Oranienbaum, a town on the southern shore of the Gulf of Finland, nineteen miles west of Petrograd, by naval units from Kronstadt, says a dispatch from Viborg. Warships have gone up the Neva River and landed contingents of sailors in Petrograd, where part of the garrison has joined the revolutionists. The rest of the garrison is declared to have retreated toward Gatchina, thirty miles southwest, where Leon Trotzky, Minister of War, and the Bolshevist High Command have headquarters.

Soviet leaders are terrified and Nikolai Lenin, Bolshevist Premier, and Trotzky are preparing for flight, says a Reval dispatch to the Matin. The anti-Bolshevist leader Antonoff, at the head of 50,000 armed peasants, is declared to be in control of the Governments of Voronezh and Tambov, in Southern Russia, and it is said that this fact makes it impossible to revictual the northern sections of the country.

Twenty-five Soviet Russian Commissaries who have been abandoned by their troops have taken refuge in Esthonia, according to a wireless message picked up by the Eiffel Tower station this afternoon.

The garrison of Krasnoya Gorko, near Petrograd, has rallied to the anti-Bolshevist cause, says a wireless message given out today by the French Foreign Office.

The town of Pskov, near the Esthonian border, is reported to have been captured by insurgents, who marched there.

Commissaries Zinovieff and Kalinin, and several of the other Bolshevist Commissaries at Petrograd, are reported to have taken flight and to have been arrested at Isborg (Viborg?), according to the wireless messages.

Maxim Litvinoff, chief of Soviet Legations abroad, is said by the same advices to have embarked in a Bolshevist vessel off Reval after drawing an important sum from the bank there.

The "Russian Parliamentary Committee in Paris" today sent messages to President Harding and Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, soliciting help in the form of food and other necessaries for the anti-Bolsheviki in Kronstadt and Petrograd. The messages were signed by M. Kedrine of the committee.

STOCKHOLM, March 7.—Trotzky, the Soviet War Minister, is in command of the Soviet forces fighting against the revolutionaries around Petrograd, according to a message from Helsingfors. The general bombardment continues.

Reports from Terioki, north of Petrograd, timed 10 o'clock Monday evening, say that the bombardment is growing more furious, more than sixty shots a minute being fired.

The Krasnoya Gorko fortress is now known to be on the side of the Kronstadt rebels and is bombarding in the direction of Petrograd. The fleet and the Systerbak batteries also seem to be following Kronstadt's example.

The Dagens Nyheter says it learns that the Russian Soviet Government is facing a threatening situation and is prepared to grant the rebels far-reaching concessions. It was proposed to negotiate with the Kronstadt rebels, but nothing developed further than a wireless discussion in which the Kronstadt officials used firm language. The Soviet Government, it is asserted, offered to send a delegation to Kronstadt, including members of neutral leanings. Kronstadt replied to this, says the newspaper, as follows:

"We do not trust your neutral members' neutrality, but propose that you send a delegation of Red soldiers, laborers and sailors. We will allow 15 per cent. of the commission to be communists."

It is important to note, says the Dagens Nyheter, that the Kronstadt garrison seems convinced that the Neva garrison in Petrograd is now pro-Bolshevist and that the Communists in that city are in the minority.

The Kronstadt rebels sent an ultimatum to the Soviet Government to release the families of the anti-Bolshevist laborers and seamen held as hostages within twenty-four hours as the same time that the Kronstadt wireless sent out a dispatch saying: "Russia's starving women and children are dying under the oppressive yoke of the communists."

M. Zinovieff, the Governor General of Petrograd, declared Saturday in that city that the Soviet régime was in no immediate danger from Kronstadt, as the Krassaya Gorko forts were faithful and ready to bombard Kronstadt.

It is rumored here that the Petrograd-Moscow Railway has been cut. It is also reported that the rebellion in Russia is spreading, and that the Petrograd workers are highly encouraged over the success of the Kronstadt sailors.

A furious wireless dispute is going on between Moscow and Kronstadt. The Moscow Government is trying to influence opinion in Kronstadt by prophesying general reaction if the rebels succeed. The Kronstadt rebels have replied that no such danger exists.

"We have formed a new, independent Republic and elected a new Democratic Council which will guarantee the safety and interests of workers," said the Kronstadt dispatch.

Unrest among the Soviet troops on the western frontier is becoming threatening. There have been many desertions. In the Western cities chaos prevails, and many of the Commissaries have left their posts. Seventeen of them have fled into Esthonia. In Petrograd social life is paralyzed. The theatres are closed and numerous arrests have been made.

Washington Gets Confirmation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—All information reaching Washington through official and diplomatic channels indicates that the anti-Bolshevist revolutionary movement is spreading in Russia and that the collapse of the Soviet régime is imminent.

The dispatches received by the State Department today showed that the rebels had not only taken possession of the important Russian fortress of Kronstadt, the majority of the other forts at the mouth of the Neva and the Baltic fleet, but were in control of most of Petrograd and had taken prominent Soviet officials prisoners there. The department's reports were not based on newspaper statements printed in Scandinavian countries, but on information obtained through several trustworthy sources. These were summarized in this official announcement:

"Advices to the State Department indicate that the anti-Bolshevist revolutionists are now in control of the fortress of Kronstadt, the majority of the other forts, the Baltic Fleet, the major part of Petrograd, and most of the points of military advantage in the vicinity of the city. The chief Bolshevist Navy Commissar and M. Kalinin, Chairman of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee, are held at Kronstadt by the revolutionists as hostages. The revolutionists are also said to be in control of the railroads leading out of Petrograd.

Rebel Leaders Are from This Country.

"It is reported further that workmen who have recently returned to Russia from America are leaders of the revolutionists, are anti-Bolshevist and are playing an important part in the present outbreak. The strikes by laborers in Petrograd have increased in number and violence, and crowds are to be seen congregated in the streets in defiance of the military orders issued by the Soviet régime.

"M. Zinovieff, Chairman of the Petrograd Soviet, is reported to have established headquarters in the Peter and Paul fortress, and is endeavoring to organize the official Soviet troops to regain control of the situation and disperse the revolutionists.

"In other parts of Russia disaffection on the part of Soviet troops is increasing. Uprisings of peasants and workmen are in progress in many parts of the country, and the Communist leaders in the cities of Kiev and Kharkov are reported to have demanded from Moscow half a million troops, whose loyalty could not be questioned, to defend these two cities."

The State Department received today a cablegram from M. Maklakoff, Russian Ambassador to France, writing in the name of the Russian group in Paris and on behalf of the revolutionists at Kronstadt, requesting authorization of the Red Cross to use the remnants of the Red Cross stores in Finland for the relief of the population of Kronstadt.

The State Department has not yet taken action, but it is expected to refer the dispatch, with its recommendations, to the Red Cross. The remaining stores in Finland belonging to the Red Cross were originally sent there during the Yudenitch movement, when it was believed the White Russians were about to capture Petrograd, and they were intended for the relief of the people of Petrograd.

Anti-Soviet Rising in Far East.

TOKIO, March 6.—According to travelers from Chita, seat of the Bolshevist Far Eastern Republic in Siberia, an anti-Soviet movement has been started by troops and peasants in the interior of that republic, says a dispatch to the Jiji Shimpo from Vladivostok today. The revolutionary movement, it is said, takes in the cities of Chellabinsk, Tobolsk and Omsk.

LEAGUE MEETING JUNE 6.

Next Session of the Council to Be Held in Geneva.

PARIS, March 7.—The next meeting of the Council of the League of Nations will be held at Geneva June 6. This meeting was called today by Dr. Gastos da Cunha of Brazil, President of the council.

TEST BRITISH RADIO RIGHTS.

Washington Notifies Peking American Contract Is Ratified.

PEKING, March 5.—The United States Minister, Charles R. Crane, acting on instructions from Washington, will hand to the Government a statement today informing it that the Directorate of the American Federal Wireless Company has ratified the agreement entered into by its representatives and the Chinese Ministry of Communications for the erection of a high powered wireless plant at Shanghai.

Much significance is attached here to the notification of the American Government, as the United States is virtually making this a test of the British claim to a monopoly in wireless construction in China.

HARDING FAVORS CONSULTING ON PEACE

Has in Mind Plans for Conference on Disarmament and Another on 'Association' Scheme.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—President Harding has in mind plans for a conference on disarmament and also a general consultation to ascertain conditions that might lead to the formation of an association of nations of which the United States could become a member without violating principles enunciated by the Republican Senate in its defeat of the League of Nations covenant.

Any idea that Mr. Harding had rejected the world court plan for laying a foundation of world peace was dispelled by his declaration in his inaugural in favor of such a court. It is therefore thought certain that he will seek to have this court made part of the proposed substitute for the League.

Elihu Root, who was a member of the League Committee of Jurists who drew the plan for the permanent court provided for in the League covenant, will be sent abroad to sound foreign Governments concerning the proposed association, but whether as sole representative of the President or the head of a commission has not been disclosed and, perhaps, has not been determined.

As for disarmament Mr. Harding in his discussions with visitors to Marion showed that he was anxious that it should be discussed in Washington and not abroad. He felt, it is said, that the atmosphere of Europe was not conducive to free negotiations on this subject. He thus re-echoed the sentiment of Woodrow Wilson, who complained at Paris of the propaganda there.

It is likely that the matter of curtailment of armaments will be taken up here with the envoys of the principal powers.

The President's program has not been defined in detail, but it is expected that he will soon present his ideas to his principal advisers, preliminary to presenting them to foreign nations.

DEPLORE MONARCHIST PLOT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Russian diplomats in Washington deplore the Russian monarchist movement reported from Berlin, and declared today that the monarchists' activities at this moment constituted very great danger, because they might tend to strengthen the hands of the Bolsheviki in parts of Russia against the revolutionary movements throughout Russia.

A series of secret documents received here reveals a Russo-German-Hungarian monarchist plot, in which Russian monarchist, headed by General Biskupski, are taking the lead. The principal paper discloses that Russian, German and Hungarian monarchists met in Budapest last Summer and signed an agreement having as its aim the restoration of monarchies in Russia, Germany and Hungary. The proposal was presented to the conference by General Biskupski.

General Biskupski was also the author of a memorandum presented to the conference defining the general plan for the restorations, the central idea being the creation of an economic and military and political union of Russia, Germany and Hungary, with a monarchy in each country. This alliance would be directed against the countries of the Entente.

To carry out the program he outlined, General Biskupski proposed the formation of an alliance of the monarchists of Russia, Germany and Hungary, and announced that, so far as Russians were concerned, he had decided upon the creation of a political and military centre for Russian monarchists in one of the capitals of Central Europe. Subsequently he selected Berlin for this use. The task of such a centre, he stated, would be to establish the closest possible contact with all remnants of Russian anti-Bolshevist armies abroad, with the monarchist elements in the Red armies in Soviet Russia and with the Ukrainian and White Russian partisans.

MINISTER IS UPHELD; ASSISTANT RESIGNS

MEETING HELD IN SECRET

At a meeting of the congregation of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, Thirty-first Street and Madison Avenue, last evening the Rev. F. S. Reardon, the assistant pastor, who has been in conflict with the Rev. Dr. George Calib Moor, the pastor, presented his resignation. He took the ground that "I can no longer support the ministry of his church." Church officers were elected without opposition.

The meeting was open only to members of the congregation, but after the meeting both sides were outspoken either in praise or censure of Dr. Moor. Such friction has developed within the church that the prediction was made that the Madison Avenue Baptist Church would be split before the trouble was settled. A majority of those who attended the meeting favored the pastor, although it was reported that a petition had been circulated demanding Dr. Moor's resignation.

Dr. Moor presided. The principal effort of those opposed to him, it was reported, was confined to obtaining consideration of a report of the deacons. This was blocked, it was said, by "steam-roller" methods employed by the minister. Those who take Dr. Moor's side said there was no such report.

The pastor's opponents said the report dealt with the findings of an unofficial committee that investigated alleged misconduct on the part of Dr. Moor. The majority were said to have found the charges not proved. It was the hope of the minority at the meeting that if this subject could be brought up the whole matter could be opened for discussion.

Dr. Moor considered the meeting a vindication of any charges. The meeting, the minister said, had gone off without serious opposition. Church officers were elected and other church business conducted.

Apparently precautions had been taken to prevent what took place in the meeting room being known to outsiders. No one was allowed in the building connected with the church proper. The leaders of the opposition to Dr. Moor declared the meeting was not a vindication of the pastor and they told of other steps that would be taken to have the whole affair ventilated before the church body.

It had been reported that the principal business before the meeting was to have been a vote on the proposal to raise the minister's salary. This did come up, and it was reported that Dr. Moor will now have $10,000 a year.

SEES NO SEPARATE PEACE.

Wickersham Says It Is Inconceivable Under Republican Platform.

BOSTON, March 7.—George W. Wickersham, Attorney General of the United States in the Taft Administration, said in an address here tonight that in view of statements in the Republican platform of 1920 he could not "conceive of the United States attempting to make a separate peace with Germany."

Mr. Wickersham asserted that Germany should be made "to pay to the last drop" and that the only question to be decided was how much she was able to pay.

"The American people has never turned its back on a great moral duty," he asserted in urging that this country stand by its associates in the World War, and, in my opinion, we will not now desert these friends with whom we fought the great fight."

COSTA RICA YIELDS; TROOPS RETIRING

ACCEPTS WHITE BOUNDARY

LEAGUE WITHHELD ACTION

Anti-American Feeling High in Panama Owing to Secrecy as to the Facts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The Costa Rican Government has met the objections of the United States Government in the Panama-Costa Rica boundary dispute by ordering the withdrawal of the Costa Rican forces, which had advanced across the Sixaola River on the Atlantic side, and halting troops which had advanced into the Coto River territory on the Pacific side of the Isthmus.

Secretary of State Hughes was so notified this afternoon by Dr. Octavio Beeche, the Minister of Costa Rica at Washington, who delivered a note to the State Department saying that he had been telegraphically instructed by his Government to advise the United States Government to that effect. Shortly after 8 o'clock tonight the State Department, with the approval of Secretary Hughes, made public a statement containing the text of the American Government's identical note of March 5, which was almost in the nature of an ultimatum, along with the text of the Costa Rican Government's reply.

The publication of this correspondence came at the end of a day of stir in newspaper circles in Washington following expressions of displeasure by Secretary Hughes over the fact that newspaper correspondents on Saturday night had sent out the statement that identical notes had been sent to Panama and Costa Rica, although in doing so no confidence had been violated. During the afternoon the fact became known in Washington that information had been received by officials to the effect that orders for the withdrawal of the Costa Rican forces had been issued. One Cabinet officer, not the Secretary of State, when asked for information relative to the Panama-Costa Rica affair, said:

"Why worry about that now? The war is over. Costa Rica has ordered the withdrawal of her forces."

Text of Note to Costa Rica.

The State Department, five hours later, confirmed this fact when it issued the following statement:

"The Secretary of State on March 5 transmitted the following note to the Government of Costa Rica:

The Department of State has today been informed that Costa Rican troops have invaded the territory adjudged by the White award to be that of Panama and that they are now advancing on Almirante and Boca del Toro. This information, which appears to be confirmed, has caused the Government of the United States the gravest concern. This Government desires to urge upon the Government of Costa Rica in the most earnest manner, immediate compliance with its recommendation that instructions be given to its forces between the status quo line and the Cerro Pando-Punta Burica line to advance no further and that immediate instructions be issued to those troops which have advanced into Guabite and which are now approaching Almirante and Boca del Toro to withdraw at once to the northern bank of the Sixaola River.

This Government recognizes the fact that the controversy with respect to the boundary between Costa Rica and Panama has been finally determined by the award of Chief Justice White as arbitrator and desires to urge upon the Government of Costa Rica the importance of immediate cessation of hostilities to the end that appropriate settlement be promptly made in an orderly manner in accordance with Chief Justice White's decision. This Government cannot regard forcible measures by either party as justifiable. Representations of a similar nature are being made to the Government of Panama.

Reply Accepting Terms.

On March 7 the following note was received by the Department of State from Dr. Octavio Beeche, Minister of Costa Rica in Washington:

Legation of Costa Rica, Washington, March 7, 1921.

Mr. Secretary: I have the honor to inform you that I have received telegraphic instructions from the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs of Costa Rica, to advise you that the Government of Costa Rica has given orders that the Costa Rican forces which had crossed the line of the Sixaola River be immediately withdrawn within that line, and that the forces on the Pacific side make no further advance whatever.

I hope that the action taken by my Government with the desire of satisfying the wishes expressed by the Government of the United States will be interpreted as a proof of its conciliatory intentions and of the consideration deserved by the friendly attitude of the Department of State, as well as of the firm conviction of my Government that the Anderson-Porras treaty and the award of Chief Justice White will be respected and carried out in their entirety.

I avail myself of this occasion to renew to you the assurances of my distinguished consideration and esteem, with which I subscribe myself,

Your very faithful servant,
OCTAVIO BEECHE.

The Hon. Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary of State, Washington, D. C.

"The line of the Sixaola River is the boundary line on the Atlantic side between the Republics of Costa Rica and Panama, laid down in the award of Chief Justice White. The Government of Costa Rica, in the note above quoted, recognizes the boundary line laid down by Chief Justice White as arbiter."

PANAMA REJECTS BOUNDARY AWARD

Declares American Mediation Impossible on the Basis of the White Decision.

PANAMA, March 7 (Associated Press).—The Foreign Relations Office gave out this evening the Government's replies to the notes of Former Secretary of State Colby, on March 3, and Secretary of State Hughes on March 5. Replying to the Colby message, the Government says that the note apparently implies acceptance by Panama of Justice White's boundary decision as preliminary to final agreement with Costa Rica.

Should acceptance of such a condition be essential to peaceful North American mediation, the reply continues, such mediation would be a moral, legal and constitutional impossibility.

Reiteration of Panama's non-acceptance of the White decision is included in the reply, which adds that Panama's offer to retire her armed forces from the reoccupied Coto area, leaving there the former Panaman civil forces, shows that Panama is not inclined to accept the White decision.

Replying to the Hughes note the Government denies that the reoccupation of Coto from the Costa Ricans is comparable with the Costa Rican invasion of the Bocas del Toro district. Reaffirmation is made that the White decision is not acceptable to Panama, which offers to submit a statement of the actual situation to an extraordinary session of the National Assembly for the purpose of obtaining a nation-wide decision.

BALBOA, Panama, March 7 (Associated Press).—Owing to the fact that the Panaman Government has prevented the publication here of the identical note of Charles E. Hughes, the American Secretary of State, to Panama and Costa Rica, and interviews which President Porras of Panama has given to foreign newspaper correspondents regarding the Panama-Costa Rican controversy, the general public in Panama is laboring under the impression that the United States has demanded that the Panamanians evacuate the territory they have reoccupied at Coto.

Anti-American feeling is running high. A demonstration was called for this afternoon. The announced purpose of it was to approve the attitude of President Porras for the defense of Panama's territorial integrity, but it is rumored broadly that it really was intended to be anti-American.

PANAMA, March 7 (Associated Press).—The retirement of the Costa Rican forces from the Guabito-Almirante region, in the Province of Bocas del Toro, toward the left bank of the Sixaola River, is reported this evening.

With the retirement completed on the Atlantic side and the Panaman forces reoccupying Coto on the Pacific side, the situation would return to the position prevailing before the first incursion of the Costa Ricans, into the Coto district.

COSTA RICANS SATISFIED.

Troops Will Hold Boundaries Pending Final Settlement.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, March 7 (Associated Press).—The conflict between Costa Rica and Panama has virtually been terminated through the action of the United States Government.

The Costa Rican forces will retire from the disputed territory on the Pacific side of the Isthmus to the boundary line delimited by ex-President Loubet of France and on the Atlantic side to the boundary drawn by Chief Justice White of the United States Supreme Court. Troops will be stationed along these lines pending a definite settlement of the boundary controversy.

The people of Costa Rica seem pleased with the stand that the United States has taken for the peaceful settlement of the dispute. There seems, however, to be discontent that the Costa Ricans did not have sufficient time to avenge te death of Colonel Amado Vargas and twenty-eight Costa Rican soldiers, who, it is said, fell while sixty-five Costa Ricans were fighting against 800 Panamans.

Bodies of troops are marching or sailing toward the region of the Dulce Gulf, on the Pacific side of the Isthmus. It is feared that owing to the fact that there is no telegraphic communication with that district sanguinary encounters with the Panaman troops will take place.

The United States cruiser Sacramento arrived at Almirante Saturday at noon, according to advices received here, and Commander Bingham of the vessel invited Colonel Zuniga, Commandant of the Costa Rican troops, to lunch on board. The meeting was extremely cordial and Commander Bingham returned the visit Sunday.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Cognizance was taken tonight of a dispatch from San José, received by way of San Juan del Sur, saying that the United States had guaranteed to Costa Rica the expenses occasioned by the conflict between Panama and Costa Rica. It was pointed out that there was no such provision in the American note.

NEIGHBORS BACKED COSTA RICA

Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras Upheld Her Military Acts.

SAN SALVADOR, March 7.—Telegrams upholding Costa Rica in her attack upon Panama as a result of the frontier controversy between those countries have been sent to San José by the Congresses of Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras.

Panaman forces are declared in dispatches received here to be retreating through the Province of Bocas del Toro, on the Atlantic side of the Isthmus.

LEAGUE AWAITED OUR ACTION.

Thus Notified Panama in Answering Request to Intervene.

PARIS, March 7.—The Council of the League of Nations, before determining its course with regard to the dispute between Panama and Costa Rica, is awaiting the outcome of the efforts of the United States in this connection. This was announced today by Dr. Gastoa da Cunha, President of the Council.

Dr. da Cunha said that he had received only one communication on the subject, which was a message from Panama saying that Costa Rican forces had invaded Panaman territory, calling attention to the fact that Panama was a member of the League of Nations, and asking the League to intervene.

The Council replied that the United States was using its good offices and that the Council would await the outcome, Dr. da Cunha said. He added that the Council took the position that the United States had always exercised a good influence in Central American affairs, and that in the present case the Council could only give the United States an opportunity to do something before the Council should take any action.

FOUND COSTA RICANS TENSE.

Passengers on the Ulua Saw Resentment Against America.

Stories of the Panama-Costa Rica complication were told yesterday by passengers who arrived here on the United Fruit liner Ulua Cristobal from Panama and Port Limon, Costa Rica.

The passengers were in Panama City on the night of Feb. 25, and witnessed the mobilization of the first contingent of the army of that republic. They arrived at Port Limon just before a Costa Rican troopship sailed, and they had an opportunity of watching the mobilization of recruits there.

According to the tourists, feeling against Americans ran strong while they were in Costa Rica, because of a report from Panama that this country was about to take up arms in Panama's behalf. Windows of a building owned by the United Fruit Company were broken by a crowd of Costa Ricans who believed the report and staged a demonstration against Americans. When the tourists arrived by special train at San José, the capital of Costa Rica, another report went around that they had come to settle the war, and the citizens welcomed them at the train.

As related by Dr. A. O. Davis of Charleroi, Pa., and other passengers who witnessed the mobilization of the Panamanians, 100 policemen were the first to be called to arms. Fire Department workers took their places in keeping order in the streets. Recruiting stations were set up in Panama City, and volunteers by the hundreds began pouring in from the country districts.

On the evening of Feb. 27 the tourists watched two 50-foot sailing vessels leave Port Limon with the first troops to sail for the battle front. In order for all to get on board it was necessary for some to climb and hang to the rigging. With the exception of a few minutes when missiles were hurled through the air during an outbreak at Port Limon, the passengers said that at no time were they in personal danger.

ALDRIDGE CHOSEN PORT COLLECTOR

Rochester Leader Offered Post Here, but Has Not Yet Accepted.

POSTMASTERSHIP HELD UP

No Decision Yet Reached as to New York Appointments to Diplomatic Portfolios.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—George W. Aldridge of Rochester, N. Y., has been definitely selected for Collector of the Port of New York, to succeed Byron R. Newton, and his nomination will be sent to the Senate if he accepts the tender. Mr. Aldridge was not a candidate for the office. His selection was made at a conference in New York City among Senators Wadsworth and Calder, Charles D. Hilles, member of the Republican National Committee from New York, and George Glynn, Chairman of the New York State Republican Committee.

After Messrs. Wadsworth, Calder, Hilles and Glynn agreed upon Mr. Aldridge he was notified by telephone. He said he was not prepared to say whether he would accept and asked for time for consideration. That was about a month ago and nothing of a definite character has been yet heard from Mr. Aldridge. He has been in poor health and his hesitation is ascribed to this.

It was learned today that the appointment of Mr. Aldridge is agreeable to President Harding, who will carry out the wishes of the leaders of the New York Republican organization if Mr. Aldridge cares for the place.

No consideration has been given by the New York leaders to the appointment of the Postmaster at New York. The matter will not be taken up unless President Harding revokes the order of President Wilson placing Presidential Postmasters in the permanent classified service. Mr. Harding has not indicated his view in this connection and nothing has appeared to show whether he is sympathetic to the desire of many party leaders that his predecessor's order should be set aside.

Thomas G. Patten, a former Democratic member of Congress, is the present Postmaster. He was appointed by President Wilson after the enforced retirement of Edwin Morgan, who was a veteran of the New York Post Office. Mr. Morgan is a candidate for Mr. Patten's place, but his name has not been brought to the attention of either President Harding or Postmaster General Hays by the heads of the party organization in New York, and will not be unless and until the President rescinds the order giving Presidential Postmasters the protection of the civil service regulations.

National Committeeman Hilles had a long talk with President Harding and it is expected that important results concerning the distribution of New York patronage will come from this. Mr. Hilles was at the White House today and afterward saw Senator Wadsworth.

General Cornelius Vanderbilt is a candidate for the British mission, for which Colonel George Harvey, who is credited to New Jersey, is said to be slated. While no authoritative announcement concerning Colonel Harvey is forthcoming from any official or authoritative source, the impression is general that he will be appointed Ambassador to the Court of St. James's.

In the understanding that President Harding has another choice of an Ambassador to France, Colonel William Hayward of New York, who was a candidate for that office, will not press his claims for a diplomatic post. The belief prevails in important Republican circles here that Colonel Hayward would be favorably considered for one of the large foreign missions other than Great Britain and France. He is represented as feeling, however, that no post except Paris would be agreeable to him.

In the World War Colonel Hayward commanded a negro regiment of the New York National Guard, organized as the Fifteenth New York Infantry, and saw service in the front line in France.

It is also understood that General Vanderbilt will not ask for appointment to an office if he fails to obtain the Ambassadorship to the Court of St. James's. A report was circulated recently that he was to be appointed Assistant Secretary of War. He is not a candidate for this office, and it is understood that he would not care to accept it.

William Miller Collier of New York, former Minister to Spain, is said to have been recommended for Ambassador to Italy by the New York Senators and Committeeman Hilles. He is now President of George Washington University in this city.

Dr. David Jayne Hill of New York is down on the list as a possible appointee to an important diplomatic office. He was formerly Assistant Secretary of State and Ambassador to Germany, and was the choice of a group of Republican Senators for Secretary of State in the Harding Cabinet.

SPECIAL SESSION FOR APRIL 4 OR 11

Chairman Fordney and Representative Longworth of Ohio, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, over tariff revision.

Chairman Fordney is said to have laid before the conference his plans for tariff revision when the proposal to re-enact the Payne-Aldrich law met with instant opposition from Senators.

Mr. Fordney was said to have offered an equalization tariff plan, designed to put foreign goods on the American market at a par with wholesale prices of similar American goods.

Some of the guests said that the adoption of the Knox resolution to declare the state of war at an end did not enter into the discussion.

The President is expected to discuss most of the pressing problems with his Cabinet at its first meeting today. The call for assembling the Executive's official circle of advisers was issued yesterday from the White House, Vice President Coolidge being included among those invited. Mr. Coolidge said he would be present, having decided that he should not let precedent outweigh the urgent request of the President.

HARDING'S DAY LONG AND BUSY

First at Office in the Morning—Meets Host of Callers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The activities centring about President Harding at the White House and the executive offices today were of a lively character not seen before in years.

Even before his illness President Wilson saw comparatively few callers, and for the most part his conferences lasted not much longer than fifteen minutes. Since his illness, with little business at the executive offices aside from routine matters, callers were few. Today trongs of sightseers poured into the White House to view the conservatories and the East Room, open to the public for the first time since April, 1917, while another stream of people poured in and out of the executive offices, callers of all sorts from Cabinet officials to applicants for clerical positions.

Mr. Harding began his day by reaching the executive offices at 8:30 A. M., half an hour before work usually begins. After installing Laddie Boy on a ccuch near by, he settled down to his duties. He left the White House only once during the day, when with Mrs. Harding he attended an entertainment at Keith's under the auspices of the National Press Club.

Questions of patronage were discussed in the morning by President Harding with several present and former members of the Senate, but it was said that these matters will be considered further before the President sends in many appointments.

Senator Calder of New York urged Mr. Harding to reappoint Eugene Meyer Jr. to the War Finance Corporation, and Senator Willis, Mr. Harding's successor in the Senate, made recommendations for Federal appointments in Ohio.

Senators Hale and Fernald of Maine called with W. W. Thomas of Portland, former Minister to Sweden, to urge his reappointment to Stockholm. Another candidate for appointment was ex-Senator Kirby of Arkansas, who has been mentioned for the bench, and who saw the President a few minutes with Senator Robinson, who talked a little about the coming extra session and urged a delay of a month or so.

Senator Townsend of Michigan protested to the President against the ousting by President Wilson of Obadiah Gardner of Maine from the International Joint Commission, and the appointment of W. B. Wilson, ex-Secretary of Labor, to the place. According to one report, Mr. Townsend urged the President to ask Mr. Wilson to resign.

The President with Attorney General Daugherty and Postmaster General Hays had luncheon with six women members of the Republican National Executive Committee—Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton of Warren, Ohio; Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson and Mrs. Arthur Livermore of New York, Mrs. Geannette C. Hyde of Salt Lake City, Mrs. Christine Bradley South of Frankfort, Ky., and Mrs. Manley L. Fosseen of Minneapolis.

While the women did not talk patronage with the President, it is understood that they intimated that they would have some recommendations to make later.

Mrs. Upton said that the luncheon discussion concerned plans to organize women of the party along the lines of the men's organization and that one proposal was to follow the idea of the Democrats in electing to the National Committee women and men in equal numbers.

One of the President's last conferences of the afternoon was with Senator Smoot of the Joint Congressional Commission, which will begin Wednesday to study methods for reorganizing executive departments. Mr. Smoot submitted an outline of the commission's plan and he left with Mr. Harding's assurance of his sympathy with the plan.

Before Mr. and Mrs. Harding left the White House for the Press Club entertainment they received a farewell call from Marion friends, who accompanied them here for the inauguration.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Mr. Harding gathered much advice today regarding the special session. One of those with whom he discussed the subject was Senator Underwood, Democratic leader of the Senate, who is understood to have urged that the date of the session be delayed a month at least to permit Senators to go home and attend to personal business.

George Chamberlain of Oregon, who retired as a Democratic Senator Friday, was called into conference by the President. The understanding is that the President discussed with him his possible appointment to a Government post. The general belief is that Mr. Chamberlain will receive the offer of a place on the Shipping Board.

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota had a short talk with Mr. Harding, and the understanding was that he presented information regarding the Barbados-Miami cable incident, with which he has kept in touch as Chairman of a Senate subcommittee.

HUGHES RESTRICTS NEWS PUBLICATION

DAUGHERTY PUTS ON LID

While Republican Senators Move to Keep Newspaper Men From the Lobbies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Developments today gave an intimation of what the policy of the Harding Administration will be in dealing with the press, and the impression created was not reassuring to those who believe that the American people are entitled to be kept informed on what their Government is doing. Friends of President Harding said that he believed in the fullest measure of publicity of Governmental affairs, but there were certain happenings to show that if this is his attitude it is not shared by some of the most important members of his Administration.

The first development came through Charles E. Hughes, the new Secretary of State, who expressed to newspaper men his displeasure over the publication of the fact that identical notes had been sent by him to the Governments of Panama and Costa Rica, calling on them to cease hostilities. Mr. Hughes saw President Harding during the day, and it was reported that they had discussed the reference in newspapers to the transmission of the notes. The subject was also taken up by Mr. Hughes with officers of the State Department, and altogether his course indicated that he had taken the matter very seriously and would endeavor to prevent the press from making statements concerning the policies and moves of the department unless publication was officially authorized.

Shows No Displeasure.

Secretary Hughes showed no displeasure when he made his statement concerning his publicity policy, but he made it clear that he did not want statements printed in newspapers concerning action by the State Department which were not authorized officially. Nothing must be published, he said, unless given out by himself or other high officials. He explained that he did not want the newspapers to publish as facts reports of diplomatic exchanges not officially announced. This information, Mr. Hughes said, should not be made known until sufficient time had elapsed for the receipt of the departmental communication by the Government to which it was addressed.

The remarks of the Secretary of State had particular reference to the publication of the dispatch of the identical notes to Costa Rica and Panama on Saturday.

"No authorized person," he said, "had furnished the information on which the statement was based."

Some of the newspaper men found in Mr. Hughes's statement a marked similarity to what had been said by William J. Bryan on several occasions during the fifteen months that he held the office now occupied by Mr. Hughes.

The doctrine enunciated by Secretary Hughes today has long been a theory, in a somewhat modified form, of State Department procedure. Mr. Hughes has gone a step further than most of his predecessors in recent years in holding, apparently, that the newspapers are bound to withhold any statement regarding State Department affairs unless he gives permission for them to print it. This would mean that if the State Department embarked upon an important policy that would have a very decisive bearing upon the welfare of the country the American people would not be entitled to know anything about it until the Government chose to inform them. As the formula for the conduct of the press was outlined today, expression of public opinion would be withheld until it suited the convenience or purpose of the powers-that-be in Washington to take the public into its confidence in a formal, official way. Current discussion would be limited to the information that the Government chose to make known, if it made it known at all.

Considered a Reversion.

The new process is regarded here as a reversion to the old diplomacy. Most foreign Governments are subject to questioning in open Parliament by the representatives of the electorate as to their acts in the conduct of the peoples' affairs, but the American system does not permit of this. As a substitute the American people, it is pointed out, have come to depend for much of their information as to the policies of those in power in Washington upon the unofficial accounts contained in newspapers, based on information obtained by the newspapers through their own activities. As far as foreign relations are concerned, the newspapers will be considerably handicapped if Secretary Hughes is successful in carrying out the doctrine announced today.

Daugherty Also Orders Restriction.

Harry Daugherty, the new Attorney General, also took action which newspaper men are inclined to construe as the initiation of a policy of secrecy concerning governmental matters. In a communication to the principal officers of the Department of Justice, signed "W. Frank Gibbs, private secretary and assistant to the Attorney General," the following paragraph occurred:

"It is desired that no publicity of departmental affairs be given except through the established channels, which will be through the Attorney General or such person as he may designate."

This apparently shuts off the ability to obtain information on public questions from Assistant Attorneys General or other high officers who have detailed knowledge of particular matters with which neither the Attorney General nor his authorized agent would be intimately familiar.

It was intimated at the department that the prohibition was intended to apply only to the personnel of the department in Washington. A question as to whether it would put a ban on information from the offices of District Attorneys and other officers of the department throughout the country was answered in the negative.

In another quarter also there appeared to be evidence of further restriction upon the ability of newspaper correspondents to obtain news of public affairs. It became known today that at their caucus on Saturday the Republican Senators adopted a resolution providing that the lobby and the Marble Room in the rear of the Senate Chamber should be used hereafter exclusively by Senators for a retiring and conference room, to be open to both Republicans and Democrats. Newspaper representatives have heretofore had the privilege of interviewing Senators in these places. The action of the Republican caucus will rescind the privilege if the Democrats agree.

It was explained that with a long extra session ahead of them, which would probably last through the hot weather, Senators desired some place in which to relax and confer other than their present cloakrooms, which have no windows and are poorly ventilated.

HARDING SENDS IN 25 NOMINATIONS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 7.—Two girls, Marie Guy and Yvonne Gesupret, both 17 years old, yesterday threw themselves into the St. Martin Canal in Paris. One was an orphan, and the other had been turned out of doors by her stepfather. Both were out of work and penniless and had for several nights been compelled to sleep in the streets because they could not pay rent for the little room in which they had lived together.

They were saved from the canal by a policeman, and it was at a police station, after they had recovered consciousness, that they told their story. It is some time since Paris has read in its newspapers of such unrelieved misery here, and today the police station where the girls were detained was besieged with charitable people anxious to help the two unfortunates.

Both are country girls who came to Paris to look for work some time ago and found it together in an electric appliance workshop. There they became friends and shared the quarters which they rented. "Life isn't so hard to bear when one isn't alone," said one of them yesterday to the magistrate.

Three months ago both girls fell ill and went to a hospital. When they left it they tried to return to the factory where they had worked, but their places had been filled, and there was no work for them. Soon the last of their savings was spent, and when they could no longer pay the rent of their room they were turned into the street. For four days before they decided to throw themselves into the canal they had had nothing to eat and had slept in the streets.

"What else was there to do?" they asked the magistrate when he demanded why they had attempted suicide. "We didn't know how or where to beg."

"And will you throw yourselves in the water again if I let you go free now?" the Magistrate asked.

"What else can we do," was the answer, "since we have no work, no money and no place to live?"

HOOVER PLANNING TO ENLARGE WORK

Expected to Ask Transfer of War Trade Section to Department of Commerce.

MELLON STUDIES FINANCE

Denby's First Official Act Is to Award Navy Crosses to Marine and Enlisted Man.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—While the whirl and bustle attendant upon the early days of an incoming Administration were in progress today, two members of the Cabinet—Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, and Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce—worked quietly in their offices, picking up the loose ends and determining the policies they will advocate.

Mr. Hoover is to have a statement to make within the next few days incorporating his ideas as to the reorganization of the Department of Commerce into an effective aid to business and commerce. He spent today in consultation with the bureau heads of the department. It is reported that Mr. Hoover will ask for supervision over the War Trade Section of the Department of State, formerly the War Trade Board, and for closer co-operation between the State Department and Department of Commerce where foreign commerce is concerned. In his opinion, it is said, the greatest good can be accomplished by close co-operation.

Secretary Mellon received the newspaper men this morning, but would not go into detail about his plans. He said he had definite convictions in regard to the policy of the Government toward the $10,000,000,000 loaned to the allied nations of Europe. So far as is known, Mr. Mellon will not how advocate a policy which would cancel all or part of the allied war debts, but it is understood that he is in favor of a policy which will bring about the adoption of a definite program as to how and when the allied nations shall pay. The talk here would seem to indicate that the new Administration will advocate a policy which will fund the interest and principal of the ten-billion-dollar indebtedness over a period of perhaps fifty years.

Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty left the Department of Justice early and went to make a call on President Harding. There were several disappointed office hunters in the lobbies waiting to see Mr. Daugherty.

A report was current today that Mr. Daugherty favored a program for the co-ordination of all of the Secret Service agents under the Department of Justice. This plan has been advocated by some for several years. The presence here of William J. Burns has led to reports that he is looking for the position at the head of the co-ordinated forces. Friends of Mr. Burns said they did not believe it.

Secretary Weeks was at his desk in the War Department before 9 o'clock. He was joined by Major Gen. March, Chief of Staff, with whom he was in conference most of the morning. No visitors were allowed to interrupt the discussion.

Mr. Denby's first official act as head of the naval establishment was to sign the awards of navy crosses to an enlisted man of the Marine Corps and an enlisted man of the navy for heroic conduct in the World War. The medals went to Corporal R. W. Hanson, Marine Corps, and Pharmacist's Mate Earl S. Gracey of the navy. The Secretary, who served in the Marine Corps during the war, said he was particularly gratified that his first official act should be to reward enlisted men for heroism.

Secretary Denby's opinion that the American navy should be second to none in size and efficiency was driven home this afternoon during his conference with newspaper men, when he said:

"I am in favor of a navy equal to the greatest in the world, not only ready but fit to fight, and equal to any emergency at any time. I don't know that you should call it a policy, but it does represent my personal views in the matter."

Mr. Denby conferred this morning with Newcomb Carlton, head of the Western Union Telegraph Company, who had called relative to the action of the Navy Department in preventing another attempt to land the Miami-Barbados cable on the Florida coast. Mr. Denby told Mr. Carlton the navy was merely carrying out the order of the State Department, and that the question of policy relative to the cable controversy was a matter within the purview, not of the Navy, but of the State Department.

W. L. McMenimen, Deputy President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and a member of the Railway Adjustment Board, called on Secretary of Labor Davis today, being the first representative of organized labor to greet the new Secretary.

"I am more optimistic since meeting the Secretary over the prospects of close relations between the Department of Labor and organized labor than I was before," Mr. McMenimen said. "I merely called to pay my specific matters pertaining to labor."

TIE READING BANDITS TO DETROIT MURDERS

Within a few hours after James Minogue had been taken away yesterday by policemen from Reading, Pa., to answer a charge there of robbing the Wyomissing Bank, a clue was unearthed at Police Headquarters that is said to implicate him in the robbery and murder of two policemen at the banking house of Morton & Co. in Detroit, on Jan. 31.

A revolver which was stolen from Morton & Co. on the day of the robbery was identified by Captain Edward Fox, head of the Detective Bureau of Detroit. Inspector Coughlin said the weapon had been taken from Minogue. Minogue declared he had never been in Detroit and that the revolver had been given to him. Fox hurried to the Criminal Court Building in the hope of intercepting Minogue, but he had gone.

It was then recalled that Minogue apparently had been very willing to face the charges against him at Reading, and some one representing him had notified the Wyomissing Bank's officials that Minogue would make it possible for the return of $100,000 of the robber's loot, including bonds, if the Wyomissing officials assisted in having the charges here dropped. It was said last night that the bank had not yet received a penny of this restitution.

Minogue and another suspect were arrested on Feb. 26 on suspicion of robbing George Alexander of 680 West End Avenue on Nov. 28, 1919, when he was attacked by several men in front of his home. The thieves fled with $47,000.

George Stuyvesant, who said he had recently come here from Albany, was the suspect arrested with Minogue. It was said that the Detroit authorities would immediately send a warrant here for Stuyvesant.

M. J. Husselrath, President of the New York University Chapter of the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity, said yesterday that the men arraigned before Magistrate Schwab, Sunday night on charges of disorderly conduct for appearing in masquerade costume at Central Park Plaza, Fifty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue, and making speeches, were not identified in any way with the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity.

HARDING SAYS HOBBY IS TO REVIVE HOPE

Declares He Wants to Turn Disappointments Into the "Fruition of Tomorrow."

ADDRESS TO PRESS CLUB

Possible Reference to Help for a Disappointed World Seen In "Hobby Party" Speech.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—President Harding, in his first speech since the inauguration, told the National Press Club this evening that his hobby was to try to find somewhere a human touch that "awakens disappointment into hope." He considered that the "finest hobby in the world."

"If," said the President, "in the fortunes that are to come to me, among the burdens and responsibilities of my office, without violating my devotion to my country, I can somehow touch the disappointments of yesterday and turn them into the hopeful fruition of tomorrow, I shall have indulged the hobby that is dearest to my heart."

It is possible that President Harding intended that more than ordinary significance should be attached to his words and that he meant to have read between the lines of his speech the idea that to the extent to which he can do so he intends to revive the hopes of a disappointed world.

The circumstances surrounding the President's speech, which was wholly impromptu, were rather dramatic. He had gone to Keith's Theatre at 5:30 o'clock as the special guest of honor of the National Press Club on the occasion of its annual "Hobby Party." These parties had been discoutinued during the war and were resumed tonight.

Many High Officials Present.

Sitting in the right-hand stage box from which President Harding spoke were Mrs. Harding, Major General Leonard Wood, Vice President and Mrs. Coolidge and John W. Weeks, the new Secretary of War. In the opposite stage box were Jules Jusserand, the French Ambassador, who is dean of the diplomatic corps, and Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, with Mme. Jusserand and Lady Geddes. Another box was occupied by General John J. Pershing and his aid, also Señor Riano, the Spanish Ambassador, and Señora Riano. In the audience were practically the entire diplomatic corps, members of the Supreme Court, army and navy officers, legislators and members of the club. Others present included ten Rear Admirals and six Major Generals.

The "hobby riders" in the set program were Justice Day of the Supreme Court, Sir Auckland Geddes, Secretary Hoover of the Department of Commerce, and Major General John A. Le Jeune, Commandant of the Marine Corps.

Mme. Galli-Curci sang her "hobby" with a delightful rendition of the "Shadow Song," from "Dinorah" and "Home, Sweet Home." At the request of President and Mrs. Harding she went to the President's box and was introduced to the members of the Presidential party. After that President Harding responded to a suggestion that, as "managing editor of the United States of America, he ought not to dodge an assignment to speak."

Speech of President Harding.

"Of course," said the President, after the audience had risen to give him an ovation, "as a good newspaper man, I could not decline an assignment. I have always had a high and reverent regard for the men who belong to the press. I confess that I have a higher regard for them now than ever before. I always knew that the men who make the newspapers and journals of this land—I believe there is a distinction—were exceedingly bright and alert. I have come to know now that they know more than executives and Cabinets put together. From them I have learned of things that I am doing or am going to do which I never even knew myself."

President Harding told of an incident of his earlier printer days, in the era of flatbed cylinder presses, when a "form" was sent to press without being "locked" in an effort to beat a competitor in delivering the paper on the street.

"At the first revolution of the press that form shot out on the floor," said the President, "and that was the finest mess of pi that ever went into a 'hell box.' Luckily it did not matter very much. It was only the editorial page that we had pied."

In conclusion, the President told his hobby by relating an incident growing out of his employment at one time of a Frenchman who had come to the Harding newspaper in Ohio as a tramp printer.

"I must confess," said Mr. Harding, "that I, too, have a hobby, since it is not unseemly to have one. It grew out of an incident early in my newspaper career. There was an old tramp printer. We all regret that these tourist-printers have passed away. This one was a Frenchman who had come to this country during the World's Columbian Exposition, and had drifted into this shiftless class.

Something I had written made an impression on him, and I got to know him. But I could not restore him, at that time, to a more stable existence. Yet it did seem to have an effect on him. Years later, when I was running for office, I chanced to be in a small town and to hear a crowd listening to an orator who held his throng spellbound. This orator was my tramp printer, and he was making a speech for me.

"Out of that experience has grown this hobby. If there is somewhere a human touch that awakens disappointment into hope—that is the finest hobby in the world."

UPHOLDS EXCLUSION OF BERGER'S PAPER

TWO JUSTICES DISSENT

Brandeis Sees Danger to Freedom of the Press in the Majority Decision.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The refusal of former Postmaster General Burleson to allow Victor Berger's newspaper, The Milwaukee Leader, the privilege of the second class mails, on the ground of disloyalty during the war was supported today by the United States Supreme Court. Associate Justice Clarke handed down the opinion, and Associate Justices Brandeis and Holmes dissented.

The New York Call, which also was barred from the second class mail by Mr. Burleson, was directly affected by the decision, as it had joined The Milwaukee Leader in the appeal to the Supreme Court.

In the opinion by Justice Clarke, affirming the decision of the lower court to which Berger's publishing company appealed, he said:

"The order simply withdrew from the relator (the Milwaukee Social Democratic Publishing Company), the second class privilege, but did not exclude its paper from other classes, as it might have done, and there was nothing in it to prevent reinstatement at any time. It was open to the relator to mend its ways, to publish a paper conforming to the law, and then to apply anew for the second class mailing privilege. This it did not do, but, for reasons not difficult to imagine, it preferred this futile litigation, undertaken upon the theory that a Government competent to wage war against its foreign enemies was powerless against its insidious foes at home. Whatever injury the relator suffered was the result of its own choice."

Justice Brandeis asserted that Mr. Burleson had gone beyond his authority and that the decision of the Court endangered the freedom of the press.

Justice Holmes announced that he agreed with Justice Brandeis "in substance," adding that "the right of free speech is almost as inherent as the right to use our tongues."

Alluding to some of the articles published in The Milwaukee Leader on which Postmaster General Burleson based his ruling, Justice Clarke said:

"Without going much into detail, it was declared in the quoted articles that the war was unjustifiable and dishonorable on our part, a capitalistic war, which had been forced upon the people by a class to serve selfish ends. Our Government was denounced as 'a plutocratic Republic,' a financial and political autocracy, and resident Russians were praised for defaming it. Other articles denounced the draft law as unconstitutional, arbitrary and oppressive, with the implied counsel that it should not be respected or obeyed, and it was represented that soldiers in France were becoming insane in such numbers that long trains of closed cars were being used to convey them away from the battlefront.

"These publications were not designed to secure amendment or repeal of the laws denounced in them as arbitrary and oppressive, but to create hostility to and to encourage violation of them. Freedom of the press may protect criticism and agitation for modification or repeal of laws, but it does not extend to protection of him who counsels and encourages the violation of the law as it exists. The Constitution was adopted to preserve our Government, not to serve as a protecting screen for those who, while claiming its privileges, seek to destroy it.

REPORT FAVORABLY COLOMBIAN TREATY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations reported out favorably today various treaties, some of which have been pending for years, including the Colombia treaty, which is expected to be taken up on the floor of the Senate within the next few days, probably on Wednesday. Several minor treaties were referred back to the State Department for review by Secretary Hughes before any further action is taken by the committee.

Several of the treaties reported out were ratified in executive session this afternoon. These were the treaty with Portugal, which extends for a period of five years the arbitration treaty of 1908; the treaty with Greece to continue in force the treaty of amity and commerce of 1837; the treaty to exempt commercial travelers from the payment of customs duties in the Argentine; a treaty extending to Hawaii the provisions of the treaty with Great Britain relating to property rights, and the treaty with Great Britain providing for the extradition from Canada of Americans who desert their minor children. This last treaty originally provided for the txardition of wife deserters, but was amended so as to apply only to cases in which minor children are involved.

Treaties referred to the State Department for review by Secretary Hughes are the treaty for the establishment of gold clearances with Guatemala, Panama, Paraguay and Haiti, the treaty of commerce and navigation with Siam, the treaty with Great Britain relating to the control of the salmon fisheries as between the United States and Canada, and the treaty with China which confirms the imposition of 5 per cent. ad valorem duty on goods imported into China by American citizens.

No action was taken on the three-power treaty for the protection of France against future German aggression.

The Colombian treaty as reported to the Senate is with a few exceptions the same treaty as was sent to the Senate by President Wilson on June 16, 1914. Article I. of the original treaty, which expressed to Colombia "in the name of the people of the United States, sincere regret that anything should have occurred to interrupt or mar the relations of cordial friendship that had so long subsisisted between the two nations" is eliminated. This was the section that was so bitterly opposed by friends of Colonel Roosevelt, the reference in the section being to the Panama insurrection of November, 1903.

In the original treaty the United State was obligated to pay Colombia $25,000,000 in gold within six months after the exchange of ratifications. In the amended treaty the money will be paid in five instalments of $5,000,000 each, the first in six months after ratifications and the other four in annual payments.

Pepper, a Trustee of the University of Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania graduates, many of whom served at the Plattsburg camps, have been carrying on a campaign for several weeks for the Trustees of the university to offer the General the post of Provost, a life position, carrying a salary of $25,000. No definite invitation has been made to General Wood, but it is understood that the Trustees have made informal advances with the view to ascertaining whether he would consider the place.

Wood "Favorable" to Provostship.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—Major Gen. Leonard Wood is "very favorably inclined" to the suggestion that he be offered the provostship of the University of Pennsylvania, according to an announcement made tonight by George Wharton Pepper upon his return from Washington, D. C. While there he participated in a conference this afternoon at which were present General Wood and Albert Brunker of Chicago, former President of the Associated Pennsylvania Clubs and at present member of the board of that body.

"My talk with General Wood makes me very hopeful that he is going to be favorable to the proposition," said Mr. Pepper. "At its present stage it is only a 'gentlemen's agreement.' The trustees have not voted for General Wood as provost. That question could not be decided until the meeting of the board on the 21st of this month."

Mr. Pepper said that General Wood would come here to confer with Dr. Harrison before starting on his Philippine trip. The exact date of his visit here has not been decided. Mr. Brunker is a close personal friend of General Wood's, and participated in his campaign for the Republican nomination.

ITALY FINDS LOST ART TREASURE HERE

CONSUL SEEKS INFORMATION

EMBASSY IS LIKELY TO ACT

Government In Rome Said to Be Trying to Discover Leak — May Try to Repurchase Decorations.

How were the Pinturicchio ceiling panels from the Palazzo del Magnifico in Siena, now among the rarest treasures in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, smuggled out of Italy in defiance of the laws of that country? The Italian Government has started an eager inquiry, it was learned yesterday, and the executive staff of the museum was in session for some time discussing the request for information passed on to it by Italian Consul General Bernardi.

Officers and trustees of the museum said last night that they had not been interrogated by representatives of the Italian Government, nor had their own executives yet asked them to pass upon the propriety of disclosing the source of these priceless and irreplaceable gems of Renaissance art which experts have described as the choicest of their kind.

It was said quite frankly, however, that it was not the custom of the museum to disclose the prices it paid for objects nor to tell the processes through which they came into its hands. Hence it would be extraordinary if in this case the trustees should decide to gratify the curiosity of the Italian Government.

Italy Seeks to Discover Leak.

Persons familiar with the undertaking of Italy, so far as it had progressed, said the immediate purpose of that Government was to discover the leak that had made possible the surreptitious exportation of the panels despite the vigilance of officials charged with preventing the nation from being despoiled of its heirlooms of ancient art.

Nonetheless it was said to be not at all unlikely that the Italian Government would make representations to the Metropolitan Museum, at least informally, that the panels had been sent from the country unlawfully, that they were a priceless heritage of the nation and that the Government stood ready to make restitution of every penny invested in them by the Metropolitan if the Museum would consent to their restoration. In the absence of actual receipt of such a request, no person in authority in the Museum's organization was willing to hazard an opinion as to what reply would be made.

Regardless of whether the Italian Government tried to get the Pinturicchio panels back, art dealers here who long have been familiar with the losing struggle of that nation to retain its invaluable antiques in the face of the eager acquisitiveness of the wealthy of other countries expressed confidence that Italy's very recent discovery of the whereabouts of the panels would lead to diplomatic representations. These, it was believed, would take the initial form of informal conversations between the Italian Ambassador at Washington and the State Department, seeking to learn whether some arrangement could not be made whereby the laws of Italy could be respected in this country.

Willing to Pay Huge Sum.

Alessandro Olivotti, a New York art dealer who is aiding the Italian Consul General in his inquiry, admitted that there existed no process in law whereby the Italian Government could recover the frescoes. He said, however, that despite its post-war impoverishment, the nation had available enormous funds in the hands of the Under Secretary of State for Fine Arts, raised partly by taxation and partly by the exportation of luxuries. Such funds could be used only in connection with art, and Mr. Olivotti had no doubt the Government would be glad to pay a huge sum for recovery of the panels.

Mr. Olivotti said further that it was the misfortune of Italy that the panels, acquired by the Metropolitan in France early in 1914, had not left the country where they were executed during the actual progress of the conflict. In that case their exportation might have been traced to enemy sources and there would have existed excellent ground for recovery proceedings.

Under the existing circumstances he believed, from his acquaintance with the status of all such antiques and the methods frequently employed in getting them into the hands of American collectors, that there existed no shadow of legal basis for an effort to recover them. Unquestionably, he said, the Metropolitan had bought them in Paris in good faith, even though it might see fit to adhere to its usual custom of not disclosing the sources of its treasures. He said the panels were "literally priceless," and that beyond a doubt the museum's agents must have paid a fabulous sum for them.

Panels Exhibited This Year.

As to the prospect of this country losing the treasures, Mr. Alessandro would venture no opinion, since his association with the Italian Consul in the matter had not brought him any information as to the disposition of the Metropolitan management. He was confident earnest consideration would be given to any representations which the Italian Government might see fit to make, but he gave the impression of being more impressed with the possibility of some arrangement regarding future exportations, whether direct or indirect, than with the probability that the Museum would surrender so precious a collection.

Although the panels had been in the possession of the Metropolitan for seven years they were not placed on exhibition until early this year. That was due in part to the reconstruction of Gallery 32, the Gold Room, into a chamber with the dimensions and the approximate arrangement of arches and windows as the hall from which they came originally. Moldings and ornaments from the original "stucchi" were inserted around the paintings, of which there were twenty-two panels, originally in fresco, but later transferred to canvas. A further cause of delay in placing them on exhibition was the extreme hazard of transporting them across the ocean in wartime in view of the activities of enemy submarines.

It appeared that the panels were in their places in the palace in 1902. That was the last definite date that their presence was established so far as could be learned. Several years later they were missed, but evidently the Italian Government, despite diligent investigation, could get no trace of them, until the fact that they had been placed on exhibition in New York was published.

Museum Executives Meet.

Soon thereafter the Italian Government sent its cabled inquiry, which resulted in the Consul General engaging Mr. Alessandro and in the two visiting the museum to establish formally the presence of the panels and their genuineness, which never has been called into question.

Next came the request for information as to how the panels were acquired, followed by the meeting yesterday at which Joseph Breck, Assistant Director, presided in the absence of Dr. Edward Robinson, Director of the museum.

What action was taken at that meeting could not be discovered, but it was understood that the result of the executives' deliberations would be communicated to the trustees before any action was taken. Robert W. De Forest, head of the board, is in the South on a vacation.

The panels are mong the most important works in the history of Renaissance decoration and examples of its most winsome and light-hearted aspect. A description of them is given in the following remarks of Corrado Ricci, late Director of Italian Museums:

"It was supposed that Pinturicchio's works in the Petrucci palace were lost. But, fortunately, a great part of the vaulted ceiling survives, although hidden by the ceilings and partition walls of the chambers which were built into the room about a century ago. This fact was made known by the distinguished Professor Franchi, Director of the Institute of Fine Arts at Siena, to whose courtesy we owe an account and an inspection of the reliefs and designs, the latter made with very great discomfort, as we were obliged to crawl along on all fours in the dark and narrow space between the vaulting and the later ceiling.

Gilt Candelabra Support Tablets.

"He told us that over the loftiest of the modern rooms the old vaulting was used as a ceiling, and, therefore, plastered over. The ceiling is separated from the walls by two brackets, and three arches on each side. On the brackets, upon a background of blue dotted with gold, are a sort of gilt candelabra, each supporting tablets, each having a motto.

"Among these are the muses—Terpsichore, stretched upon the ground writing with one hand and resting her head thoughtfully upon the other; Erato with the cymbals and the swan; Calliope seated upon the ground playing a trumpet. In the panels of the central quadrangle are mythological subjects—Antiope asleep near a herms, while Jove, transported into a satyr, bends over her; Bacchus and Pan; Hercules spinning, seated humbly among the sheep and cattle, vanquished by Omphale, who holds his club derisively; the trumpet of a warrior, borne among his arms in a chariot, which is driven by a winged genius, drawn by two horses and followed by soldiers; the triumph of Peace, to whose chariot two lions are yoked; a nymph seated upon a rim with a long fish tail, and so on."

It was about 1508 that Pandolfo Petrucci, il Magnifico, or tyrant of Siena, commissioned Pinturicchio to paint and decorate this ceiling in the reception hall of the palace he then was having constructed. This reception hall, according to authorities, must have been one of the most sumptuous and charming interiors of its time.

GUESTS' PET SNAKES HONORED AT DINNER

Women Undecided Which Kind Have the 'Loveliest' Touch Worn About the Throat.

Snakes and lizards which crawled about the tables last night in the Cafe Boulevard at the annual dinner of the Reptile Study Society were of more interest to the guests than the food and the speakers, who eulogized the tempter of Adam and Eve. Young girls and sweet-faced old ladies handled the crawling things and debated as to which had "the softest and loveliest feel" to the arms and throat.

One whole family from snakedom was there—mother, father and five little snakelets no bigger than worms which boys use to go fishing. There were lizards which seemed to have two heads and could run just as fast forward as backward, boa constrictors, rattlesnakes, water snakes, black snakes, copperheads and almost every variety one could wish.

Arthur L. Gillam of Flushing, who it was said had captured more than one hundred rattlesnakes and as many copperheads last Summer within one hundred miles of the City Hall, demonstrated the proper way to capture venomous serpents alive without danger to the hunter or injury to the captives. The way to do it was not made clear enough for a novice to attempt, but the expert members of the society agree that there was no danger.

SIX MORE TYPHUS SUSPECTS REPORTED

FIRST CASE IN BOSTON

Four New Sleeping Sickness Patients Are Recorded by Health Department Here.

Five more immigrants from the Italian steamship San Guisto were under observation for typuhs last night at the Federal quarantine station, and Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland reported another suspected case in the city itself. This patient, Dr. Copeland added, was an immigrant who landed here Thursday from the Red Star liner Kroonland.

Definite diagnosis of the illness of a steerage passenger as typhus led to the detention of the steamship Mongolia, with 1,000 passengers, at Boston Quarantine station for a period of twelve days. The Mongolia arrived at Boston on Saturday from Hamburg and Antwerp. The typhus case is that of a Syrian girl and it was Boston's first typhus patient.

"We cannot say whether the five suspects have typhus or not," said Dr. Deland E. Cofer, Federal Health Officer of the Port, "but we will be able to say definitely tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The patients display typhus symptoms, but we are waiting until we are able to definitely diagnose the illness."

Commissioner Copeland has begun an investigation into the case of Jacob Lilling, a clerk, living at 263 Seventh Street, now a typhus patient in Bellevue Hospital. Lilling arrived in this country three days ago from Kossuth, Hungary, arriving at Philadelphia on the French liner Rochambeau.

Dr. Copeland telephoned to the United States Public Health Service officials and the immigration authorities at Philadelphia. He said that he had learned Lilling had been examined and passed by both last Thursday, and that the next day he came here. Dr. Copeland added that Lilling had not made the trip with the other immigrants from the Rochambeau and so, traveling individually, he had got past the Department of Health Inspectors at the Liberty Street ferry.

According to the city's health chief, all precautions have been taken in the case and inspectors were at work following up all persons known to have arrived on the Rochambeau who gave local addresses. He said that the department had fumigated and sealed the room occupied by Lilling at the Park Row address, and also said that measures had been taken to observe relatives of Lilling whom he had visited at the Seventh Street number.

Four additional cases of sleeping sickness were reported yesterday. For the first seven weeks of this year Health Department reports indicate a 25 per cent. mortality in 218 cases. During 1920 a total of 500 cases were reported here with the death rate comparatively small.

WHITE HOUSE AGAIN WILL BE PICKETED

Socialists Mapping Out Plan to Obtain Debs's Release From Prison.

BOSTON, March 7.—The White House will be picketed by Socialists, in connection with the campaign to be conducted at Washington in the interest of amnesty for Eugene V. Debs and others whom they designate as "political prisoners." Announcement of a vote to this effect at a special session of the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party here yesterday was followed today by decision to continue the sessions in New York tomorrow, so that plans for the campaign may be considered in conference with Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch, who will head the Socialist lobby at Washington.

The Executive Committee set June 25 as the date for the national convention of the party at Detroit, and gave over the sessions today to considering propositions for submission to the convention that were sent in by local branches.

Organization of foreign-speaking groups as branches of the party and resubmission of a former constitutional provision that Socialists in public office should be instructed not to vote for military or naval appropriations were placed on the convention program. The latter proposition was advanced as a substitute for a proposal by the Cook County (Ill.) local that "no elected member of the Socialist Party should be allowed to vote for military expenditures except in cases where the arms go directly to the workers." The Cook County proposal was tabled as ambiguous.

DR. HOOVER TO OPERATE ON AMERICAN PRINCESS

ATHENS, March 7 (Associated Press).—Dr. Alden R. Hoover of Muscatine, Iowa, decided today to perform an operation on Princess Anatasia, wife of Prince Christopher of Greece (formerly Mrs. William B. Leeds of New York), for an intestinal ailment. He came to Athens from Constantinople to attend the Princess in her illness.

Dr. Hoover went to the Palace immediately after his arrival and examined the Princess. He declared later that her condition was grave, but that he was hopeful. He said, however, that there were certain obscure aspects requiring further study. The patient was cheerful and her mind was clear last evening, but her steadily rising pulse, with an almost stationary temperature, was causing her physicians some anxiety. At midnight her condition seemed to be more favorable.

Princess Anastasia was greatly cheered by the presence of an American, and she said that the arrival of Dr. Hoover "brought her nearer home," as she had some difficulty in explaining her case to her Greek physicians, only two of whom speak English.

Dr. Hoover had only two hours' notice to come to Athens from Constantinople. He was attending the daughter of the former Khevive of Egypt when a wireless message from the Greek Minister of Marine was hande dto him, pleading with him to come to Athens. At first he planned to go on a Greek destroyer, but this was found impossible, and so he embarked on the passenger steamer Rumania.

The captain of the liner, learning that the "American Princess" was seriously ill, pushed the steamer through the Sea of Marmora and the Dardanelles at maximum speed, and then raced across the stormy Aegean. The entire 360 miles to Piraeus were covered in twenty-three hours, or thirteen hours less than usual.

Shortly before midnight last night, the Princess, through her secretary, asked The Associated Press to reassure her relatives and friends, particularly her son, in America, that her case was not such as to cause grave apprehension, and to say that she was determined to recover.

CARUSO'S PROGRESS AGAIN 'SATISFACTORY'

Short Check in His Convalescence Is Over, Physicians Report —Deny Setback.

Caruso has passed a short period of his convalescence in which no improvement was made, and yesterday his physicians reported that his condition was "satisfactory." They denied that the higher fever and restlessness of their patient on Saturday approached a setback. This was the bulletin from the singer's apartment in the Hotel Vanderbilt yesterday:

"DR. JOHN F. ERDMANN.
"DR. SAMUEL W. LAMBERT.
"DR. EVAN M. EVANS.
"DR. ANTONIO STELLA.
"DR. FRANCIS J. MURRAY."

None of Caruso's associates in the Metropolitan Opera Company has seen him for several days because the physicians insisted that he have absolute quiet and rest. Failure to receive the usual intimate reports from Caruso's bedside has caused the spreading of reports that his condition was again critical, that he spent sleepless nights and was unable to take nourishment. All these reports have been denied officially.

Reports of hurried consultations by the physicians on Saturday and Sunday also were denied, as were rumors that the opera star was in great pain and that oxygen was being used again. It was said that his condition was not so favorable on Saturday and early Sunday, but that improvement had started again yesterday. Last night he was reported to be resting comfortably, after a good day.

BAIL PRIVILEGE WITHDRAWN.

Police Lieutenants Forbidden to Release Rum Violators.

Police Lieutenants hereafter will not be permitted to release offenders against the Volstead act on bail in Brooklyn, according to a statement issued yesterday in the Federal Building there. It had been the practice to accept bail for such prisoners on telephoned authorization from a United States Commissioner. Hereafter the Commissioner must go to the station to accept bail, or order the offender arraigned before him for the purpose. It was understood that the police hereafter would arraign all such prisoners before Magistrates when they desired to be released on bail.

culminating in the declaration of the establishment of the Irish republic. "This is a legitimate application," it declares, "of the principle of national self-determination."

"This was met by the British Government with immediate and murderous exercise of brutal force. The terror failed; the regulars could not be relied on to carry it out. Ex-convicts and degenerates from the trenches could be depended upon to have few qualms in dealing with the victims, and a special force of these fiends was accordingly embodied.

"Allured by the prospect of easy prey and unlimited loot, with the whole British Army as a cover in the rear, they let loose upon the unarmed and defenseless population. An orgy of murder and robbery began; neither age, sex nor profession was respected. Whole districts were devastated and produce destroyed in the hope of famishing the population, and these abominations continue unabated. English jails are filled with our countrymen; some have been murdered, others tortured therein."

The manifesto declares that the Irish people claim self-determination, and concludes:

"We, their official spokesmen and their elected Parliament, call upon mankind to witness that our people have ever been ready to welcome peace with England that has a just basis. No other basis of peace is possible. We have pledged ourselves and people faithful to the cause until death. You representatives of sister nations cannot be insensible to the issue."

BELFAST, Ireland, March 7.—Limerick is intensely excited over the shootings, which are popularly interpreted as reprisals for the assassination of Brigadier-General Cumming, who was killed at Clonbanin on Saturday.

Brother Here Tells of Career.

Belief that George Clancy, Mayor of Limerick, who was shot and killed in that city today, had been slain after he had come out of hiding to see his wife, was expressed here tonight by the dead man's brother, Egan Clancy, Secretary of the Irish-American Labor League of New York. Egan told The Associated Press that his brother had been forced to hide in the Curleau Mountains as a result of his activities in connection with the Battle of MaCroom on Feb. 22-25.

"He was in hiding at the time of his election to the office of Mayor of Limerick," Clancy said. "Then later he came down from the mountains and took charge of the Limerick Battalion of the Irish Republican Army which was engaged in the Battle of MaCroom.

"Immediately after the battle he was forced to flee to the mountains. He was pursued continually, but was able to keep away from Royalist soldiers searching for him. Evidently he slipped into Limerick secretly to see his wife and was found there at his home and killed."

Mrs. Clancy, who was seriously wounded at the time her husband was killed, was formerly Miss Mollie Kileen, daughter of a prominent Irishman of Limerick. She was married three years ago. According to Egan Clancy, Mrs. Clancy was a very active Nationalist.

"She was more active than George, if that was possible," said Clancy, "and they 'got' her for that. She was one of the best rifle shots in Ireland, and in 1914 won the women's rifle championship tournament."

Egan Clancy said today that he had heard nothing more of the shooting than was contained in today's press reports, although he was expecting a cablegram furnishing details.

"I have not heard from George in four years," Egan said. "I left Ireland in 1915 with a price of £100 on my head. I heard from George several times previous to 1917, but since then only indirectly."

Mayor Clancy, who was 34 years old, received the degree of Bachelor of Arts at Dublin University in 1904, and in 1905 was given a master's degree. The year following he was made professor of modern languages at the university, a position which he held for a number of years. He became active in the Irish Nationalist movement in 1914, when he was placed in charge of Kilkee Camp.

It was announced today at the headquarters of the Irish-American Labor League that a meeting will be held tomorrow night at Bryant's Hall, at which resolutions will be drawn and presented to President Harding protesting against the killing of Mayor Clancy.

Would End Dublin Castle Rule.

LONDON, March 7.—During the course of a debate on Ireland in the House of Commons today several Independent Unionists suggested the complete elimination of the Chief Secretary for Ireland and of Dublin Castle from the Irish administration and the placing of all the Crown forces, including the constabulary, under the sole command of the Commander-in-Chief in Ireland so as to make clear the issue between the British Crown and the Irish insurgents.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, admitted that the suggestion had made an impression upon him and he promised to recommend it to the consideration of the Cabinet. The Chief Secretary added that he would willingly efface himself if by doing so it would mean the attainment of a higher standard of discipline in Ireland.

Preparations are in progress for the erection of a chain of military blockhouses to indicate the new boundaries of the Ulster area in Ireland under the new Home Rule act, says a Belfast dispatch to The Evening Star today.

Government surveys have commenced in Clones, in North Monaghan County, near the Fermanagh border, the dispatch adds. Sites are being marked for a number of new stations for 30,000 troops in the six-county area. The stations will be two miles apart.

Sagging ankle and arch without support of the Coward Arch Support Shoe

Sagging ankle and arch properly supported by Coward Arch Support Shoe

TWO OUT OF FIVE

Statistics show that two out of every five children of school age have either sagging ankles or weak arches. These conditions, if taken care of in time, need not cause serious alarm, but if neglected, very troublesome foot-ailments will most likely result in later years.

The Coward Arch Support Shoe corrects these tendencies in a scientific manner. The weight of the body is properly distributed, thereby relieving the ankles of much strain while the arch of the foot is held securely in place.

TONCAN METAL

Endures and Insures

Exposed sheet metal suffers most in sea air or air charged with fumes. To last in either it must be good; to resist both, extra good.

Anti-corrosive Toncan Metal was selected for the roof of the original plant of the International Nickel Co., Bayonne, N. J., built in 1911. It served so well that Toncan Sheets went on the new plant without question.

Toncan Metal is widely used for roofing, siding, eaves troughs, ventilators, lath, other building materials, tanks, corrugated culverts, and for enameled parts of refrigerators, stoves, kitchen cabinets and table tops.

HIMMEL, MOVIE KING, ARRESTED IN HAVRE

HIS $100,000,000 MERGER

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 7.—André Himmel, the young naturalized Frenchman whose activities in the motion picture world have recently caused so much speculation and discussion, was brought to Paris this morning from Havre under arrest and immediately afterward was interrogated by the examining magistrate at the Palais de Justice.

When the Savoie, from New York, came alongside her pier at Havre the police went aboard, and when Himmel presented his passport for examination he was arrested on the charge of swindling. He spent the night in prison at Havre. The warrant for his arrest was issued in Paris on the demand of a certain M. Rivony, a rich manufacturer who, when Himmel began his career, lent him 1,200,000 francs for his enterprise.

M. Rivony's allegation is that Himmel misled him as to the condition of his affairs and misrepresented the extent of the support he had received elsewhere. It was with this money that Himmel was able to take options on several motion picture theatres and companies in France, of which he represented himself in America as owner and director. Most of his options expired in December of last year, and he had not taken them up. By that time the support which he had apparently obtained in America, where in the State of Delaware he had chartered the Franco-American Cinematograph Corporation, had begun to dwindle. In New York, by the use of letters which he had obtained, and had in some way manipulated, Himmel managed to pass himself off as a representative of the French Government, and it was not until the news of his activities on the other side of the Atlantic reached Paris that inquiries began to be made about the genuineness of his claims.

The result of these inquiries has now led to his arrest and has given the young "cinema king" a chance to explain his affairs before a magistrate.

News Surprises the New York Office.

News of the arrest of André Himmel, the young French promoter of the world-wide moving picture combination, which he incorporated in Delaware last July under the name of the Franco-American Cinematographic Corporation, with an authorized capital of $100,000,000 of which $10,000 was paid in, was received yesterday with surprise at the local offices of the corporation, 1,482 Broadway.

A representative of the film corporation who was in charge of the offices declined to make any comment on the arrest of M. Himmel when the details were placed before him by a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES.

However, a meeting of the American directors of the enterprise has been called for today to consider the arrest of M. Himmel, and any statement, it was said, would have to come from this meeting. Meanwhile the announcement was made on behalf of the Franco-American Cinematographic Corporation that the corporation still had an abiding faith in the organizer of the concern, and that any act which might be construed as sufficient cause for his arrest had most certainly not been committed in this country. It was asserted that only last Saturday most encouraging reports had been received from the Paris offices.

At the same time it was learned that another of Himmel's stanchest supporters had detached himself from the enterprises of the young Frenchman. This man is Gustav J. Fleischmann, Treasurer of the Fleischmann Construction Company, who was one of the directors of the Franco-American Cinematographic Corporation.

"I resigned two weeks ago from the Board of Directors of the Franco-American Cinematographic Corporation," said Mr. Fleischmann, just after he was informed of the arrest of André Himmel. When he was asked what led to his resignation as a Director, he explained:

"I entered the corporation with the intention of doing construction work, and when I found there was no construction work to be done I got out."

M. Himmel's first visit to the United States was in July, 1920. He came ostensibly as a representative of the French Government, and exhibited letters of introduction from the French Department of Fine Arts to the French High Commissioner, who was requested to assist him in his plans for promoting more cordial relations between the French and American motion picture industries.

Subsequently the authenticity of these letters was questioned by the Syndical Chamber of the Cinematograph Industry, which discussed them and gave wide publicity to Himmel's projects at a meeting of that body in Paris on Dec. 14 last. Later M. Himmel, who was stopping at the Hotel Ritz-Carlton, exhibited to a reporter for THE TIMES originals and photostat copies of these letters, showing that he had been provided with introductions to the French High Commissioner by the Department of Fine Arts.

Dinner to Himmel at the Ritz.

On the eve of his departure for Paris at the conclusion of his first trip to America, M. Himmel was the guest at a farewell dinner at the Ritz-Carlton, at which representatives of the motion picture industry were present and at which Maurice Casenave, French High Commissioner, presided. Soon after M. Himmel's affairs became a subject of general discussion in the motion picture industry in France and the United States, M. Casenave explained that he had presided at the dinner merely at the request of Frank D. Pavey, President of the Alliance Française, and McDougall Hawkes. Mr. Pavey was one of the incorporators of the film corporation, and he drew up the papers of incorporation. Mr. Hawkes was one of the members of the Executive Committee of the Directors.

"I knew Mr. Pavey and Mr. Hawkes as extremely respectable gentlemen," explained M. Casenave, "so I could not refuse to go to the dinner when they invited me to preside."

Mr. Pavey resigned as an incorporator soon after the Directors were chosen for the corporation, as did Lucien Jouvard, President of the French Hospital.

Mr. Hawkes also resigned his connection with the Franco-American Cinematographic Corporation last month as the result of investigations personally conducted in Paris.

BARRYMORE-COLT BREAK IS CONFIRMED

The formal separation of Ethel Barrymore from her husband, Russell Griswold Colt, was confirmed yesterday by the actress's counsel, William Nelson Cromwell of Sullivan & Cromwell, 49 Wall Street. By the terms of the separation agreement Mrs. Barrymore-Colt is to have the custody of the three children.

In his statement Mr. Cromwell disclosed that his client had virtually recovered from the ailment that caused her to leave "Déclassé" and enter Christ Hospital, Cincinnati, and later to go to Flower Hospital for further treatment. She is already beginning preliminary work for her next production—"Clair-de-Lune," written by her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Barrymore.

"Mrs. Barrymore-Colt," said Mr. Cromwell, "has refrained from making any statement whatever regarding her domestic concerns, and, of course, I have counselled this attitude and have myself strictly adhered to it heretofore. But, in view of the wide publicity which has been given the subject, it seems wiser to clear the atmosphere by now confirming the fact that Mrs. Ethel Barrymore-Colt has definitely separated her life and home from Mr. Colt and that a separation agreement has been formally executed by both parties and is in actual operation.

"By the agreement Mrs. Barrymore-Colt has the sole care, custody, control and education of the three young children. Mr. Colt has the opportunity of companionship with the children subject to the arrangements and convenience of their mother and the health, physical conditions and studies of the children as determined by her.

"The numerous friends of Mrs. Barrymore-Colt will be gratified to learn that she has practically recovered from the surgical operations upon her fingers and tonsils, at Christ Hospital, Cincinnati, and Flower Hospital, New York, made necessary by the infection of the deadly germ streptoccus veridan which was generated while recently on tour in 'Déclassé'—a germ destructive of the bone or other substance surrounding its lodgment. Fortunately, X-rays located its presence in only the two places mentioned.

"Dr. L. L. Danforth, Mrs. Barrymore-Colt's physician for many years, and Dr. John D. Richards, who performed the tonsil operation, today released their patient from hospital treatment and she has this morning taken up her residence with the children at the Hotel Woodward, where her uncle, John Drew, and his daughter's family make their home.

"Mrs. Barrymore-Colt is earnestly occupied in preparation for the production of the new play 'Clair-de-Lune,' written by her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Barrymore (Michael Strange), in which the brother and sister Barrymore will soon jointly appear in New York.

"As every one knows who cares for my opinion, I seldom make statements of this nature, and I do so in such instance with the greatest reluctance, but I have reviewed the marital life of the past eleven years in every single detail, and I have not yet finished my examinations, but I assume full professional responsibility for my conclusions and advice in the course which has been taken."

NAVAL OFFICER FLED AFTER THEFT TRIAL

Lieut. Robb, Accused of Embezzlement, Escaped From Barracks in September.

Quest by detectives and officials of the Naval Intelligence Service for Lieutenant Don H. Robb of the battleship Tennessee yesterday revealed that on Sept. 26 last he escaped from the Bay Ridge barracks, Brooklyn, where he was detained pending the verdict of a court-martial which ended his trial the day before on a charge of embezzling $2,000 of the ship's funds.

Lieutenant Robb escaped while in the custody of an armed sentry, it was admitted at the barracks yesterday, and is believed to have been aided by two friends, who drove up to the gate in an automobile a few minutes before. Lieutenant Robb was in uniform, naval officers said, and for that reason the sentries made no effort to stop him. It was said, in fact, that they saluted him as he passed, and it was not until the alarm was sounded ten minutes later that they realized they had permitted a prisoner to walk to his freedom.

JAPAN'S CABINET ASKS MORE FOR ARMAMENT

Wants 40,000,000 Yen to Meet Higher Cost of Warships—Anti-Armament Campaign Gaining.

TOKIO, March 7 (Associated Press).—The Government has requested from the Diet an additional appropriation for defenses amounting to 50,000,000 yen. Of this sum 40,000,000 yen is asked for the navy, to meet the increased cost of construction of warships.

The armament restriction campaign recently instituted by Yukio Ozaki, former Minister of Justice, is steadily winning popular support, according to newspaper reports, and several associations have been formed in Osaka and elsewhere to secure realization of the project.

Leading men of Osaka, Japan's great industrial centre, headed by M. Muto, the foremost cotton manufacturer, have decided to form a league for the curtailment of armament and to secure the cooperation of business communities in other parts of the country. The movement is regarded here as an organized attempt to control the policies of the militarists and secure the allocation of armament funds for internal economic and educational improvements.

M. Ozaki is continuing his lectures, at which votes taken usually show 90 per cent. of his audiences favorable to his project, the newspapers say.

HOUSING LAWS UP IN SUPREME COURT

Arguments Heard in Test Case to Determine Validity of New York State Statutes.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Arguments were heard today by the Supreme Court in the case brought by the Marcus Brown Holding Company of New York, real estate owners, to test the validity of sections of the New York State housing laws. The company contends that they constitute an illegal exercise of police power and are in contravention of both the State and Federal Constitutions.

The Marcus Brown Company sought an injunction in the lower courts restraining District Attorney Swann from proceeding against it for violation of any of the laws requiring the providing of heat, hot water or elevator service, and an injunction restraining certain individual tenants from continuing to occupy apartments in the buildings controlled by the company.

Liberian President Off to Capital.

President Charles D. B. King of the Republic of Liberia, who arrived last Sunday, left for Washington yesterday afternoon, accompanied by his suite. It was said that he expected to remain in Washington until his mission of arranging a $5,000,000 loan had been completed.

POLICE WIN MOVE FOR AN EARLY TRIAL

MUST NOT ATTEMPT DELAY

Whitman Is Expected to Agree to Take Up Cases in April—City Leases Investigated.

The privilege of inspecting the Grand Jury minutes is granted to four police defendants, unless it is stipulated by the prosecution within three days that no delays will be interposed by the State to the trials of the cases in their order after April 1, according to a decision rendered yesterday by Judge Thomas C. T. Crain in General Sessions.

This decision was made on motions in behalf of Detective Sergeants Martin Owens, Thomas J. Horan, William Hussey and William T. Hemmerich, who were indicted on evidence presented by ex-Governor Whitman on the charge of taking unlawful fees for recovering stolen automobiles. Judge Crain said that the most important objection urged against showing the minutes was that it would interfere with the investigation of other cases, but he continued:

"The Court would not be warranted in assuming that this contention is insincerely made, and it is plain that the Court cannot determine the precise weight to be attached to it, because that weight depends not merely upon what has been already done in connection with such an investigation, but upon that which it is contemplated to do, and this information is not possessed by the Court.

Public Interest Involved.

Mr. Whitman, who had opposed the granting of an inspection of the Grand Jury minutes, refused to comment on the decision, but indicated that he would probably file the stipulation, as suggested.

William Chilvers, who is associated with the Whitman investigation into alleged corruption in the city administration, said yesterday that records in his hands indicated that a favored firm had obtained leases of city waterfront property at low figures and sublet them at profits as high as 600 per cent.

A new witness in the Whitman investigation is a burglar, recently sentenced, who confessed that he had participated in a large number of freight-car robberies and asserted that certain city policemen and railroad detectives had been his accomplices. He said that one of their joint burglaries produced plunder of $100,000.

Mr. Chilvers has obtained from the Property Clerk of the Police Department a list of bonds recovered by the police after they had been stolen during the epidemic of bond thefts a year ago. Their value is more than $900,000. Today Mr. Chilvers will question the owners of the bonds to discover whether they paid rewards to the policemen recovering the bonds.

It has been alleged that in some cases 5 per cent. commissions had been demanded by detectives for the return of bonds and that in certain cases detectives had, through a go-between, negotiated for the commission before producing the stolen property.

WINS AGAINST BOYCOTT.

Burgess Co. Gets Permanent Injunction Against Shippers and Unions.

Justice Stephen Callaghan, in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday, made permanent a temporary injunction restraining several steamship lines and locals of longshoremen's and freight handlers' unions from refusing to ship and handle goods of the Burgess Brothers Company, dealers in lumber. The company, through its counsel, told the Court that it imposed no conditions on its employes as to whether they were members of a union or not, and that when they refused to operate a closed shop the unions declared a boycott which extended to the refusal by the steamship companies to handle their goods.

During the argument on the application for the injunction representatives of the companies admitted they allowed their employes to refuse to handle merchandise shipped by the Burgess Brothers Company because they feared a strike by freight handlers.

"These defendants, who were owners or agents of steamships, were required to serve the public without discrimination," said Justice Callaghan. "They did not discharge or reprimand any of their employes for discriminating, but openly sanctioned such conduct. This concerted action led to an unlawful act, violating both the United States Shipping act and the United States Criminal Code. For these reasons they may be properly regarded as parties to the unlawful combination."

WOMEN WIN BIG WILL SUIT.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 7.—After a trial lasting seven days, Surrogate George A. Slater of Westchester County today took from the jury the contest over the will of the late Eugene Tymeson of Yonkers, who left $250,000 to two women friends, and upheld the will.

The will of Mr. Tymeson, an inventor of appliances for making carpets, was contested by his two sisters and seven other relatives, who were cut off. Mr. Tymeson left all of his property to Mrs. Lillie Miller and Miss Hattie Fredericks. The contest developed many alleged eccentricities upon the part of Mr. Tymeson, one being that he wore the same overcoat and hat for twenty years. It was contended that the two women had influenced Mr. Tymeson, who was 73 years old, to leave his property to them.

ENRIGHT HITS CRITICS PRAISES A DEFENDER

Says "Traction Gamblers" Abuse Every Official Who Opposes a Higher Fare.

THANKS TO JUDGE MAY

West Thirty-seventh Street Station to Be Headquarters for Women Police and Detention Centre.

Police Commissioner Enright in a letter which he sent to County Judge Mitchell May of Brooklyn yesterday thanked the Jurist for his remarks last week on critics of the Police Department and uncovered another group of enemies of his administration.

"The traction gamblers abuse every honest public official who has the courage to oppose the imposition of an increased fare upon the traveling public of this city," said the Commissioner, "while the gamblers and others of their kind abuse the police and attempt to thwart them.

The Commissioner has issued an order for the establishment of a central office for women police in the old West Thirty-seventh Street Station, between Ninth and Tenth Avenues, it became known yesterday. The women, who are assigned to welfare work, have been under the command of Mrs. Mary Hamilton, and she will be assisted by Mrs. Isabel Goodwin, the first woman to be assigned to detective work in this city.

A scheme for the establishment of direct telephone connection between the police of all the cities and communities within the metropolitan area and Police Headquarters here will be discussed today at a meeting arranged by Commissioner Enright in the Police Club.

FASHION MODELS COMPLAIN.

Say They Were Treated Unfairly in "Wounded Soldier" Benefit.

A committee of three women, headed by Miss Lillian McIntosh, complained at the District Attorney's office yesterday that sixty young women who had appeared as "fashion models" in a revue at the Hotel Pennsylvania for a benefit to wounded soldiers, had not received the compensation promised them. They say the manager, who had made arrangements to hold the show on the hotel roof, had promised to give each of the women $105 for three performances, whereas they had received only $1.70 each.

Assistant District Attorney J. E. Smith told the committee he would make any investigation that might be necessary. "These girls tell me," said Mr. Smith, "that they were sent out on Fifth Avenue buses and to hotels and directed to say to people 'Don't you want to buy a ticket to aid the home for wounded soldiers?'"

20,000,000 CHINESE STARVE.

American Committee Makes New Plea for Relief Funds.

In a plea for contributions to the China Famine Fund, the American Committee, headed by Thomas W. Lamont, yesterday issued a statement telling of the relief work being done in Chinese cities for the inhabitants of the famine areas. This quotes Dr. Yen Hui Ching, Chinese Minister for Foreign Affairs as saying that "compress the figures as one may, between 20,000,000 and 30,000,000 people face starvation."

"Confronted by the critical stage in famine conditions," said a report from the Fomine Fund Headquarters in China, "and by the fact that all funds in hand and to come will scarcely be adequate to meet the crisis, representative Chinese and foreign leaders have decided upon a national financial drive to draw out the maximum effort for relief. This drive by the Chinese Government is to be directed by the international relief societies."

FLORENCE, March 6.—Count Michael Karolyi, whose expulsion from Italy was ordered last week, has gone to Tarvis, in Carinthia. Spain and Portugal having refused to give him a refuge.

Among many documents taken by the police were some showing that Count Karolyi planned to form a Communist colony of Hungarian immigrants in America, and it is alleged he was to be supported in this work by members of the Hungarian Ministry and Nikolai Lenine, the Russian Bolshevist Premier.

Mature Security Salesman Wanted

ONE of our clients manufacturing a labor-saving device of peculiar merit is interested in locating a mature man, experienced in the presentation of securities. It is probable this man is now located with a well established security house, and it is possible that such a connection need not be disturbed. On the other hand, the man finally chosen may not be experienced in actual security sales work, but thoroughly mature in general sales activity. This man will work with our clients, he will work hard, but will participate handsomely on a commission basis.

BANDITS IN QUEENS RISK LIFE TERMS

Hold-ups in Queens have become so frequent that Judge Burt J. Humphrey in the Queens County Court yesterday warned that he would impose the extreme penalty on every man convicted before him of robbery.

Eugene J. Dunn, 19 years old, of 66 Lincoln Street, Flushing, was arraigned before Judge Humphrey for sentence on his conviction of being one of five youths who on Nov. 20 last held up two men and several women customers in a grocery store in Queens.

"I am going to do all I can to stop hold-ups in Queens if I have to send every young loafer in this county to prison for life," declared the Court as he imposed a sentence of from ten to sixteen years on Dunn.

Judge Humphrey then fixed April 4 as the day for the trial of Peter Runziata, Joseph Alfano, Frank Cassesso and Alfonso Verona, four youths indicted for murder in the first degree in connection with the hold-up and killing of Professor Wilfred P. Kotkov of Woodhaven, Queens, on Feb. 23 last.

Another burglary in the Flatbush district, which has suffered many in the last three weeks, was reported yesterday. Allyn S. Crumm, President of the Thirty-second Ward Taxpayers' Association and a member of the Flatbush Chamber of Commerce, returned home at 2,903 Farragut Road, to find that intruders had taken more than $1,000 worth of clothing and silverware.

It also became known yesterday that on Saturday night last, three bandits entered the grocery at 1,078 Rogers Avenue, Brooklyn, and held up Duncan Kennedy, the manager; Walter Bogert, his assistant, and Mrs. Constance Fischer of 1,056 Robers Avenue, a customer. They took $100 from the cash register and $2 from Kennedy's pocket.

Magistrate Francis A. Mancuso, in the Harlem Court yesterday, held John Pellitteri, 35 years old, of 51 Henry Street, in $50,000 bail for a hearing tomorrow on suspicion of being one of four men who on Dec. 27 last, held up and robbed two men in a store at 1,901 Lexington Avenue of $5,000 in money and jewelry.

James O'Day, 43 years old, of 157 East Twenty-sixth Street, was held in $25,000 bail for examination this afternoon on a charge of stealing $98 from the rectory of All Saints' Roman Catholic Church, Madison Avenue and 129th Street, yesterday morning.

Rocco Alberti, 25 years old, of 203 East 107th Street, was held without bail for a hearing on March 15 when arraigned in the Washington Heights Court on a charge of being one of three men who stole $205 from Bernard Goldberg of 77 East 119th Street on a 116th Street surface car.

Supreme Court Justice Bijur yesterday awarded $500 a month alimony and $1,250 counsel fee to Mrs. Blanche Steiner, pending a suit against Julius Steiner, fur manufacturer, for separation. Mrs. Steiner alleged that her husband had been attentive to other women and stated that while at a dancing club in the upper Broadway district one night with a party of friends she saw her husband there with another woman.

Mrs. Steiner said that her husband refused to keep a dinner engagement they had made one night, and when she complained he said, "Who were you before I married you? I bought you and paid for you and I will get you to eat out of my hand."

Mrs. Louise M. McCullough received one of the largest alimony allowances made in the local courts in recent years in a suit heard yesterday for separation against Edwin C. McCullough, banker and exporter, head of E. C. McCullough & Co., at 20 Broad St. Supreme Court Justice Erlanger granted $500 a week and a counsel fee of $15,000, based on representations concerning Mr. McCullough's earnings as shown by his income tax reports.

Larceny Verdict on Lindner Quashed

The verdict of a jury convicting David Lindner, realty dealer and contractor, of 1,349 Fifty-second Street, Brooklyn, on a charge of alleged grand larcency in the first degree in connection with the sale of a house, was quashed by Judge Crain in General Sessions yesterday. The court decided that the verdict was not supported by the evidence and was contrary to law, and a new trial was ordered.

MARIE ANTOINETTE'S SUITE BRINGS $4,000

Fourteen arm chairs and a settee of the best Louis XVI. design, upholstered in fine Beauvais tapestry, known as the Marie Antoinette suite, No. 99 in the catalogue and supposed to have belonged to the French Queen, brought the highest price at the first day of the sale of the Shippen-Burd collection of furniture at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon, going to H. Lionel for $4,000.

The suite comes, with the collection, from the Burd School for Orphan Girls in Philadelphia, which was founded and furnished with beautiful antique furniture by Mrs. Shippen-Burd, the Marie Antoinette drawing room suite being the treasure of the place. The school has recently removed to a new home, and the furniture, including the famous Marie Antoinette suite, the Board of Trustees decided to sell and turn into a fund to provide for the higher education of some of the pupils.

Among other of the higher prices of yesterday's sale, No. 84, a pair of English inlaid satinwood knife boxes, with panels of burr walnut and mahogany acorn finials, sold to Henry for $350; No. 78, a set of early American mahogany extension dining tables, in five sections, with rectangular and semicircular tops, on vase-shaped pedestals with tapering reeded legs and brass-socket feet, sold to Seaman, agent, for $950, and a fine old Duncan Phyfe mahogany extension dining table, with double square voluted supports, and reeded square tapering legs and brass paw feet, sold for $440. No. 100, a pair of French carved and gilded convex mirrors, sold to Henry for $300, and No. 103, an English mahogany tall clock of the Chippendale period, eighteenth century, went to Bernet, agent, for $310.

An early American mantle, No. 117, with centre medallion showing nymphs and funeral urn, was bought by Henry for $210, and Miss R. H. Lorenz, agent, purchased No. 118, another early American mantle with two Ionic columnar pilasters, for $210. This was of black and of white-veined black marble. The returns for the day were $12,980. The sale will be continued this afternoon.

BOY SCOUTS HOLD MEETING.

Representatives from all parts of the city took part yesterday in the program of the eleventh annual meeting of the Boy Scouts of America at the Hotel Commodore. Colin N. Livingston of Washington, D. The other officers elected were: President Harding, Honorary President; Woodrow Wilson, William Howard Taft, Daniel Carter Beard and William G. NEW YORK, TUESDAY, MARCH 8, 1921.

A GOOD BEGINNING.

With Secretary HUGHES's admonition to Panama and Costa Rica to cease their senseless bickering and with the reporting to the Senate of the treaty with Colombia by the Foreign Relations Committee a good beginning has been made in the management of foreign affairs by the new Administration. We have too long delayed the ratification of the treaty with Colombia. As the principal beneficiary of the series of events which deprived Colombia of her most valuable province, we are morally bound to make reparation. The resumption of treaty relations with that country will have a good influence far beyond the immediate scope and application of the compact. It will be an assurance to the people of South and Central America of the uprightness of our international dealings and will deprive mischief-makers of an opportunity to stir up ill-will.

The country will note with satisfaction, also, that the proposal to make an immediate separate peace with Germany is no longer under consideration. Even Mr. DAVID J. HILL is reported as saying that an unconditional peace with Germany now would be "a blot on our flag." It would be more than that. In view of the most recent exhibitions of the German spirit, the adoption of the Knox resolution would necessarily be construed as evidence of our sympathy with Germany in her resistance to the efforts of the Allies to compel her to meet her just obligations. It would be a betrayal of the cause of civilization, which, it appears, is not yet completely won.

THE TWELVE-HOUR DAY.

In The Survey for March 5 are given the results of an inquiry into the "long day" of workers in steel mills. It was carried out for the Cabot Fund and appears to have been conducted in a generally impartial spirit. Thus, in the personal interviews with the operatives, both sides are given. Many of the men think the twelve-hour day intolerably oppressive, but few of them would favor a reduction to eight hours unless the same wages were paid for the shorter day. Several highly paid workmen were found who declared themselves "well satisfied" to be on a shift of from eleven to thirteen hours for their average of $20 to $25 a day. One man who had in 1913 gone on the eight-hour day in the armor-plate department at Homestead liked the change very well, but admitted that he did not always know what to do with his spare time. He "hangs round the house" or "goes down the street." When he meets twelve-hour men coming or going to their jobs, they ask him: "What's the matter, ain't you working?"

This is all very human, as is the testimony of men bitterly averse to the long day, but is hardly conclusive. The fundamental difficulty is that of the necessarily continuous operation of steel mills. The metal cannot be allowed to cool off. Until recently the possibility of three shifts of eight hours, instead of two of twelve, has scarcely been admitted. Indeed, the twelve-hour day used to go with a seven-day week, when the mills were running. But several years ago the stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation voted to abolish seven-day labor and also that "steps should be taken" to bring the twelve-hour day to an end. Some steps have been taken. More are in contemplation. In the end, there is little doubt the twelve-hour shift in rolling-mills will be given up.

It has been given up in most British shops—shops which, even under the assumed handicap of a three-shift day, are now cutting prices to underbid foreign competitors. Several American plants have gone over to the eight-hour day. Among them are the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, the Inland Steel Company at Indiana Harbor, and the International Harvester Company at South Chicago. These concerns all work blast furnaces and do it on the three-shift day. The movement will doubtless spread. Ways to surmount the difficulties may be suggested by the committee already at work on the subject for the Steel Corporation. Even the economic argument may be found to be, in the long run, as favorable to the shorter day as is the argument from discontent and human wastage. One mill manager who had made the reduction in hours states that "the possible energy which a man can put into his work in each working hour is greatly increased." But he is frank enough to add that to "harness this new energy will take time."

AN APPEAL FOR MERCY.

It was Lady HOLLAND, if we remember aright, who said to a budding poet at one of her receptions: "I am sorry to hear you are going to publish a poem. Can't you suppress it?" A similar appeal would be made by a suffering public to the ex-statesmen who are threatening it with a flood of controversial books. After ex-Secretary LANSING we are to have a long line of former officials, down to the ex-President's private stenographer, who have "contracted with publishers" to pour forth their griefs and joys of reminiscence. Mr. WILSON'S dentist and chauffeur will doubtless be added to the list in time.

It is so easy not to write such things as are contemplated that the wonder deepens why men will do it. But no legal process that we know of can be invoked against them in advance, and there appears to be nothing for it but to brace ourselves against the coming indiscretions and ineptitudes.

MR. COLBY'S RECORD.

Mr. BAINBRIDGE COLBY'S appointment as Secretary of State, a little more than a year ago, was received by the country with surprise if not with misgiving. His previous record, though creditable, had not indicated any special fitness for the great problems of America's foreign relations. His frequent changes of political allegiance had been considered as indicating some degree of instability, rather than, as would perhaps have been more accurate, a questing spirit devoted to the search for truth and unwilling to make the necessary compromises with unsatisfactory substitutes. In the circumstances the general reaction to Mr. COLBY'S appointment was not surprising.

It is a pleasure to record the opinion that Mr. COLBY grew up to his office. Serious duties have been laid upon the State Department during the past year, and Mr. COLBY has performed them well. Nor has his duty been confined to mere perfunctory endorsement of the President's decisions. While the history of Mr. WILSON'S last year is still imperfectly known, it is certain that in many cases, whether through necessity or from choice, he left to Mr. COLBY much of the actual direction of foreign relations, if not the formulation of foreign policy. Whatever the late President may have meant at the time by "some one whose mind will go more willingly along with mine," the event showed that Mr. COLBY was to have a good deal of responsibility.

It is generally understood that the note of Aug. 10 last, laying down the American attitude toward the Russian problem, was the work of the Secretary of State, though, of course, expressing ideas approved by the President. In the recent and serious problems of communications, mandates and related difficulties Mr. COLBY had valuable assistance from Mr. NORMAN H. DAVIS and Mr. ROLAND S. MORRIS, but he was a very real, active and efficient Secretary of State. Democracies often have to record the melancholy story of men from whom great things were expected before they were tested by the responsibility of high office. It is pleasant now and then to offset their record with a case like that of Mr. COLBY, from whom much valuable public service was received.

THE RIPENING RAILWAY QUESTION.

It seems odd to find the Railway Labor Board issuing orders in cases which it holds are not before it, but which ought to be before it, which both parties to the controversy have unsuccessfully tried to bring before it. The theory of the Transportation act is that it is contrary to public interest that railways and their workers should come to an open break with each other until procedure before the board shall have drawn out the merits of the controversy for consideration by public opinion. The unions have done their best to get the "national agreements" before the board, and the railways have obstructed it. The railways have done their best to get the question of wages before the board, and the board has taken the unions' view that wages are something to be considered in connection with rates, and that is a question for the Interstate Commerce Commission, not cognizable by the Labor Board. The view of the workers is that wages must be paid according to the standard of living, and that the financial ability of the railways to pay has nothing to do with the case. Receivers' money is as good as any other, in the view of the unions. That is so, but the unions are learning that receivers' wages have as little to do with the necessities of the workers, or the standard of living, as wages have to do with freight and passenger rates, under the law.

It has been enacted into a statute that labor is not a commodity, to be valued by its worth in results, or by comparison with other current wages, and labor claims statutory exemption for any and all acts done in defense of its standard of living. But what shall be done when the undertaking cannot meet labor's demands? If a receiver has not money for wages, the answer of the court is that expenses must be reduced to what the collections will cover. This has been pressed so far that a growing country sees railways torn up and commerce restricted to what the remaining railways can carry.

The point is hardly less pressing in all industries than in the one now so acute between the railways and their workers. In all trades there is a disposition to settle what wages "ought" to be paid by argument in the first place, and in the second place by duress, either of legal compulsion or by conspiracy in restraint of trade. The Railway Labor Board represents the statutory effort to compel the railways to pay adjudged wages, regardless of financial capacity. The strike, or threat to strike, represents the extra-legal duress practiced by unions, regardless of law or morals or public interests. The Labor Board has no power to do anything beyond publish its findings, and its decisions as yet have been more on procedure than substance. The Transportation act now is in danger of going the way of the Erdman act, the Newlands act and the several arbitrations under them, until labor refused to arbitrate longer and appealed to Congress and the President. That is how the country got the Adamson law and the "national agreement," under which railway facilities, like labor, are not a commodity to be regulated by supply and demand, but are to be reduced according to questions of humanity as interpreted by union leaders. What shall be done when labor refuses alike arbitration and submission to legal process?

EXPANSION OR LIMITATION?

When Secretary DANIELS talked naval expansion on a big scale it was with the reservation that a navy as strong as any other in the world would not be necessary if the great Powers agreed to limit armaments. Mr. DANIELS always declared for an international conference to take up the question of preventing competitive building. In one annual report after another he had something to say about the authorization to the President in the Naval act of 1916 to call a conference to promote peace.

In his remarks at the Navy League dinner in Washington Secretary DENBY declared for "a fighting navy, a navy prepared for any contingency, a navy as large as that of any other country in the world," but he did not associate his desire with the idea of a limitation conference. That seems to be the difference between the points of view of Mr. DANIELS and Mr. DENBY. The new Secretary was an enlisted man in the Spanish war and a sergeant of marines in the late war. It is no injustice to him to say that he talked about naval expansion at the Navy League dinner as men in the ranks, who are militant and not restrained by discretion, are prone to do.

It is said that the new Secretary of War, JOHN W. WEEKS, who has been a member of the Board of Visitors of the Naval Academy and who commanded the Second Division of the auxiliary naval force on the Atlantic Coast in the Spanish war, intimated at the dinner that he was not in complete accord with the Denby program. It remains to be seen whether President HARDING, who realizes that reduction of taxation is the great question before the American people today, will advocate expansion, as urged by the new Secretary of the Navy, or will agree with Secretary WEEKS that there can be such a thing as too much naval expansion; that is to say, unnecessary naval expansion. "How," asks Senator BORAH, "are you going to reduce taxation unless you reduce the cost of armaments? Ninety per cent. of our expenditures today goes for wars past and future," and he adds: "If we cannot get an agreement to stop naval competition, then we should stop talking about reduction of expenditures and taxation."

In June there is to be an Imperial Conference in England. Concerning the naval policy of the empire, which will be up for discussion, The Toronto Mail says: "The British Government will have the responsibility of considering whether it should renew construction to offset the large addition the United States will make to its capital ships." If there should be no conference of the Powers to limit armaments and the United States should undertake to complete, to the last ship, the three-year program, which aims to surpass British naval strength, Great Britain, although she has not laid down a capital ship for several years, would probably enter the field of competition. The United States and Great Britain, building ship for ship year after year, would provide a spectacle that neither nation would be proud of, and taxes could not be reduced. President HARDING'S urgent duty, therefore, is to call, with the least possible delay, a conference to bring about limitation of naval armaments. Unless it is done, how idle it will be to talk about a return to "normalcy."

THE "PATRONAGE."

Now the momentous question of Federal "patronage" is giving the brethren here and in every other State anxious days and nights. The word itself is a satire on some of our political methods. "Patronage" is properly ecclesiastical, the right to present to a benefice. It has been transformed or degraded into the right to appoint to office, and secondarily to the offices themselves. Legally and constitutionally there is no right to patronage in the party, State and local leaders, the Senators and the other gentlemen who recommend appointments to the President and wrangle among themselves or with him as to the "distribution" of Federal jobs. In whatever sense taken, "patronage" is one of the most perilous gifts that Presidents and party leaders have to quarrel about. Every appointment, however strong the political "backing" it has, brings more trouble to the maker and recommenders than it does pleasure to the appointee.

This is usually how a President makes his first enemies, often how he makes his most numerous enemies. The true way for a President to give the most general satisfaction to his party and his countrymen is to make the best appointment he can to every office. Necessarily, he must rely largely upon local advice; but he can always have unprejudiced inquiries made and can prevent, as far as the ordinary chances of error even with the best intentions permit, the foisting upon the Federal payroll of men whose main title to office is their political service. Mr. HARDING has had political experience enough to make him wary in the matter of appointments. His Cabinet, as a whole, pleases the country. In his choice of Ambassadors and Ministers and in filling the great administrative posts may he be equally successful! Sour faces and grumbling among the faithful can't be avoided. The best use he can make of the power of "patronage" is to appoint, so far as possible, men who in each case are judged worthy of the post by their proved qualities of energy and character and general fitness, irrespective of party service or the insistence of party leaders.

His is a hard task. Inevitably he will make some mistakes. The country will be forbearing in its criticisms so long as it is convinced that he is not distributing gifts at a Republican Christmas tree, but trying to pick out competent men.

THE COST OF COURTS.

Discussion of the insufficient pay of Federal Judges lends interest to the inquiry made by Mr. ALEXANDER B. ANDREWS of the North Carolina Bar into the "Per Capita Cost of Courts." We all agree, except when the compensation of Judges is in question, that the function of the courts is fundamental; that they are the essential protection of our rights. Mr. ANDREWS shows from the census and from State statistics that the average cost per capita of the Supreme Court in the several States is 3.352 cents, of the trial courts 14.479 cents. How Lilliputian these figures look by the size of the $6.05 which is the average per capita cost of State Government. Naturally, Nevada, with 77,000 inhabitants, shows the highest per capita cost for the support of the Supreme Court, but even there it is less than 50 cents. In Texas, with more than 4,660,000 people, the per capita cost is .654 cents.

The cost of trial courts is lowest in Maine, a little over 2 cents, but there the six Justices of the Supreme Court do the trial work. The average salary of the 284 Justices of the Supreme Court of the forty-eight States is $7,185. The salary of a United States District Judge is $7,500. Five States pay their Justices of the Supreme Court as much. Twelve pay them more. Since State Judges are underpaid, as a rule, this comparison is significant. A Federal District Judge gets the same as a member of Congress, though the latter works only a part of the time for two years, and is able to follow his profession or business outside. Moreover, to most members of Congress their legislative service is an episode, not a career.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Both Sides Offended by Fairness.

Surely the journalist's life is not a happy one! At any rate it is not an easy one, for he, seemingly more than anybody else, is exposed to attack from both sides in any war, actual or metaphorical, that is going on. It is among the commonest—and saddest—of his experiences to be charged by each of the antagonists with favoring and serving the other, and he is lucky if the accusation is not accompanied by genial suggestions that the favoring and serving are done for a price paid by the fiendish foe.

Finely illustrating this peculiarity of the journalistic lot is a letter just received from a reader of THE TIMES who announces that for a while he is not to be a reader. Now, usually, when a subscriber feels moved to the desperate measure of stopping his paper—that ultimate form of condemnation and punishment—it is because of disagreement with opinions expressed on the editorial page. Objection to fair and impartial presentation of the news has disappeared, for the most part.

But this particular stopper—or suspender, rather, for he writes that he is coming back some day—either cannot have read the editorial pages of THE TIMES at all, or else he has forgotten what he has seen there from the very beginning of the war, for his grievance is that it is an exponent of bitterness toward the British, and that its antagonism toward them of late has found display in telling of happenings in Ireland, in telling about the visit to this country of Mrs. MACSWINEY and in giving too little space to the burning here of a British flag.

And he wants to know why the widow of Cork's Lord Mayor deserves more attention than the widow of a policeman assassinated in Ireland by the Sinn Feiners!

They Ought to Compare Notes.

Perhaps this grieved or indignant critic of THE TIMES would change his mind as to its leaning away from his mother country—he is a Canadian—and toward the Sinn Feiners if he could have a talk with the representatives of Sinn Fein in this city. They, curiously enough, are quite as sure that THE TIMES is pro-British as he is that it is anti-British. What's more, they say so, in far stronger language than he uses.

As a matter of fact, of course, THE TIMES is not pro-British and it is not anti-Irish. It is an American paper, printed in America for Americans—and for such outlanders in Canada and elsewhere as care to read it. As occasion arises, it has and expresses editorial opinions as to what the British and the Irish are doing, just as it does in the case of other peoples the world over. Its sympathies are determined, as regards folk abroad as at home, not by reasons of race or politics, but by the quality of the facts under consideration at any given time.

But always it states the facts on which the opinions are based, giving them the space it thinks they deserve as news. From that point of view Mrs. MACSWINEY certainly had a claim to more news space than did or does a widow who, though equally worthy of sympathy, has not made herself, or been made, an object of general attention.

Simon Says Wiggle-waggle.

In the behavior of Germany's representative and spokesman at the great conference in London there is a reminder of a game that used to be known to all children and probably still is known to all of them. In it a circle or line of players were expected to put up their thumbs, to put down their thumbs or to waggle their thumbs in exact response to orders given by an imaginary Simon: "Simon says 'Thumbs up!' Simon says 'Thumbs down!' Simon says 'Wiggle-waggle!'" Whoever failed in instant obedience became "it" and suffered penalties grave or gay, according to the temperament or ingenuity of the drill master of the moment.

So the Dr. SIMONS of today says first one thing and then another, not about thumbs, but about reparations. To his astonishment, real or pretended, the other players in this old game keep their thumbs in just about the position taken at the start, and while there may be slight variations of elevation as the game proceeds, the direction remains the same, and they never, never waggle at all!

That is very discouraging for the Dr. SIMONS. What he "says" seems to be quite unheeded and the forfeits he mentions as the penalty of disobedience are treated almost as if it was not believed he meant to impose them!

Marriage Means Deposition.

Swiss conservatism, yielding reluctantly to the time-spirit, at last has opened the pulpit to women, but though they are allowed, after preparatory studies of languages and theology exactly like those made by men, to assume the ministerial title and exercise the ministerial functions, they are to lose all their ministerial powers and privileges if they marry.

Why? In most countries such an ordinance as this would be regarded as against public policy.

It is, of course, quite a different thing from insistence on a celibate clergy, and by no means as easily defensible. If married men can preach, there is no obvious reason—obvious out of Switzerland, that is—why married women cannot do so.

A good many women, everywhere, according to some authorities, will preach whether they are allowed to do it in pulpits or not, but that, of course, is another story.

Ex-Presidents in the Senate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Should our Presidents have to work for a living after leaving office? No! This country has, according to law, two Senators for each State in Congress. Such men work for the benefit of their individual States largely. Our country is now so large we have no voice solely for the United States at large. We should have our ex-Presidents Senators at large for the United States at a salary of $25,000 a year.

A CITY PASTORAL.

Like yellow-petaled flowers against the gray,
Then when beauty stoops to cover garish street and building over
And the earth and sky are sleepy as the day—
Do they dream, the earth beneath us and the misty sky above
Of the time when once our paven city ways
Were but wood and field and forest, where the dryads danced and chorused,
And there was not any clamor in the days?
Do they dream and hear the soughing of old trees that long are mold?
Do they hear the singing sound of little brooks?
Do they scent again the blooming and the woodsy sweet perfuming
Of hidden flowers in quiet leaf-bound nooks?
Perhaps they see the wraiths of birds and wild things scurry by,
Perhaps the sky may dream the touch again
Of delicate tree-fingers, whose gentle pressure lingers,
Remembered as the touch of love and pain.
Oh, earth and sky are verities, and all that lies between
Is space whose trimming once was fine and fair.
There was green along the byways that are changed to paven highways,
And there once was breath of Spring upon the air.
When the sky with dusk is drowsy, and the earth is covered up
With a misty mantle tremulous and deep,
Then I'm sure they're dreaming, dreaming, that the city's just a seeming—
And the forest whispers to them as they sleep!

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With the general principle laid down in THE NEW YORK TIMES editorial of Sunday, Feb. 20, on "Dry Law Enforcement," which is summed up in the concluding sentence:

The point is that the practice of taking into private hands the duties the Constitution imposes upon public officers is inherently bad and of evil augury.

I am in absolute, even almost militant accord. There can be no legitimate complaint respecting the tone and temper of your editorial. But in so far as it carries the unavoidable inference that either the Anti-Saloon League or the "Yonkers Plan" are in any material respect at variance with the principle so laid down by it, THE TIMES does us an injustice by giving an erroneous impression respecting a question of fact that is not only material but vital.

From the official statement of the "Yonkers Plan," among numerous other things which reiterate the same principle in an effort to make the point clear, I quote as follows:

Relief Only Through Officials Backed by Sentiment.

No citizens' volunteer law enforcement movement can ever really succeed by assuming the responsibility or attempting to do the work of the officials. The reason is obvious and self-evident—inherent in the very nature of the case. No volunteer movement of any kind has any official or legal standing. There cannot be any permanent satisfactory enforcement of the law except through the officials who are a part of the machinery of government itself.

Therefore it is obvious that relief in any community from conditions of lawlessness can only come through securing honest, effective activity on the part of the regularly constituted officials. This cannot be secured unless there is a healthy, normal public sentiment back of them in favor of law enforcement, and any effort which does not involve arousing the public, as well as making direct demands upon the officials, will fall short. Any other policy weakens self-government instead of strengthening it. That is why, instead of trying to "deal" with officials who might promise everything and do little or nothing, we appeal direct to the people and let them deal with the officials. This policy develops and strengthens public sentiment by agitation, and teaches the people how to make self-government a reality.

We believe that THE NEW YORK TIMES is performing a public service of great value in helping make clear that there is no short cut or royal road to law enforcement, and that nothing can relieve officials from their responsibility or the public from its responsibility to make it politically safe for conscientious officials to discharge their duty efficiently. And we are sure that THE TIMES will not begrudge the Anti-Saloon League or the "Yonkers Plan" or the undersigned full recognition of the fact that we are operating upon the very basis laid down by THE TIMES itself as essential to the safety and permanence of our form of government.

Anti-Volstead.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You are to be congratulated upon the publication of Charles Hanson Towne's article, "Too Much Verboten," in last Sunday's TIMES. He expresses the honest opinions of the vast majority of the American people on the tyrannical and undemocratic Eighteenth Amendment, forced upon us by a group of sour-faced, sour-feeling, so-called "reformers," who, being either too old or too grouchy to enjoy life, are trying to compel others to "exist" as they do.

As one who travels throughout the country and comes in contact with all sorts of people, I can safely say that the people (even those who formerly favored prohibition) are disgusted with the amendment and are looking forward to the Sixty-seventh Congress to repeal at least the Volstead act, an act that has created more criminals than any other act ever known. For reference, please see any waiter anywhere, any policeman in any town, any revenue man and any traveling man. M. F. E.

Philadelphia, March 6, 1921.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Too Much Verboten," by Charles Hanson Towne, appearing in the Magazine Section of THE TIMES of today, touches an answering chord in the breast of every American who values his freedom as it has not been touched since the days when James Otis and Patrick Henry hurled defiance in the teeth of the tyrant.

During a recent service on the Federal Grand Jury I have been permitted to view at close range the servile acquiescence of some of my fellow-citizens to official tyranny involved in the enforcement of prohibition. Mr. Towne is right. We are a lot of whipped dogs, not a free people. It is time we were up and doing. Let us insist that the Volstead act be repealed.

General Smuts as Judge.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The magnificent letter of General Smuts of South Africa, printed by you this morning, is a contribution to history which, in the study of the great man about whom it is concerned, will be considered an original document written by one who played a prominent part in the great drama to which his subject furnished the heroic elements.

It is refreshing to turn away from the vituperation, scandal and misrepresentation with which an unreasoning and partisan hate has sought to besmirch the fame of the great man who shed such a lustre upon the American name to one on the opposite side of the globe whose vision is not dimmed by the mists and vapors of jealousy and of passion which befog the judgment of Mr. Wilson's compatriots. Mr. Wilson's name will live when his detractors shall have been forgotten. While I have no delusions regarding the League of Nations as a means of establishing permanent peace by the abolition of future wars, yet I do regard it as the grandest effort ever made by man to secure that result. It was certainly worth a trial, even if it merely succeeded in staving off war to some indefinite future, or if it only taught men the futility of any such efforts in a sin-cursed world like ours.

One thing is certain, and that the Wilson haters should not be allowed to forget. Whatever Senatorial—or other—wisdom may undertake in bringing about world peace, it must build on Mr. Wilson's foundations. There is no escape from that. To change the figure to one for which General Smuts seems partial, all future workers will have to follow the lead of "the little Child."

A Filipino Flag.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When the Japanese liner Shinyo Maru docked at Manila on the morning of Jan. 27 last the Filipino flag was flown from the foremast. The next day the Manila newspapers asked why the Filipino flag instead of the Stars and Stripes was flown. The port authorities admitted they could do nothing about the matter, as it was not illegal, but a strong hint was thrown out about breach of courtesy to the United States. Upon leaving the harbor the next afternoon the Stars and Stripes was at the masthead.

The opinion aboard the ship among the passengers, of whom the writer was one, centred on the point that as the Filipinos are now clamoring for independence the Japanese lose no opportunity to show sympathy toward the cause.

GREET GENERAL BOOTH.

Editors and Publishers Send Him a Birthday Message.

The following message was sent yesterday to General Bramwell Booth of the Salvation Army at San Francisco:

"Understanding that the Commonwealth Club, Union League Club and the newspaper men of San Francisco are gathering at the Palace Hotel today to honor you as international leader of the Salvation Army upon your sixty-fifth birthday we desire to extend across the continent this expression of our goodwill and to say we hope you will be spared for many another birthday as the service for human relief which the Salvation Army represents marches forward."

It bore these signatures:

100,000 Visitors at Trade Exhibition, Greatest in City's History.

LEIPSIC, March 6 (Associated Press).—The Leipsic Fair was formally opened today with 15,000 exhibitors and 100,000 visitors, more than half of whom were buyers representing twenty-five countries. There were about 100 American buyers, representing firms scattered from New York to San Francisco. The Americans bought chiefly toys and novelties not obtainable in the United States, such as Noah's Arks, Santa Clauses and various Bavarian woodwork toys and trinkets in which the peasant workers excel.

The prices on fabrics, porcelains and many other staple products were so high in dollars, as compared with the prices in marks, that only extremely novel offerings tempted the Americans.

The London reparation conference was the chief subject of discussion among both buyers and exhibitors, who expect its outcome to have a marked effect on the exchange rate and the sales during the fair, which will continue seven days. The fair is the largest in the 800 years it has been held, and is scattered all over the great city in permanent as well as temporary buildings. The streets have a carnival appearance, and numerous advertising parades are being held.

Swiss, Czechoslovakian and Austrian manufacturers each have a building to themselves, and many British, French and Italian buyers are here. The general lament among the exhibitors is the absence of Russians, who in former years were among the best customers.

REFUSE AMERICAN GOODS.

Montevideo Merchants Say Consignments Arrive Badly Packed.

MONTEVIDEO, March 7.—Many merchants of this city have refused to accept delivery of American goods consigned to them because, instead of arriving boxed, as requested, they came in bales, and many articles were broken. In some cases legal action against the American exporters has been begun. Last night's edition of El Dia published photographs of broken bales and remarked that the situation should receive the attention of the United States authorities.

"Such occurrences," the newspaper declared, "lead to strained commercial relations between the United States and Uruguay. Since European production has been augmented Uruguayan merchants have received better treatment from European manufacturers, who carefully fill orders. The reduced prices at which these goods are sold give them a place above American products. The difference in exchange rates and the irritation which accumulated during the war, when American manufacturers took advantage of having no competitors, appear to be bearing fruit."

JAPANESE RESERVED RIGHTS IN MANDATE

LIKE MESOPOTAMIA CLAIM

WASHINGTON, March 7 (Associated Press).—Japan accepted the mandate for former German possessions in the Pacific north of the equator, including the Island of Yap, with the reservation that Japanese citizens should not be subjected "to a discriminatory and disadvantageous treatment" in other mandated territories.

This was disclosed in the complete text of the mandate granted to Japan by the League of Nations, which was obtained today at the State Department. The reservation stipulated by Japan was similar to the one advanced by the American Government in reference to Mesopotamia in its recent note to the League of Nations, in which exception also was taken to the declaration in the preamble of the mandate that it was conferred in accordance with an agreement between "the principal allied and associated powers."

The United States has maintained that it was never a party to the agreement by which Yap was conferred upon Japan and it has also insisted upon equal commercial opportunities for all nationals in the mandated territories. Japan's contention for equal opportunities is understood to apply particularly to the mandated territories south of the equator in the Pacific awarded to Australia.

Limit Missionaries to League States.

Besides the grant of freedom only to nationals of the States members of the League of Nations for the prosecution of their calling as missionaries in the mandated territory, the text of the mandate, in the opinion of officials, is of particular interest to the United States in that it specifically provides that the consent of the Council of the League is required for any modification of its terms.

The Council of the League in its recent reply to the American note concerning the award of Yap to Japan stated that this was a question which would have to be settled between the principal allied and associated powers, as the function of the League was only an administrative one.

"The mandatary shall have full power of administration and legislation over the territory subject to the present mandate as an integral portion of the Empire of Japan, and may apply the laws of the Empire of Japan to the territory, subject to such local modifications as circumstances may require. The mandatary shall promote to the utmost the material and moral well-being and the social progress of the inhabitants of the territory subject to the present mandate.

"The mandatary shall see that the slave trade is prohibited and that no forced labor is permitted, except for essential public works and services, and then only for adequate remuneration. The mandatary shall also see that the traffic in arms and ammunition is controlled in accordance with principles analogous to those laid down in the convention relating to control of the arms traffic signed on Sept. 10, 1919, or in any convention amending the same. The supply of intoxicating spirits and beverages to the natives shall be prohibited.

Military Bases Forbidden.

"The military training of the natives otherwise than for purposes of internal police and the local defense of the territory shall be prohibited. Furthermore, no military or naval bases shall be established or fortifications erected in the territory.

"Subject to the provisions of any local law for the maintenance of public order and public morals, the mandatary shall insure in the territory freedom of conscience and the free exercise of all forms of worship and shall allow all missionaries, nationals or any State member of the League of Nations, to enter into, travel and reside in the territory for the purpose of prosecuting their calling.

"The mandatary shall make it the Council of the League of Nations an annual report to the satisfaction of the Council, containing the measures taken to carry out the obligations assumed under the foregoing articles.

"The consent of the Council of the League of Nations is required for any modification of the terms of the present mandate. The mandatary agrees that, if any dispute whatever should arise between the mandatary and another member of the League of Nations relating to the interpretation or the application of the provisions of the mandate, such dispute, if it cannot be settled by negotiation, shall be submitted to the Permanent Court of International Justice provided for by Article XIV. of the covenant of the League of Nations."

Discriminatory Action Barred.

"From the fundamental spirit of the League of Nations and as to the question of the interpretation of the covenant, his Imperial Japanese Majesty's Government has a firm conviction in the justice of the claim they have hitherto made for the inclusion of the clause concerning the assurance of equal opportunities for trade and commerce in 'C' mandates. But from the spirit of the conciliation, of co-operation and their reluctance to see the question unsettled any longer, they have decided to agree to the issue of the mandate in its present form. That decision, however, should not be considered as an acquiescence on the part of his Imperial Japanese Majesty's Government in the submission of Japanese subjects to a discriminatory and disadvantageous treatment in the mandated territories, nor have they thereby discarded their claim that the rights and interests enjoyed by Japanese subjects in these territories in the past should be fully respected."

BRONX WANTS STATION.

N. Y. C. Head and Merchants Discuss Building at 149th Street.

A. H. Smith, President of the New York Central Railroad Company, attended a conference of the Railroad Committee of the Bronx Board of Trade yesterday at the invitation of the board. Railroad matters were discussed, as was the proposed construction of a large station and office building by the railroad at 149th Street and Mott Avenue.

The New York Central yards are, at this point, and several years before the war elaborate plans were made for the station, but were never acted upon.

Secretary Reid of the Bronx board refused to reveal the details of yesterday's meeting, which was held behind closed doors, saying that a report would be issued later. It was learned, however, on excellent authority, that the railroad has no intention of reviving the project now.

Prominent merchants in the board pointed out that such a project would eventually bring many of the offices of the railroad to the Bronx and would stimulate transient business and building of hotels in the central district.

DAZZLING COSTUMES FOR ARTISTS' BALL

SOCIETY TO ATTEND AFFAIR

Lenore Strunsky's Double-Decollete Gown Seen at Dress Rehearsal in Studio.

The Independent Artists are going to show that they, personally, can be more independent than the pictures they paint. Next Friday evening they will dress up in the most independent togs they can find and sport them in a grand fancy dress ball in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria.

There will be 1600 guests and the first half of that number had a dress rehearsal at the John Sloan Studio, 88 Washington Place, yesterday afternoon. Sixteen men and women were there to pose and have flashlights taken. The ciphers didn't come at all and Mrs. Sloan had all she could do to provide dressing rooms for the 16. It was a gay assemblage.

The gayest was Mr. Sloan himself. Men shine upon fancy dress occasions. Mr. Sloan, being the President of the Independents, had also to glorify his office and he was really lovely to look upon. He was a shower, with his accompanying rainbow.

Mr. Sloan's rainbow is of batik and never was there a real rainbow to equal its brilliant shades of reds and blues. Being an independent rainbow, it is square, and when Mr. Sloan was first presented to the audience, at the dress rehearsal, the rainbow was stretched to its full size, like a screen, and from the centre of it protruded the head of the artist, wearing a demure skull cap and looking very much like those gentlemen at whose heads balls are thrown, so much a throw, at Coney Island, while below the rainbow there waved gayly a pair of feet in beautiful golden shoes.

Wears Shower Over Rainbow.

Over the rainbow he wore the shower—beautiful long strings of glittery beads. One was sure they represented a shower, for on the artist's head, on top of the skull cap, was a bouncing big bath sponge.

Get it? Bath sponge, hence bath, hence shower, shower is rain, hence rainbow. It was all quite logical. And the beautiful golden shoes were thrown in.

President Sloan was trying out his rainbow in this way to see how it suited his complexion—also to form a background against which the other fifteen Independents could pose for their flashlights. He made a wonderful appearance, but it was nothing to the rainbow when folded up, the artist's head still through the hole in the centre and the rest of it draping itself around him in folds, which, as he is an artist, must have been Grecian.

Mrs. E. H. Cahill reserved for herself the most demure of costumes, but she did not know what she represented. It was a little confusing. The nether part of the costume was blue denim, bifurcated, the lower part of overalls, worn with a short white jumper or middie blouse, with a scarlet tie, and on the head was tied a purple silk handkerchief in the style worn in pictures by old-time pirates. Was she a farmerette or a pirate?

"I suppose I might be a farmerette," said little Mrs. Cahill disconsolately, "but, oh, I would a great deal rather be a pirate."

Costume Decollete at Both Ends.

Another of the men looked altogether lovely in a purple kimono, with a nice little white table doily on his head, cap-like, drooping gracefully at the back. It was Fred Biesel. His character, however, did not seem clear to a casual observer, so Mrs. Sloan was interrogated.

"Fred, what are you besides being in my kimono?" she asked.

Ben Benn was a Mexican in linen trousers, a soft shirt, green plaid tie, scarf around his shoulders and waist. Mrs. Sloan was a Mexican, too, in wonderful wide silk scarf that came from Guadaloupe. Chicago was represented by Miss Mae Larsen, wearing a black knickerbocker costume and three Prince of Wales feathers in her hair. Myra Thomas was Colorado in rose pink kimono, nice and short, revealing long white hosiery.

Miss Lenore Strunsky was in green silk bifurcated garments, décolleté at both ends. She did not trouble with stockings at all. There was a nice little front part to the bodice, though not for much of it, and no back at all, but she wore a transparent jacket which was going ordinary society one better. Miss Helen Strunsky was in black satin with big pearl circlets for earrings and pearl beads.

Miss Frances Strain was the Pajama Girl, in bifurcated garments of soft orange satin, décolleté, with little black bands over the shoulders and birds of paradise feather or something like it in her hair. Estelle Bayliss wore the beautiful Chinese embroidered kimono that is to be the first prize for the best woman's costume on the floor the night of the ball.

Little Bibs Form Bodice.

Then there was Zarrah.

Zarrah is an Inca maiden, who is to dance as an Inca princess with six of her maidens at the ball. The Incas come from a warm country, so they are more particular about the decorations of their costumes than about the amount of material in them, and they run largely to head dresses. Zarrah wore a becoming one, coming modestly down over her ears, and with two feathers standing high in the centre of it.

The bodice, if you call it a bodice, was simple. It consisted of two little pointed bibs, one at the front and one at the back, meeting on the shoulders, and not anywhere else. To give freedom of motion, probably, there was nothing under the bibs, which reached halfway to the waist line, and there were held in place by a narrow band passing around the body.

From the waist line half way to the knees the figure was enclosed in a snugly fitting sheath of the material of which the bibs were made, yellow with decorations in striking designs, and from the lower edge a long fringe fell to below the knees. Inca princesses dance without shoes or stockings.

After the party had had a nice time having its pictures taken it adjourned, in costume, to Mrs. Tod Robbinson's, to tea. It went in taxis, not being willing to try the costumes on an outdoor public, and also being a little thinly clad, which made it possible for two taxis to carry the whole half of the Independents' ball.

Society to Be There.

Although the Independents are independent they are not going to manage without society at their ball. Headed by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the patronesses will be Mrs. Robert L. Gerry, Mrs. Ralph Pulitzer, Mrs. Newbold Leroy Edgar, Mrs. Edgerton Winthrop, Mrs. Ernest Poole and Miss Katherine Dreier among others.

Norman Trevor of "Enter Madame" and Frank Crowninshield of "Vanity Fair" are to be the judges of costume. The first prize for the best man's costume is to be a great secret until the award is made. Many boxes are being taken for the ball, and in one will be a party of distinguished Chinese.

SPURS SWANN ON ARNSTEIN

Rosalsky Wants Trial by July 1 or Will Dismiss Indictment.

Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday notified the District Attorney's Office that the indictment against Jules W. (Nicky) Arnstein would be dismissed if the prosecution failed to proceed to trial by July 1. Arnstein, recently tried by the Federal Court in Washington, when the jury disagreed, is to be tried again there, Assistant District Attorney Dooling told the court, and asked for postponement to April of the trial of the charges against him here.

Arnstein was indicted here a year ago, following the investigation of the Wall Street bond thefts. His attorney, W. J. Fallon, informed the court that he was ready for trial and questioned the intent of the District Attorney to proceed at any time to try the case, because of a lack of corroborative evidence.

DOUGHERTY RAISED TO CARDINAL RANK

POPE PLEADS FOR PEACE

ROME, March 7 (Associated Press).—Dennis J. Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia, took his place today among the princes of the Church after a secret consistory at which Pope Benedict announced the creation of six new Cardinals. The new American Cardinal succeeds the late Cardinal John Farley of New York.

As soon as this ceremony had ended for Master of the Ceremonies cried out for all outsiders to withdraw. The Pontiff and the Cardinals then were left alone to carry out their important task. The consistory opened with a prayer by the Pope, who afterward delivered an allocation in which he said he was rejoiced to be surrounded by the Cardinals, to whom he would like to give good news. But, unfortunately, the sadness of these times did not permit of this. In fact, it was the truth that actual war, civil disorders and dissensions continued in such a way as to make him anxious.

The Pontiff added that he believed he had profited by every occasion to endeavor to re-establish peace and tranquillity in human society as the Church had done in past centuries. The last occasion was at the celebration of the seventh centennial of the foundation of the Third Order of St. Francis, who, in his time, during savage struggles, succeeded through the Christian doctrines in re-establishing peace in the world.

"This peace, however, it is impossible to obtain now without renewing the private life of individuals," said the Pontiff. "Without this renewal the treaties of peace already concluded and signed will remain a dead letter.

"In fact, we witness in some countries bitter civil strife, with mournful, disastrous results. (The Pope here was alluding to the disorders in Italy.) Elsewhere we see races that were born and grown up in the same lands struggle in arms for this land inch by inch, thus sowing new seeds of discord. (Here the Pope was referring to Upper Silesia, Lithuania, Ukrainia, Poland and other small countries.)

"Besides we see ancient struggles renewed and the bursting out with appalling violence of crimes in contradiction to the laws of morality and humanity, which we condemn, from whatever side they come." (The Pope in this utterance had in view the situation in Ireland).

In conclusion the Pontiff said:

"All agree that the peace treaties concluded will lead to nothing unless the spirits of citizens are permeated by those sentiments of justice and charity which the Christian doctrines inculcate and which in the time of St. Francis were so efficacious. If in all individuals cupidity is repressed or turned to good ends, society will feel the beneficent effect; and also if from mutual fraternal love all classes of citizens feel as Christians, a reciprocal confidence will blossom, which will prove better than anything else in helping to establish and maintain peace."

The list of the new cardinals having been read, the Pope inquired as each name was pronounced, "Quid vobis videtur?" ("Has any one aught to say?"). To this each Cardinal present replied by simply rising to his feet, bowing and lifting his red hat as a token of content. Then the Pontiff proclaimed the new Cardinals.

FREED WITHOUT TRIAL.

After Seven Adjournments Auto Suspect Goes Home

Arthur S. Naylor, 20 years old, of Pittsburgh, who lives at 305 Heath Street, was freed from the Queens jail in Long Island City last evening after he had been brought into court from the jail on a writ of habeas corpus secured by his attorney, Jacob Visel of Manhattan.

The papers in the case showed that Naylor had been arrested on Jan. 25 last, and had been charged with the theft of an automobile from a man named Jacob Anton. The alleged theft was said to have been committed at Queens Road and Hillside Avenue, Jamaica. Following his arrest Naylor was arraigned in the Jamaica Magistrate's Court only on the short affidavit of the detective who made the arrest. He was not given a hearing and no bail was fixed. The police officials were waiting for Anton to appear and sign a complaint.

Justice Kelby was told that Anton was in Florida and that he could not get back to Queens before April 16. He said also that the case had been adjourned seven times in the Magistrate's Court.

"It seems preposterous that this man should be kept in jail without a hearing and without bail all this time," said Justice Kelby, as he granted the order for release.

PAUL M. POTTER, PLAYWRIGHT, DEAD

Paul Meredith Potter, the playwright, died yesterday in his apartments in the Murray Hill Baths, 113 West Forty-second Street, where he had lived for two years. An attendant went to Mr. Potter's rooms to call him in the early morning. Failing to arouse him, he called in a policeman. The latter summoned Dr. Thornhill of Flower Hospital, and he found that Mr. Potter had been dead for several hours. Death, he said, was due to ailments incident to advanced years.

Perhaps no work of Mr. Potter attracted more attention than did his dramatization of Du Maurier's novel "Trilby," first presented in March, 1895, at the Park Theatre in Boston, and in the same year by Beerbohm Tree at the Haymarket Theatre, London. It took the playwright three weeks after the rights had been obtained to turn out the play and four weeks later saw its opening in Boston. The play was pronounced a success before the first act was over.

"The simple tale of the love of Trilby and Little Billee and of Tabby, and of Tabby and the Laird, and the villainy of Svengali, was a play in itself," said Mr. Potter in an interview after the first presentation of the play. "I gave Svengali the most important part because the hypnotizing of Trilby by him was altogether the most dramatic part of the story."

Mr. Potter's family name was Walter Arthur MacLean, and he was born in Brighton, England, June 3, 1853. His father was head master of King Edward's School, at Bath, and the editor of the "Bibliotheca Classica." He went to India following graduation from school and assumed the new name of Paul Potter. During the early years of his career Mr. Potter was a journalist. He became the foreign editor of The New York Herald in 1876 and later became the London correspondent of his paper. In 1885 he became The Herald's dramatic critic and served in that capacity for three years, when he left The Herald and joined the editorial staff of The Chicago Tribune.

His first play, "The City Directory," was produced by the Russell Comedians in May, 1889, and this was followed by "The Ugly Duckling" in 1890, and next by "The World's Fair." For William H. Crane he wrote a comedy, "The American Minister," in 1892, and "Sheridan, or the Maid of Bath," in 1893 for E. H. Sothern. Other plays by Mr. Potter were "Our Country Cousins," "The Pacific Mail," "The Victoria Cross," "The Stag Party," "The Conquerors," "Under Two Flags," "The Red Kloof," "Notre Dame," "The School Girl," "Nancy Stair," "Barbara's Millions," "The Honor of the Family," "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge," "The Girl From Rector's," "Arsene Lupin" and "Israel."

Prof. Van Denberg, Heart Specialist, Is Again Summoned to Doorn.

DOORN, Holland, March 7.—Professor van Denberg, the specialist in heart diseases, who some time ago attended the former German Empress, has again been summoned to Doorn.

August Wilhelm, the fourth son of the former German rulers, who has been here several days, has advised friends in Germany that his mother's strength is decreasing steadily.

Dr. Haehner's bulletin, issued today, says that the former Empress is suffering from increasing swelling of the lower limbs, while the heart murmurs are growing more pronounced. During the last few days, however, she obtained some rest and her general condition is unchanged.

PLUMBERS' TRIAL IS BEGUN.

No Jurors Yet—Hettrick's "Former Jeopardy" Plea Overruled.

Selection of a jury to try seven individuals and plumbing corporations charged with violating the Donnelly Anti-Trust law began yesterday, and will continue today, before Supreme Court Justice McAvoy. The defendants are Charles A. Murphy, the Wells & Newton Company, Frank J. Fee, John L. Knight, Michael J. Canavan, David Diegan and Canavan & Diegan, Inc.

John T. Hettrick, William H. Chapman and William L. Doran, convicted several weeks ago of coercion, also are to be tried. A plea of "former jeopardy" was entered in their behalf, but the Court ruled the indictments would hold until the evidence showed the crime to be similar to the one for which they were previously tried and convicted.

Originally, fifty-two master plumbers were indicted. All but sixteen pleaded guilty. A separate trial was granted in the cases of five of the defendants—William J. Jack, Isador Pollack, George Connelly, the I. J. Barth Plumbing and Heating Company and Herbert Smith. The indictment against J. S. Rittenhouse was nolle-prossed.

A special panel of 150 talesmen is being examined. No jurors were chosen yesterday.

The case of four editors and reporters of The World, charged with contempt of court because of a recent article, was scheduled for yesterday, but was put over until 10 A. M. today.

SIMPLE BURIAL OF CLARK.

Only Prayers Said at Grave for Missouri Democratic Leader.

BOWLING GREEN, Mo., March 7.—Champ Clark was laid at rest after a simple ceremony in the little mound cemetery here today on what would have been his seventy-first birthday anniversary. He was buried beside his father and two children, Champ and Anna, who died in infancy.

There were no eulogies at the grave and the expression was frequently heard that it was a "democratic funeral" in keeping with Mr. Clark's love of simplicity. The exercises, consisting only of prayers, were conducted by the Rev. Robert S. Boyd of Kansas City, a nephew of Mrs. Clark. The Rev. Ray Charles Jarman and the Rev. George C. Hitchcock, both of Bowling Green, participated.

The special train carrying United States Senators and Representatives, many personal friends of Mr. Clark and a delegation from St. Louis arrived here at noon. All along the way from St. Louis persons waved flags. At Louisiana, Mo., school children stood at the station as it passed.

The Court House rotunda, where the body lay in state several hours, was massed with flowers, including gifts from ex-President and Mrs. Wilson and President and Mrs. Harding.

RUTH CLEARS FENCE NINE TIMES IN DAY

PITCHERS HAVE HARD TIME

SHREVEPORT, La., March 7.—Seven drives over the right-field fence, two over the centre-field section and numerous clouts which rebounded from the boards today constituted the toll of Babe Ruth's first day's hitting at Shreveport. The battering bambino, still favoring the right leg which he injured during his sojourn at Hot Springs, slapped into all sorts of straight-ball pitching and delighted several hundred natives who turned out to see if those stories from the big league about Babe's hitting had been exaggerated.

As usually happens the performance of the mauling mastodon was highly satisfactory.

The addition of Babe to the Huggins cast was the magnet which drew as many fans to Gasser Park this morning as the Yankee juveniles played to in the afternoon sessions last week. This afternoon the gallery was about four times the size of any previous outpouring of home fans. Ruth made a big hit with the natives by his hard work afield and his long smashes with the bat.

Eight Homers in Morning.

In the morning drill much time was given over to batting practice and Ruth slapped eight over the garden wall, one being a terrific thump over the distant centrefield barrier, while the others were hit high and long over the right-field section. In the afternoon batting drill, which preceded the six-inning game between teams captained by Babe and Johnny Mitchell, Ruth hit one far over the centre-field section. In the game Babe got one hit and one pass in five trips to the plate, but the hit was the feature of the game from the viewpoint of the fans. It was a resounding smack which came within a few feet of clearing the big score board in centre field, and it netted two runs, Babe halting at second. Ruth's team easily defeated the Mitchells by a score of 19 to 8.

Babe did not make running, owing to his injured leg. He walked in the second inning and Jack Clifford did the running for the home-run king, who did not leave the game on that account. The pass made as big a hit with the Shreveport fans as a pass does at the Polo Grounds during the regular season. El Lepard thereby was the 1921 charter member of that body of pitchers who get in wrong for passing the bambino. Jess Doyle did the pinch running when Babe batted for the second time in this inning and jogged to second base on a drive off the score board.

Pitchers Fare Poorly.

It was a sad afternoon for pitchers. Ledbetter and Aulbach did the flinging for Ruth's team, and both were hit at opportune times, besides being wild and poorly supported. Lepard and Godfrey were hit even harder than their opponents. There was not an inning in which either side was retired hitless, and frequently the hits arrived in clusters.

Camp Skinner, from the Cedartown team of the Georgia State League, was the batting star of the game. In five trips to the plate this Rookie from the Cracker State got a triple, a double and two singles, as well as a sacrifice fly which Carlson grabbed off the right-field fence. Ledbetter, the tallest pitcher in camp, hit over the left-field fence in the second inning, while Lepard was pitching, and McMillan got a home run inside the fence off Godfrey in the fourth.

The teams lined up as follows:

Mays Starts Work.

Carl Mays was the only addition to the squad up to this evening, but several missing members of the veteran brigade were said to be on their way. Early this evening the list of absentees consisted of Meusel, Schang, Shawkey, Peckinpaugh, Collins, Pipp and Baker.

Ping Bodie, Waite Hoyt, Harry Harper and Carl Mays were in uniform today, but none of the quartet was called upon to take part in the game. Mike McNally got into togs for the first time this season and snapped the ball around as if he had been working out for several days. Mays took off several pounds at Hot Springs and has to shed only a few more before he will be down to his normal poundage.

MAY SWAP FIRST BASEMEN.

Red Sox Reported Eager to Trade McInnis for Joe Judge.

BOSTON, March 7.—Suggestion of a swap of Stuffy McInnis, first baseman of the Red Sox, for Joe Judge, first sacker of the Senators, and assurance that Derrill Pratt, obtained from New York, would be at second base for the Red Sox this season, was contained in word today from the Boston team, en route to the Spring training camp. Everett Scott, the shortstop, when he boarded the train at Muncie, Ind., brought with him a letter from Pratt saying that he would be with the team. Pratt's contract as coach with the University of Michigan had raised a question of his reporting.

The Judge-McInnis deal is to be proposed by the Red Sox management because of difficulties that each player has had with his present team. McInnis is now at his home, a holdout on salary terms, while Judge is said to have been involved in a similar controversy with Washington. A New Englander by residence and baseball training, Judge was thought to look favorably on a transfer to Boston, which gave him his first chance in major league company several years ago.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 7.—Emphatic denial that he would play with the Boston Red Sox, or any other baseball team this year, was made here today by Derrill Pratt, varsity baseball coach at the University of Michigan. Pratt declared that he was through with professional baseball.

PHILLIES LEAVE FOR CAMP.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 7.—Babe Ruth had to do considerable posing for amateur photographers at Gasser Park today when he engaged in his first workouts with the Yankees. A Shreveport optician advertised in the local morning paper that he would give a prize of $5 for the best snapshot of the home-run king, and the camera fiends answered in numbers. Babe was as obliging as ever in posing upon request, and the optician will have to pass on numerous exhibits before deciding where he is to place the five-spot.

GIANT JUVENILES UPSET REGULARS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 7.—After spending a couple of afternoons in toying with the San Antonio Bears the Giants today took on sterner foemen in the shape of each other. Two nines were compiled by Manager McGraw from the ample resources at his command—he could have made it four without exhausting his material—and they played a whiz-bang game in which the Regulars took the dust of the Yanigans to the tune of 4 to 2.

Only five and a half innings were played. The first string men managed to scrape out five hits from the twisters of Rube Benton and Virgil Barnes, while the recruits got seven safeties off Voigt and Garton.

George Burns, with a span of singles, led the Regulars in batting. Benny Kauff slashed out a double to deep centre, and Kelly, Rapp, Hunter and Snyder made a one-base blow each.

King Kills the Ball.

Lee King was the deep sea whaler of the occasion. He ground out a single, a double and a home run, the last named with two men on bases in the third inning. This catapultic slam won the fray for the youngsters. Monroe got a single and so did Eddie Brown, batting for Benton in the third.

The line-up and score by innings:

0 0 0 0—2 5 1

Some brisk and snappy work was displayed by the leading candidates for infield posts in the course of the morning practice. Goldie Rapp made his first appearance in a New York uniform, and swooped around in third base territory in a style that aroused the admiration even of those captious critics who wear the same playing togs. Several of the Giants expressed elation over the showing of the acquisition from St. Paul.

Frank Frisch was on second, as in the two games against the San Antonio team, and evidently felt right at home there. The impression deepens that, barring unexpected contingencies, such as the possible illness of Bancroft, Frisch and Rapp will occupy their nooks of today's workout for at least the greater portion of the coming season.

Bancroft Is Ill.

Bancroft, who got in this morning in company with his wife and Earl Smith, was at the field, but did not don playing clothes. He appeared run down physically. He said that his heart complaint was not bothering him as much as the touchy condition of his stomach. He is on a milk-and-egg diet, and said that attacks of vertigo were likely to punish any eating transgressions on his part.

Ewel Gross played at shortstop once more in the practice today. His showing thus far has been one of the gratifying features of the workout at Bears' Field. If Bancroft should have to lay off for a while and Gross should continue to show a fine line of baseball wares, the latter might get the short field job, for a while at least. If he should prove not quite ripe for the post McGraw may have to move Frisch into the place of Bancroft and send Grimes in at second. However, there does not seem cause at present for apprehending the absence of Bancroft from the line-up.

DODGERS IN BATTING DRILL.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 7.—The official Spring training session of the champion Brooklyns opened here this afternoon when Manager Wilbert Robinson put about twenty members of his squad through an hour's batting drill. Jeff Pfeffer, Al Mamaux, Leon Cadore and Clarence Mitchell, who arrived today from Hot Springs, took turns pitching to the batters. They did not attempt to put anything on the ball, but displayed fair control and their offerings were pasted to all corners of the lot.

Jimmy Johnston, Peter Kilduff, Ray Schmandt and Ivan Olson stationed themselves at their familiar posts and went through their first fielding workout in a classy manner. Johnston, at third, made several fancy stops of grounders batted by Robbie.

The drives batted to outfield were chased by Bernie Nels, Bill Lamar and Tommy Griffith, who are the only outfielders that have appeared so far, and they will get plenty of exercise during the absence of Wheat, Myers and Hood, who are holding out, but who are expected to arrive later in the week.

During the workout Walter Keeley, rookie shortstop, displayed considerable skill as a fielder, handling hard drives easily and gracefully. He is a product of St. Mary's College and has all the earmarks of a coming major league star. Sam Post and Ralph Phelps, two young southpaw hurlers, did not report for practice.

The day was not a profitable one for Ivan Olson, for while he and Mrs. Olson were at luncheon a stranger obtained the key to their room at the hotel, and when they returned they discovered they had been relieved of several hundred dollars' worth of personal property.

Members of the team arrived in clusters this morning. Soon after the players who worked out in Hot Springs reported, Lamar, Johnston, Mohart and Schmandt arrived. Zack Taylor, the young backstop, is the only player who has signed that is still among the missing. No word has been heard from the eight holdouts. Sherrod Smith and Burleigh Grimes are expected to report before the end of the week.

COCHRAN ASSUMES LEAD OVER BELGIAN

DETROIT, Mich., March 7.—In the evening block of the 3,600-point match between Edouard Horemans, the Belgian billiard champion, and Welker Cochran at the Recreation Rooms here, Cochran completely turned the tables on his opponent and, in a brilliant performance with the cue, came from behind and at the end of the first day's session led Horemans, 600 to 504. At the conclusion of the afternoon play, Horemans was leading, 300 to 36.

The evening session was a complete reversal of form on the part of both players, Horemans going to pieces and Cochran playing at championship speed.

Whereas Cochran played in the chair most of the time at the matinee, it was a different story in the evening, when the American stepped in and showed the stuff that is in him by clicking off a run of 91 in the first inning. He picked up runs of 141, 87 and 100 along the way. He finished the block in the fourteenth inning for an average of 40.28 for the evening's performance.

Horemans's showing, compared to his afternoon's play, was a bitter disappointment to his admirers. His high run was one of 81 gathered in the eighth frame. In the sixth he picked up a total of 87. These were the only fair-sized runs he was able to produce. The Belgian champion appeared nervous and unsteady.

In the afternoon's play he made two runs of more than 100 each. His first, which came in the third inning, was for 143, and he went out in the sixth frame with an unfinished run of 137. In the meantime Cochran, who has had no competition for two weeks, did not get warmed up. He won the break and missed, and Horemans did likewise. In the second innings Cochran made two billiards and the Belgian one. Then Horemans tore off his high run of 143. He followed that with a 14, with a 4 and then ran out with 137.

HERBERT TAKES CUE MATCH.

Defeats Wood, 75 to 70, in Pocket Billiard Tournament.

Play in the annual pocket billiard tournament for the championship of the American Amateur Billiard Association was begun at John Doyle's Broadway Academy last night. One of the largest crowds in the history of the A. A. B. A. saw Walter Herbert defeat Courtney Wood by the narrow margin of 75 to 70. Both players were decidedly off form, a condition that can be attributed to nervousness. Four fouls were committed, two by each of the men. The fact that Wood's best effort netted him twelve balls and Herbert's was productive of ten is additional proof of how much off form the rivals were. Max Winchell and Arthur Simel will met tonight.

The tournament has been devided into three sections with four players entered in each section. The winners and one of the runners-up will meet in the final round robin round to decide the championship.

Play was resumed in the American amateur English billiard championship last night. William Waldron defeated John Barraket by a score of 200 to 177 in twenty innings. The winner's high break was forty-seven and the loser's thirty-one.

CANNEFAX LEADS LAYTON.

Robert Cannefax, former holder of the three-cushion billiard crown, twice defeated John Layton, the present champion, yesterday in the afternoon and evening sessions of their twelve-block match at the Strand Billiard Academy. The scores in both instances were 60 to 46, the afternoon game lasting fifty-seven innings and the evening test going to seventy-two innings.

Cannefax played daringly and made a number of spectacular shots. He had a high run of six in the afternoon and one of eight in the evening. The former champion gained the lead early in the first block and ran out his string easily. In the evening he met with some strong opposition at the start, but began to make shots from what appeared to be almost impossible angles and soon had taken the lead. Once in front, he drew away from Layton, and in the later innings had the champion blocked with safety play.

SCHAEFER TO MEET CUTLER.

1,200-Point Billiard Match Will Start in Brooklyn Tomorrow.

Jake Schaefer and Albert Cutler were yesterday matched to play a 1,200-point 18.2 balkline billiard match at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. They will play three blocks of 400 points each tomorrow, Thursday and Friday evenings.

WASHINGTON GETS VERDICT.

CHICAGO, March 7.—Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, national baseball arbiter, in a decision today adverse to the Southern League Little Rock Club, and upholding the Washington Americans, established two principles upon which future player exchange ocntracts will be adjudicated They are:

1—When a club purchases a player and the player fails to satisfy the purchaser because of illness incident to the player's inability to acclimate himself, the purchaser must house the ill player, unless the contract specifically provides the contrary.

2. Rules prescribing that purchase agreements be on standard forms and filed within a certain period are intended only for protection of innocent third parties and cannot be availed of by a party to the contract to evade its obligations thereunder.

The decision, which is Judge Landis's second, requires that the Little Rock team re-establish in its line-up Leon Carlson and Jack Calve, pitcher and outfielder, respectively, and that, in accordance with its agreement with the Washington team, it send its outfielder, Miller, and catcher, Brottem, to Washington for the coming season.

The Washington club last year sent Carlson and Calve South with the promise that both would make good. Carlson soon afterward became incapacitated, succumbing to the hot Southern weather. The two were then sent back to Washington, where they were disowned. Then Little Rock traded them to the Pittsburgh team, with which they were preparing for the new season.

The Judge held that, in view of Carlson's good pitching record early in the new team and without a climate provision in the agreement, the Little Rock team must accept responsibility for his failure to acclimate and must harbor him. Accordingly the Pittsburgh team is ordered to release the pair and the Little Rock club must return to Pittsburgh the money paid for them. Miller and Brottem will remain on the Washington club staff.

Throwing Ball Games to Be Made Felony in This State

ALBANY, N. Y., March 7.—Baseball players in New York State will have to "play the game straight" or face jail on a felony charge. Baseball gamblers, who hereafter try to profit by offering bribes to influence a player to "throw a game," will also face jail on a felony charge.

This was decided tonight when the Assembly passed the bill introduced by Senator Kavanaugh of Saratoga. The measure has already passed the upper house and now goes to Governor Miller, who will approve it.

A similar measure introduced by Assemblyman Merrigan of Albany, which, however, would make bribe offering to or acceptance by a baseball player a misdemeanor, will be killed.

SHOEMAKER BEATEN IN CUE TOURNAMENT

CHICAGO, March 8.—J. H. Shoemaker of New York, national amateur pocket billiard champion, today for the first time in three years lost, 100 to 95, to Earl Patterson of Chicago, in the third game of the national amateur championship tournament.

He led all the way by easy margins until the eighteenth inning, when Patterson had brought the score more nearly even at 71 to 70. In the twenty-second inning Patterson played into his high run of 24. He kept this lead until the final scoring, leaving the champion five points behind.

C. A. Vaughn of Chicago defeated W. H. Lew of Rockford, Ill., in the first game of the tournament today, 125 to 123. The game was hotly contested throughout, with Lew holding a long lead for the first half of the game which ran fifty-one innings. Vaughn's high run was 25 and Lew's 20.

In the second game, Harry Daw of Detroit defeated Gus Gardner of New York, 125 to 43, in twenty-seven innings. Daw had a high run of 26.

URGE FOOTBALL CONCLAVE.

Coaches Decide to Recommend Meeting at End of Each Season.

Acting on the suggestion of Major Charles D. Daly, coach of the West Point eleven, more than forty coaches and football officials met at the Hotel Astor last night and made a number of recommendations which will be presented to the Football Rules Committee which meets in this city Friday. The meeting first recommended that an annual convention of coaches, officials and graduate managers be held just after the close of the season for a discussion of changes in the rules which might result in practical help.

A recommendation was sent to the Rules Committee that a study be made of the situation with respect to officiating with a view to increasing the efficiency of officials. It was the idea of the coaches that active help should be given officials by publishing, if practicable, bulletins throughout the playing season which would aid in interpreting doubtful points and obscurities. Such other help as could be afforded by appropriate meetings of officials during the playing season, it was considered, might also be effected.

The coaches considered a number of proposals for changes in the rules, but it was the general opinion that little if any change was desirabe. They considered and rejected the following suggestions: Eliminating the goal after touchdown, extra period for tie games, putting coaches in the grand stand, and increasing the penalty with respect to "clipping."

It was recommended to the Rules Committee that blocking from behind a player who was not carrying the ball should be considered "clipping."

Before the conclusion of the meeting was the approval of a resolution providing for the organization of a national association of football coaches and a committee was named to take the necessary steps.

Among the prominent coaches who attended the meeting were: Tad Jones of Yale, Heisman of Pennsylvania, Gilmore Dobie of Cornell, Cavanaugh of Boston College, Dr. J. W. Wilce of Ohio State University, Rockne of Notre Dame, Webber of Western Reserve, Folwell of the Navy, Morey of Middlebury College, Barry of Springfield and Sol Metzger of South Carolina.

Among the football officials were: Fred Murphy of Brown, Kersburg of Harvard, Kerberger of Washington and Jefferson, S. J. McDonald of Trinity, Ed Thorpe of La Salle, and Tom Thorpe of Columbia.

Other prominent athletic men at the meeting were Commander Wright and Colonel H. J. Koehler of the Naval Academy and Major Philip Hayes of West Point.

NATIONAL MEET ARRANGED.

Colleges From Different Sections to Compete at Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 7.—A national intercollegiate track and field meet, bringing together the winners of conference meets throughout the country, will be held at the University of Chicago on June 11, it was announced tonight. The meet will be national in scope, the first of its kind.

First place winners and perhaps second place men from the Eastern colleges, Southern Conference, Missouri Valley, Rocky Mountain, Pacific Coast, Western and other conferences will be invited to compete, according to John L. Griffith of the University of Iowa, Chairman of the committee in charge of the meet. A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago and Thomas E. Jones, director of athletes at the University of Wisconsin, are the other members of the committee.

"The meet will determine the national college championships for the first time," Mr. Griffith said. "We hope that every conference in this country will send its stars."

Efforts will be made to have the outdoor meet of the Western Conference, which is scheduled for June 4, advanced a week.

TRACK MEETS FOR NAVY.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 7.—The Naval Academy's schedule of local track matches has been completed by Manager Cook by the arrangement of a meeting with Carnegie Tech for May 21 and the transfer of the date given Harvard, April 28, to Boston College. Harvard has abandoned its proposed Southern trip. The other local matches are with the University of Virginia on May 7 and the University of Pittsburgh on May 21.

The Naval Academy will almost certainly have a team in the University of Pennsylvania relay games and these is a reasonable chance that it may meet the Military Academy on May 28, the date of the baseball game between the two schools.

WOMEN BEGIN PLAY FOR TENNIS TITLE

The first annual tournament for the women's metropolitan indoor tennis championship opened yesterday at the Seventh Regiment Armory, and, from an entry list of forty, twenty-three matches were played in the first and second rounds. The entire first round was completed and only one match left unplayed in the second. Play will be continued every day during the week and the final round will probably be reached on Saturday.

Most interesting in many ways of the day's matches was that which brought together Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J., and Miss Ceres Baker of Orange, who had met a year ago in the final for the girls' championship. Miss Bayard won by scores of 3—6, 6—1, 6—3. Both played with commendable steadiness, and, until the third set, there was small difference between them. Miss Bayard's superior accuracy forced a good many errors in the final games of the rubber.

The announcement that Mrs. E. A. Falk won her opening match from Mrs. Nathaniel Dain by 6—1, 6—0, would mean little to many followers of the game did they not know that Mrs. Falk is the present women's national indoor champion, the former Miss Helene Pollak, who was married during the Christmas holidays. The champion was in good form and drove steadily and forcefully, as she always does. Mrs. Dain, accomplished player though she is, could take but a single game in the two sets.

The longest match of the day required thirty-six games for settlement. Mrs. T. J. Strauss won it from Mrs. E. C. Sohst at 4—6, 8—6, 7—5. Victory hung in the balance of a single stroke on more occasions than one, Mrs. Strauss holding out the better in the endurance test into which the third set settled. Both played well, especially in their baseline shots.

Among the more prominent and experienced players who advanced through the initial rounds were Mrs. David C. Mills, Mrs. Benjamin F. Stenz, Miss Florence Sheldon, Miss Caroma Winn and others. Three players, Mrs. Mills, Miss Bayard and Mrs. G. B. Stanwix, played two matches each and won them both.

The summaries:

Women's Metropolitan Indoor Singles Championship, First Round—Mrs. Ingo Hartmann defeated Miss Virginia Clinedinst, 6—2, 6—4; Mrs. D. C. Mills defeated Miss Louise B. Catters, 6—0, 6—3; Miss R. F. Maisel won from Miss Rosalie Evans by default; Mrs. G. B. Stanwix defeated Miss Herminie Niederman, 6—1, 6—2; Mrs. B. F. Stenz defeated Miss Helen Hooker, 6—4, 6—3; Mrs. Frederick G. Schmitz won from Miss Mabel D. Straffin by default; Miss Martha Bayard defeated Mrs. Walker Fuicher, 6—1, 6—0; Miss Ceres Baker defeated Miss Caroline Robinson, 6—0, 6—4.

Second Round—Miss Helen Simpson defeated Miss Adelaide Hooker, 8—6, 6—2; Mrs. E. A. Falk defeated Mrs. Nathaniel Dain, 6—1, 6—0; Miss Madeline Westervelt won from Mrs. Monae-Lesser by default; Miss Lillian Sharman defeated Miss Irene Samuelson, 6—2, 6—0; Miss Rene Christy won from Miss Florence Havemeyer by default; Miss Henriette Gawron defeated Miss Nani Stehlin, 6—2, 6—1; Mrs. D. C. Mills defeated Mrs. Ingo Hartmann, 6—2, 6—0; Mrs. G. B. Stanwix defeated Miss R. F. Maisel, 6—1, 6—0; Miss Martha Bayard defeated Miss Ceres Baker, 3—6, 6—1, 6—3; Miss Florence Sheldon defeated Miss Marguerite Klauberg, 6—1, 6—0; Miss Caroma Winn defeated Mrs. W. H. Pritchard, 6—1, 6—0; Mrs. H. V. Kaltenborn defeated Mrs. Paul Martin, 6—1, 6—3; Miss Mary Hurd defeated Miss Alice Bayard, 7—5, 6—2; Mrs. E. H. Thompson defeated Miss Martha Belcher, 6—0, 6—0; Mrs. J. T. Strauss defeated Mrs. E. C. Sohst, 4—6, 8—6, 7—5.

BOSTON, March 7.—Within a day or two of the separation from Boston College of Jack Heaphy, captain-elect of its football eleven, it was announced today that James Kennedy, quarterback of last Fall's team, had been dropped for cutting classes. Kennedy was a star against Yale, directing the game for Boston College after having joined the team only a week before.

If Ponce de Leon Had Found Paradise—

One of the first white men to come to America, this adventurous Spaniard roamed fruitlessly through Florida in search of a "Fountain of Youth." And all the while, up in Maine, flowed Paradise Spring!

Paradise Spring—bubbling forth not with water of eternal life, perhaps—but with water of such absolute purity and health-building qualities, as to actually increase the average person's years of well-being.

The function of drinking water is to absorb and flush poisonous wastes from the human system. If the water itself contains impurities or insoluble matter, it naturally lacks solvent powers. And there is no public supply of water but what contains an appreciable amount of mineral matter, as well as the soluble elements of animal and vegetable matter. Filtration or other treatment cannot possibly free water from all of these impurities.

Contrasted with ordinary, uncertain drinking water, Paradise Water—with but a single grain of solid matter in 58,372 grains—stands supreme in purity. Because of this, its continued use has aided considerably in the relief of many cases of indigestion, constipation, intestinal ailments, kidney trouble, articular rheumatism, prostatitis and the like.

Paradise Water promotes the proper functioning of the kidneys, which in turn makes for a healthier condition of the arteries and heart. Paradise, therefore, by tending to ward off hardening of the arteries, is especially beneficial for people past middle life. It will keep you fit at 50!

Paradise is a perfect table water. Comes in quarts, pints and half-pints. Natural or Carbonated. Try a case.

Your Grocer or Druggist has Paradise or can get it for you.

Two teams are pedaling along out in front of their thirteen rival combinations this morning in the thirtieth six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden. The pace-setting pairs are the German team of Walter Rutt and Willie Lorenz and the Swiss-Holland team of Oscar Egg and Peter Van Kempen. Both teams are a lap ahead of seven teams and two laps ahead of six other combinations.

These two teams gained the lead in the most spectacular speed burst of the race, an unexpected burst of reckless riding which produced some of the greatest excitement ever witnessed in the early hours of a bicycle grind in this city. An attempt by Jules Miquel, the French rider, to catch the field of fifteen teams napping brought about the change in the rating of the cyclists. The trouble all started about 8:30, just when the evening crowd, a turnout which numbered about 10,000, crammed and crowded into every nook in the Garden, was preparing itself for the series of ten-point sprints which were to follow an hour later. Miquel, thinking to catch the riders asleep, suddenly dashed forth on an independent bid for a lap and had gained almost a quarter of a lap before the pursuit really got under way.

Miquel's attempt was foiled when Piene Reliens and Lorenz tumbled to the track flat, but the excitement had hardly subsided when another mad session was under way. This time Maurice Brocco, the popular Italian rider, was the man in front and he tore over the track for several laps with the field in hot pursuit, before being overtaken. Rutt and Lorenz, the latter having returned to the track, then took it upon themselves to supply some excitement.

Gain Lap on Field.

Speeding like demons over the saucer shaped track, the pair relieved each other after short, sharp bursts of speed and, after about fifteen minutes, they obtained their objective, Rutt riding up on the tail end of a straggling field for the gain of a lap. Smith, who was leading in pursuit, suddenly shot away in an effort to gain on the Germans and the rest of the weary field and another "jam" was on. Van Kempen, one of the fastest of the European group of riders, relieved Egg after the latter had picked up a quarter of a lap and thereafter pickups and mad riding continued until the Swiss-Holland pair had gained equality with Rutt and Lorenz.

Spectators were confused in the matter of ground gained but the judges enlightened the crowd with the announcement that Rutt and Lorenz and Egg and Van Kempen had gained a lap on each of the following teams; Piani and McNamara, Smith and Taylor, Brocco and Coburn, Miquel and Van Bever, De-Greaves and Reilens, Chapman and Lawrence, and Aerts and Lavoine. Spencer and Thomas, Berthet and Kaufman, Grimm and Byron, Parisot and Leonard, Beyl and Lemay, and Depanni and Keenan, were lapped twice.

Under the rules of the race, the teams of Rutt and Lorenz and Egg and Van Kempen automatically received the first two second points in the regular sprints regardless of which position is occupied by the riders at the finish of the spurts.

Egg and Van Kempen Lead.

Egg and Van Kempen were leading in the point score following the night sprints. Their total was boosted to 161 tallies. Rutt and Lorenz were trailing in the second place, with 95 points. The totals of the teams one lap behind the leaders was as follows:

Piani and McNamara, 81 points; De-greaves and Reilens, 80; Chapman and Lawrence, 49; Van Bever and Miquel, 36; Brocco and Coburn, 29; Smith and Taylor, 18; A. Lavoine and Aerts, 18.

The totals of the teams two laps beleaders were as follows:

Spencer and Thomas, 37; Berthet and Kaufman, 12; Grimm and Byron, 11; Parisot and Leonard, 4; Beyl and Lemay, 0; Depanni and Keenan, 0.

At the end of the sprints, it was announced that Egg and Van Kempen had garnered the $50 prize donated by the management for the team scoring the greatest number of points in the regular sprints. This pair actually accounted for 45 points in the ten sprints. Through being one of the leading teams, however, and the fact that they led Rutt and Lorenz in each sprint, the pair automatically received 80 points, the equivalent of six for each sprint.

Shortly before midnight the field was reduced to fourteen teams. Tommy Grimm, who was teamed with Edward Byron of Australia, withdrew from the race.

The second withdrawal from the race was announced at 12:30 o'clock this morning, when Tony Depanni, Italian rider, who was teamed with Frank Keenan, Boston cyclist, retired because of their vigorous riding of the first twenty-four hours.

At 12:45 it was announced that Ernst Kaufman, Swiss rider; George Aerts of Belgium and Willie Spencer of Newark had withdrawn from the race, the hard going being the cause of the three riders quitting. Kaufman started the race teamed with Marcel Berthet of France. Aerts was paired with Jean Alavoine of France in the original field and Spencer started with Lloyd Thomas of Newark as his partner.

Thomas teamed with Alavoine, while Keenan and Byron, whose partners were the first to withdraw because of the hot pace, also formed a new combination. Berthet was allowed the usual four hours in which to secure a new partner. The wholesale withdrawals left a dozen teams as survivors of the first twenty-five hours of the race.

Hooper Reported Dissatisfied At White Sox Deal—May Quit

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 7.—Harry Hooper, outfielder of the Boston American League Club, may not join the Chicago White Sox, to whom he was traded last week in exchange for John Collins and Leibold, he told friends here during a visit from his ranch near Marysville. Hooper was quoted today as saying that he had expected to return to the Red Sox, but that he had not been consulted as to the White Sox deal, and therefore would demand a larger salary from the Chicago Club. Hooper also was said to have declared he would remain out of baseball unless he was entirely satisfied with his arrangements with the Chicago Americans.

Waking Dream, which finished second to Presumption in the second race, paid in the place mutuel pool the sum of $532.10 for a $2 ticket, and $37.90 to show. Waking Dream made the early pace, but tired badly in the last sixteenth. Presumption closed fast and won by three-quarters of a length.

TWO FIVES TIED FOR TITLE.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 7.—With the Western Intercollegiate Basketball Conference season practically at an end, two teams—Michigan and Purdue—are tied for the championship, with eight games won and four lost. Wisconsin, with one more game to play, has a chance to join the elect in the event of a victory over Ohio State tomorrow night. It is not expected that there will be a play-off for the title. By losing to the University of Michigan at Champaign tonight, 28 to 26, the University of Illinois, regarded as probable winners, dropped to fourth place, while Minnesota went into a tie with Indiana by defeating the Hoosiers, 29 to 25, at Minneapolis tonight. Illinois lost a chance for the undisputed leadership by losing a close game to the University of Chicago five on Saturday night. The race has been one of the most interesting in the history of basketball in the Middle West, the season being replete with upsets.

The Big Ten standing follows:

College.	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Michigan	8	4	.666
Purdue	8	4	.666
Wisconsin	7	4	.636
Illinois	7	5	.583
Indiana	6	5	.545
Minnesota	6	5	.545
Chicago	6	6	.500

CENTRE BEATS HARVARD.

Kentuckians Take Basketball Game in Cambridge by 41 to 36.

Centre's strong offensive was an unsolvable puzzle for the Crimson. The first half ended with the score 23 to 17 in favor of the Kentuckians. Bo McMillin, Captain of the football team that came to the Stadium last Fall, played right forward tonight and scored two goals from the floor.

BROOKLYN COLLEGE LOSES.

KANSAS CITY, March 7.—The Hillyards five of St. Joseph, Mo., defeated Brooklyn College of Brooklyn 35 to 17 in the opening game of the National A. A. U. basketball championship tournament here this afternoon. Play was slow and many fouls were committed.

THE ROAD TO HEALTH.

TIGER CREWS OUT ON LAKE CARNEGIE

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 7.—Eight Princeton crews dipped their oars in the waters of Lake Carnegie this afternoon in their first outdoor rowing of the season. It was the first time in nearly a decade that the Orange and Black oars have flashed on the water so early in March.

The varsity A and B boats and the junior varsity shell took the water first, the crews being sent off on a long conditioning row, swinging over the regular course and beyond the Washington Street bridge for five miles or more. Dr. Spaeth, Fitzpatrick and Captain Lamont, of the 1920 varsity, accompanied them in the coaching launch.

Four letter men were in the A boat, Captain Creswell was at stroke, with Sidney Milne at No. 7. Curtiss and Newlin were at No. 6 and No. 5, with Cooke at 4. Lewis, a transfer, was at No. 3, while Matt Fleming of the freshman boat of 1918 rowed No. 2. Lemoyne Page held the bow position, as he did in the varsity last year. Barclay Scull was coxswain.

Dr. Spaeth was pleased with the showing and after the varsities had housed their shells was willing to comment on Princeton's prospect.

"Altogether the prospects for 1921 are promising," he said, "and if the coaches and crews work together with the same singleness of spirit they have shown in the past there is an even chance that we shall equal, and good reason to hope we may surpass, our record for previous years. And I have not seen a likelier lot of freshmen for a long time than the combination Assistant Coach Fitzpatrick has been rowing in the machines as his first crew."

CREW ON CAYUGA'S WATERS.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 7.—Outdoor rowing practice for the Cornell crews opened on the Cayuga Inlet late this afternoon, when two varsity and two freshman combinations pulled away from the boathouse float in gigs. This means that the monotony of the machines is a thing of the past for the main crews at least.

The Ithacans are a full two weeks ahead of last year's schedule and also well ahead of the usual date for the beginning of practice. One varsity combination today consisted of the last year's freshman eight, every man of which is available for the varsity.

MANY HARVARD BOATS OUT.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 7.—Harvard crews of all sorts worked out on the Charles River today. In addition to five varsity boats, three freshman and many class crews rowed.

The varsity shells were on the water for an hour. Four veterans sat in the first boat—Captain Lewis McCragg at No. 7, Lawrence Terry at No. 6, Martin Olmstead at No. 4, with Ed Pierson in the coxswain's seat.

YALE CREW CAPTAIN ILL.

Varsity Shell Loses Leader Temporarily—200 Oarsmen on River.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 7.—Captain Steve Hord of the Yale University eight has been taken ill and will be unable to row for the present. In his place at No. 4 in the Varsity shell Coach Guy Nickalls has installed C. M. Trowbridge.

Today Nickalls ordered out all the candidates for all the crews, Varsity, freshman and class eights, and twenty-five different octettes were formed and rowed on the Quinnipiack River. This is a record for this stage of the training season, as the squad included more than 200 oarsmen the week after the ice left the river and outdoor rowing began.

VAN VLECK IS MEDALIST.

Special to The New York Times.

The summary:

First Sixteen—C. E. Van Vleck, 41, 38—79; A. J. Mendes, 41, 42—83; W. B. Langford, 42, 44—86; A. G. Kay, 43, 44—87; G. Douglas, 46, 41—87; Hamilton Kerr, 43, 45—88; Hugh Willoughby, 43, 47—89; W. B. Averill, 48, 46—89; Peter B. Freilnghuysen, 46, 44—90; Quentine Feitner, 44, 46—90; Bertrand Cruger, 47, 44—91; C. C. Bolton, 47, 45—92; O. L. Straley, 44, 48—92; F. S. Allen, 48, 44—92; W. V. Swords, 44, 48—92; Malcolm Meacham, 44, 48—92.

RICKARD AND GRAHAM MEET.

Two Promoters Discuss Offer of $700,000 for Big Bout.

C. F. Graham of Montreal, representing the Eastern Canada Securities Company, Limited, the syndicate dickering with Tex Rickard for the promotion of the proposed Jack Dempsey-Georges Carpentier heavyweight championship battle in the Dominion, conferred with Rickard in the latter's office yesterday. Graham was accompanied by a quartet of fellow-Canadians, and the party discussed the proposition for more than an hour. At the conclusion of the session no decision had been reached.

The Montreal sportsman's offer of $700,000 to take the bout off Rickard's hands was still under consideration, but nothing definite had been done, according to Rickard. Indications were that there was little chance of the bout going to Canada, although the idea has not been entirely discarded. Rickard and the Canadians will gather again this afternoon for another discussion of the situation, and it is probable the Canadian offer will either be accepted or rejected at that time.

BOXING DATES CHANGED.

Amateur Tourney Bouts Set Ahead —Preliminaries at Armory.

A change has been made in the date of the next amateur boxing tournament under the auspices of the Metropolitan A. A. U., originally scheduled for March 16 and 18 at Madison Square Garden. It had been planned to hold the preliminaries on the first night and the finals on the second night. The giving to the American Legion of the March 18 date for a protest meeting at Madison Square Garden has caused the change. President Frederick W. Rubien of the local A. A. U. announced last night that the preliminaries of the boxing tournament will be held at the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory March 15 and the finals at the Garden March 16.

KRAMER SCORES KNOCKOUT.

Floors Willie Spencer for Count in First Round of Bout.

Frankie Rice of Baltimore defeated Frankie Brown of New York in an eight-round match, while Ben Taylor, an English boxer, defeated Bobby Lyons of New York, in a six-round bout.

Five New England Colleges Form Swimming Association

BOSTON, March 7.—Organization of a New England intercollegiate swimming association was announced today. Brown, Amherst, Dartmouth, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Boston University have already subscribed to it, and Harvard, Williams and Wesleyan are understood to be ready to join at a final organization meeting here next Saturday.

ROWING ASSOCIATION PLANS FOR REGATTA

Hopes to Attract Oarsmen From Other Cities to Annual Memorial Day Event.

The New York Rowing Association, in its annual meeting at the New York Athletic Club last night, voted to conduct the annual Memorial Day regatta on the Harlem River this year, and work was begun at once to arrange the details of the program. It is planned to make the regatta such an outstanding success that it will give the metropolitan district the place it deserves in rowing and attract oarsmen from other cities for events which will be held later in the season.

The Memorial Day regatta will follow the Childs Cup race, in which Columbia, Pennsylvania and Princeton will row on the Harlem May 14, and the New York Rowing Association will make a particular effort to have a clear course for that regatta, so as to show the advantages of the Harlem for such contests.

No other dates for events were awarded last night, but several allotments will be made later. A letter was received from the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, asking the New York Rowing Association if it cared to make an application for the national regatta. The local association did not feel that it was in a position at this time to make a bid for the event.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, John J. F. Mulcahey of the New York A. C.; Vice Presidents, Samuel G. Sterne, Lone Star Boat Club; Edward Scully, Ravenswood Boat Club, and R. H. Oetting, Atlantic Boat Club; Treasurer, John H. Conlin; Corresponding Secretary, Victor H. Zogrst; Financial Secretary, Thomas J. Langade, and Recording Secretary, Anton Jursik.

MISS CUMMINGS IN LEAD.

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., March 7.—The women's annual championship began here today with qualifying round in which Miss Edith Cummings, who will shortly sail for Europe to play in the women's championship there, won with a score of 94. She beat Mrs. F. C. Letts, the Western champion, by a single stroke when the latter took a 7 on the eleventh hole. There was a big surprise when Mrs. F. C. Fox, the former fine golf here, failed to get below a national champion who has been playing hundred.

The scores:

Championship Eight—Miss Edith Cummings, Onwentsia, 94; Mrs. F. C. Letts Jr., Onwentsia, 95; Mrs. G. K. Morrow, Engineers' Club, 98; Miss Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, 99; Mrs. C. F. Fox, Huntington Valley, 103; Miss Edith Tallman, Minneapolis, 108; Miss Edith Hopwood, Uniontown, 113; Mrs. Adolph Mueller, Decatur, Ill., 116.

The Second Eight—Mrs. R. H. Jeffrey, Columbus Ohio, 116; Mrs. Quigley, Lock Haven, 117; Mrs. R. S. Wilbur, Detroit C. C., 118; Mrs. E. W. Stifel, Wheeling, W. Va., 121; Miss C. Dickey, Minneapolis, 123; Mrs. Sewell Ford, New York, 123; Mrs. W. C. Dennison, Shaker Heights, 123; Mrs. O. W. Johnson, Onwentsia, 123.

LEO NUNES BEST FENCER.

After a series of interesting bouts in which there were eleven contestants, Leo Nunes of the New York A. C. last night was the winner of the three weapon fencing competition at the New York Athletic Club. Leon Schoonmaker of the Fencers' Club was second, and E. T. Stelle of the New York A. C. was third.

The program called for a series of elimination tests at each of the three styles of weapons, foils, epee and sabre, to determine four survivors who would contend for the first honors. Robert Grasson of the Bridgeport Y. M. C. A. finished among the four survivors.

Those who took part were: Millard Bloomer Jr., unattached; Robert Grasson, Bridgeport Y. M. C. A.; Donald Waldhous, Bridgeport Y. M. C. A.; Hudson Budd, Leo Nunes, George Nunes and E. T. Stelle, New York A. C.; Leon Schoonmaker, Fencers' Club; J. B. B. Parker, Fencers' Club of Philadelphia, and Nicholas Murray and Dr. Acel, Washington Square Fencers' Club.

HAUSNER GIVEN DECISION.

Outpoints Marty Collins With Ease at the Star A. C.

Jack Hausner, the featherweight of Harlem, easily outpointed Marty Collins and was awarded the judges' decision after twelve exciting rounds at the Star A. C. last night. Collins, though beaten in the first round, put up a game fight for the remaining eleven rounds but ran second all the way. The weights were: Hausner 121 pounds, Collins 120½.

In the semi-final, Sol Seemon lost the judges' decision to Mickey Brown after twelve rounds of good fighting. The weights were: Seemon 127½ pounds, and Brown 128.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 7.—What is said to be the world's record for the number of players taking part in a golf tournament on one day was made here today, when about 340 of a total entry of 346 players took part in the first eighteen holes of the 36-hole qualifying round in the Spring tournament. The highest previous figure known was 319 in one of the tourneys here last year.

Whittemore, leading favorite for the medalists honors, followed with an 80 on Course 3. The best done among that half of the field playing over the easier No. 2 course was 83, at which figure F. B. The Metropolitan Opera Company gave last evening another of the new productions promised for the season, Umberto Giordano's opera of "Andrea Chenier." It indicates nothing, of course, as to the expectations the operatic public entertained for the opera that the house was filled with a large audience on a Monday night. But it was evident that the opera made an immediate and pleasing impression, and met with an unusually warm reception. Several of the most attractive numbers gained applause that interrupted the progress of the drama; and after the fall of the curtain upon the several acts the recalls of the singers had the vigor of a real enthusiasm. A success more than could be attributed to many of the recent new productions at the opera house seemed to have been gained by Giordano's opera.

"Andrea Chenier" is not new to New York, but it was doubtless new to many of the people who heard it yesterday. It was given by Oscar Hammerstein at his Manhattan Opera House thirteen years ago in a single performance very near the close of the season, so that a repetition was impossible, the performance being, as Mr. Hammerstein announced, given in honor of Mme. Eva Tetrazzini and her husband, Cleofonte Campanini. She was the sister of Mme. Louise Tetrazzini, the coloratura soprano, over whose coming to New York much excitement had then been recently aroused.

There had been the intention of producing it at the Metropolitan Opera House, and the suggestion of a contest over it had been raised by the fact that both Mr. Hammerstein and Mr. Conreid claimed exclusive rights to it. But it was not put on at the Metropolitan then, and Mr. Hammerstein delayed putting it on at his house till there was no occasion for any contest. "Andrea Chenier" had been given several times before that in New York, however, at the Academy of Music in 1896, when Colonel A. H. Mapleson was carrying on there the last season of opera he was destined ever to give in New York.

So the opera cannot be called new, even if it is unfamiliar. It was brand-new when Colonel Mapleson introduced it to New York. In 1896 the Italian School, to which Giordano belonged—with Mascagni, Leoncavallo, Puccini, Citéa, and others less known—was the "young" Italian school, and most of its works were known here only by hearsay. Now it is the middle-aged Italian school, whose works are among the familiar operatic favorites, and a still younger school is pressing on its heels rather unceremoniously.

If "Andrea Chenier" is likely to cause less stir from any novelty of style and treatment than it did when it was first heard here, it is likely to find a real popularity and to gain immediate favor, for it has musical and dramatic qualities that should make a real appeal and gain immediate favor. Indeed, the question presented itself strongly during yesterday's performance, why has not this opera been brought out on this stage long ago? It is far and away the best of Giordano's operas that have been heard here, and puts his "Fedora" and "Siberia" beneath comparison.

Giordano had plenty to say in "Andrea Chenier," was not in the least ashamed to say it in an abundant outpouring of melody, and was able to say it with skill and a sure command of varied effect. He had the advantage of an excellent libretto by Luigi Illica, writer of many familiar librettos; a libretto based on incidents in the career and fate of the French poet, with some additions of the librettist's own imagining.

André Chénier was, of course, a real poet who took a dangerously active part in the French pre-revolutionary politics, urging reform, but keeping on the side of moderation—and moderation was not the order of the day. He assisted in defending Louis XIV. before the Convention, got himself into bad odor with the extremists by applauding Charlotte Corday's assassination of Marat, and finally reached the end of his tether when he was on a visit to Mme. de Pastoret at Passy.

The Committee of Public Safety sent to arrest her, he interfered on her behalf, was arrested, too, and taken to the prison of St. Lazare. Here he wrote verses, bitter and powerful attacks on the tyrants of the day. The Countess de Coigny was one of his fellow-prisoners, and for her he wrote a poem, "La Jeune Captive," which has been much admired. He was arraigned and sent to the guillotine only three days before the end of the Terror.

His fame as a poet did not come till a considerable time after his death. His jailers were not concerned with his poetical productions, and it was not till the old order was restored, so far as it was restored, that his poems first appeared in print in 1820.

It is a remarkable, an extraordinary career, and it is not strange that it should present itself to an operatic librettist as a subject for an operatic book. Illica has treated it with a general adherence to the facts of history and biography, but he has used the dramatic poet's license in arranging Chenier's love affairs for him. Not all this romantic succession of incidents of love and self-sacrifice need be taken as a transcript of reality, and there is, we believe, no reason to suppose that there was a particular tenderness between the poet and the Countess de Coigny. But of course an operatic librettist had to have it so.

The variety, expeditiousness and quickly shifting color and expressiveness of the orchestral part are familiar features of the operas of the school to which "Andrea Chenier" belongs. But this one has a substantial quality, a vigor and a pregnancy that all of them have not shown. The composer has allowed himself ample and frequent opportunities for the development and enlargement of the music in a lyric vein and for the attainment of points of climax.

The orchestral part is continuous, picturesque and pointedly expressive, bearing in its rapid flow the suggestion of the dramatic incidents that take place on the stage. It is skillfully, often brilliantly, scored. The melodic vein is rich and full, if not of profound depth. There are a number of striking passages that produce a real impression. The charming shepherds' song in the first act and the gavotte danced on the stage give pleasure.

The singers have opportunities for much more than declamation; there are numerous notable arias of a developed sort. Gerard's long and scornful monologue at the beginning; the address that Chenier makes in the ballroom scene, which gained rapturous applause last evening; then an impassioned soliloquy that he delivers in the second act; the song that Maddalena di Coigny sings there, and then their long duet avowing their mutual love, are admirable specimens of their kind. But the finest passage in the opera is Gerard's powerful monologue as he stands in the tribunal chamber of the third act, and the subsequent scene there with Maddalena—a scene that might be considered a foreshadowing of the similar one in "Tosca," but with a different outcome and more effectually and potently characterized by the music.

All this is perhaps not strongly original in substance, and partakes of a general family resemblance to much of the music of its school. But it is written with a freshness and sincerity that cannot escape observation, and with well sustained power. Giordano treats skilfully in music the effects of animated throngs, as in the ballroom scene of the first act, and especially the scene of the meeting of the Committee of Public Safety in the third. In this last the opera reaches perhaps its highest point of theatrical effect. A part of the effect is gained here and elsewhere by the use of the French revolutionary airs, "La Marseillaise" and "Carmagnole" are heard.

"Andrea Chenier," notwithstanding its title, is an opera that strongly favors the baritone and supplies him with a part of peculiar richness and attractiveness. It is, in fact, more a baritone's opera than a tenor's, and the part of Gerard offers greater opportunities than that of Andrea Chenier himself. It was taken last evening by Giuseppe Danise with great success. He showed in it in fact, a greater and more sustained power than he has hitherto disclosed, and merited the applause that he gained. Mr. Gigli's impersonation of Chenier was admirable in his singing, wherein he showed great power and fire, a warmth and heartfelt quality that was of great value to the effect. His appearance on the stage was not altogether fortunate, especially in his costume in the first act.

Miss Muzio was an attractive and sympathetic Maddalena di Coigny, and sang the music with warmth and power. The remaining characters in a large cast were in the main acceptably represented. Mr. Moranzoni conducted and obtained many finished and brilliant effects in an orchestral part that is full of them. The women's chorus of shepherdesses in the first act was well sung and the choruses in the prison scene.

The scenic pictures have much to commend them; the public square in front of the Café Hottot, the revolutionary tribunal and the prison of St. Lazaire are well represented.

The National Symphony Orchestra.

The performance of the National Symphony Orchestra yesterday afternoon was in most respects superb; a demonstration of what can be accomplished by persevering and thorough rehearsal under a conductor of high ability. There were a fine finish in the playing of the several numbers, and an evident fulfillment of Mr. Mengelberg's intentions in expression, phrasing, accent, the balance and distribution of tone. To those who know how such things can alone be obtained, it meant long sustained, persistent and concentrated rehearsal.

It is disheartening to think that the results of all this intensive training, now producing performances of such distinguished artistic value, are to be dissipated at the end of the present season by the dispersal of the organization. But there seems little use in working and paying for artistic results, even of such high value, that are so little appreciated as those presented by the National Symphony Orchestra under Mr. Mengelberg. The audience was small yesterday afternoon, though it was very enthusiastic; and the hall showed a beggarly account of empty seats.

The program began with Corelli's eighth concerto grosso, in which the "concertino" consisted of two violins and 'cello, played by Messrs. Guidi, Bak and Van Vliet, with the accompaniment of string orchestra, harpsichord and organ. Mr. Mengelberg played a modified piano to represent the harpsichord in the "basso continuo," as he did the other day in Bach's orchestral suite. The effect was appropriate and pleasing. The concerto is a splendidly virile composition in eight movements, the last of which, a "Pastorale," is of great charm. The string orchestra had a vigorous and muscular tone, and the solo players quite met the demands of the composition.

Arnold Schoenberg's "Verklärte Nacht" that has been several times announced and put off, came next. The piece is an arrangement for string orchestra of what was originally a string sextet, and as such was played here by Mr. Kneisel in 1915 and immediately repeated at his next concert. It is one of Schoenberg's earliest works, and shows plainly the influence of Strauss and Wagner; it offers no difficulties at all to the listener of today in the way of ugliness, dissonance and unintelligibility. The title refers to a poem by Dehmel, that Mr. Gilman prints with omissions in his program notes.

The piece seems now longer than its content justifies, prolix. In certain passages it shows sentimentality and even an almost cloying sweetness. But it has conspicuous beauties in development of mood, in delineation of passion, in imaginative power. The Schoenberg of this period had not cast loose from all the teachings of the past, even the immediate past, and there is little to disturb the equanimity of the listener. The texture of the composition is complex and the performance showed that the orchestra had mastered it.

The program closed with a vivid and poetically conceived performance of the prelude to "Lohengrin," the "Dance of the Seven Veils" from Strauss's "Salome," played with great incisiveness of Oriental rhythm and an exciting and vehement interpretation of the same composer's "Don Juan." The dance showed already Strauss's growing need of economizing with his ideas, which are flung broadcast so riotously in the symphonic poem, and more recent experiences have proved that he is already beyond the saving grace of economy—there is so little to economize!

Murray Davey, Basso, Makes Debut.

Murray Davey, basso, who is said to have appeared at Covent Garden and the Paris Opera, introduced himself to New York in a recital with Frank Bibb at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, before an audience small in numbers but great in enthusiasm. He gave his own arrangements of ancient Basque airs, with two original songs and others by Dirk Foch and Mme. Poldowski. Of oratorio and opera, he added selections from Handel's "Joshua" and Bach's "Easter Cantata," Mozart's "Don Giovanni" and Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust."

New York Trio's Last Concert.

Clarence Adler and his fellow-members of the New York trio, who are Scipione Guidi and Cornelius Van Vliet, first violin and first 'cello, respectively, of the National Symphony, gave their last chamber concert of the season at Aeolian Hall last night. The three artists were heard in works of Mozart and Schubert, producing also, for the first time here, a trio in F sharp major, op. 7, by Ermanno Wolf-Ferrari, whose "Secret of Suzanne" will be revived at the opera tomorrow night.

George Meader Sings in Town Hall.

George Meader, tenor, already heard elsewhere this season, gave his first program in the new Town Hall last night under conditions favorable to a test of the hall's acoustics, tried hitherto by speakers more than by musicians. Mr. Meader was assisted by Carl W. Boe in Schumann's "Dichterliebe" cycle, as well as in Italian airs of Mozart and Caccini, two songs of Richard Strauss, and others in English by Josephine Utefhart and Louis Koemmenich.

Mischa Levitzki Plays Farewell.

Mischa Levitzki, pianist, who is leaving for a tour of two seasons in which he will visit the Far West and later Australia, made his farewell appearance last evening at Carnegie Hall. A large audience showed much interest in two manuscript pieces of his own composition, entitled, "Invocation and Faith" and "Valse Sentimentale." There were also two novelties by Dohnanyi, a study by Scriabin and familiar works of Bach, Beethoven, Chopin and Liszt.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Nora Bayes, in "Her Family Tree," moved last night from the Lyric Theatre to the Shubert.

"Mary Stuart," instead of "Mary, Queen of Scots," will be the name of the new Drinkwater play, scheduled to open at the new Ritz Theatre a week from Monday night.

Margaret Anglin will play the role of Clytemnestra, the mother, in her production of "Iphigenia" at the Manhattan Opera House on April 4. In the previous production of the piece in California Miss Anglin acted the title role. The latter part is to be played here by Mary Fowler of Miss Anglin's "Woman of Bronze" company.

Rehearsals of "Happy New Year," by Hale Hamilton and Viola Brothers Shore, began yesterday.

Whitford Kane has received a new play from St. John Ervine, which will probably be produced here in the near future.

The matinees in the Keith houses throughout the country on the afternoon of April 8 will be in aid of the insurance funds of the National Vaudeville Artists and Employes of the Keith organization.

MUSIC NOTES.

Leopoldo Mugnone, a distinguished operatic conductor, is announced by the Italian Lyric Federation to sail from Italy in a few days aboard the President Wilson, due here March 25. The local promoters have issued plans for ten weeks of opera under his direction at the Lexington Theatre and the Brooklyn Academy.

Mrs. F. S. Coolidge has engaged the Rose String Quartet of Vienna to take part in the Berkshire Music Festival next Fall at Pittsfield, Mass. The four players, including Arnold Rose, Paul Fischer, Anton Ruzitska and Friedrich Buxbaum, will also be heard in this city in October.

Minnie Carey Stine, contralto, gave a recital for the New York Women's Choir last evening in the chapel of the Brick Church. The choir is composed of seventy-five young business women, who meet each week under the direction of Mrs. Jean W. Fenn.

ENGLAND WILL PAY, SAYS SELFRIDGE

WILL HANDLE THE GERMANS

Traveler Back From Russia Believes Anti-Soviet Forces Responsible for Attacks on Jews.

Lloyd George is the one man fitted to handle the German indemnity situation, according to H. Gordon Selfridge, American-born department store proprietor of London, who arrived yesterday on the Imperator of the Cunard Line. The steamer brought 410 first cabin, 480 second cabin and 1,421 steerage passengers. Among those on board were Lady Wernher, daughter of the Grand Duke Michael of the old Russia, and Miss Margaret Kahn, daughter of Otto H. Kahn.

The Imperator arrived in quarantine early yesterday but did not dock until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, due to the time required for physicians of the United States Public Health Service to conduct their examination in the hunt for typhus. A hundred steerage passengers were taken off for further examination at Hoffman Island.

"Lloyd George has spoken and the people back him up," said Mr. Selfridge. "The whole thing is a waiting game and the British Premier is alertly watching what is going on."

Regarding the cancellation of England's war debt to us, Mr. Selfridge said that there was no discussion of the subject on the other side. England would pay her debts and was not seeking cancellation.

Business was not active abroad and the financial situation "rather pinched," he added. Regarding his own business, he said that he was about to move into new quarters and would have the largest department store on the other side. He will visit his old home, in Jackson, Mich., which he has not seen in fifteen years.

Frank F. Rosenblatt returned from Russia, where he was director of relief work carried on under the Joint Distribution Board. During eight months he made his headquarters in Moscow, and supervised the expenditure of more than $1,600,000.

"Are pogroms still going on in Russia?" he was asked.

"Yes. Those that fight the Soviet Government are using the pogrom as a weapon. Aggression against the Government realizes itself in pogroms against the Jews."

BRONX TEACHER ATTACKED.

One Youth Arrested While Police Seek Revengeful Ex-Pupil.

Peter Florio, 17 years old, of 411 East Twenty-fourth Street, who was arrested yesterday, after another youth, it is alleged, had beaten Max Richter, of 912 Tiffany Street, the Bronx, a teacher of Public School No. 70, 213 East Seventy-fifth Street in his classroom, was remanded by Magistrate Bernard J. Douras in Yorkville Court until March 10, pending an investigation.

Witnesses testified that the other youth, whose name was stated as Jimmy Maurice, while a pupil in Richter's class two years ago received a deficiency mark in his studies. Maurice, it is alleged, went yesterday to the school, accompanied by Florio, who remained in a hallway while Maurice entered the classroom and, without warning, attacked Richter. When another teacher entered Maurice escaped, but Florio was captured. A warrant was issued for the arrest of Maurice.

WON'T CUT TOBACCO CROP.

Burley Growers Drop Proposal to Reduce Acreage 50 Per Cent.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 7.—Plans for curtailment of the 1921 crop of burley tobacco were abandoned by the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association at its annual meeting here today. The reason given was that it was impossible to get 60 per cent. of the growers of the district to sign the pledge.

The proposition to curtail the crop 50 per cent, was voted at a meeting of growers here on Feb. 12. It resulted from the heavy drop in prices under those of last year and agitation for a "cut out" of the 1921 crop.

It also was voted to wage an active membership campaign during the next few months and to await any marketing plans that may be worked out by Robert W. Bingham of Louisville and Bernard Baruch of New York, who have under consideration ways and means of helping the growers.

Road Bills Appropriate $4,259,676.

ALBANY, March 7.—Two bills carrying a total of $4,259,676 for highway construction and maintenance were introduced in the Legislature tonight. One appropriates $1,934,676 for the construction and maintenance of county highways and the other $2,325,000 as the State's share of rural post road construction.

CALL ALL-AMERICAN PROTEST MEETING

COL. ANDERSON ASSAILED

REMOVAL OF HYLAN ASKED

With fervor reminiscent of the war, the heads of the American Legion and a score of other patriotic organizations at a meeting yesterday voted unanimously to hold a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden on March 18 to protest against the recent "Rhine Horror" meeting there and to condemn any propaganda that would tend to decrease amity among the Allies.

Meantime, American Legion posts in this city—of which there are 380—continued to voice their protests against the speech made at the "Rhine horror" meeting by Lieut. Col. Alexander E. Anderson of the 165th Infantry (Rainbow Division), and himself a commander of a regimental post in the Legion. The resolution demanded both his retirement from the reserve list of the New York National Guard and his expulsion from the American Legion.

Following up its resolutions of last week calling for the removal of Mayor Hylan, the Richmond Hill Post of the American Legion yesterday sent telegrams to four members of the State Legislature demanding:

"We want Hylan removed. His manner of conducting his office here is a disgrace to our city and an insult to Americanism after pro-German demonstration in Madison Square Garden, which he permitted. Hylan has gone too far. What can you do?"

The Manhattan Naval Post continued its attacks on Colonel Anderson for his comment that its members stayed ashore on the "good ship 280 Broadway" while doughboys were fighting overseas, and distributed posters calling for a meeting to be held in Public School 47 in West Forty-seventh Street, near Eighth.

A report that 150 posts of the American Legion already had filed their protests against the "Rhine Horror" meeting with the State Department of the American Legion could not be verified yesterday, although the officers of the State organization admitted that a large number had been received.

More Meetings Arranged.

Scores of other Legion posts in the city have meetings scheduled for this week for the discussion of the "Rhine Horror" demonstration and the speech of Colonel Anderson. Information among Legion officials also is that posts outside the city also are taking up the protest and indications are that the cry against the New York Campaign Committee against the Rhine horror, headed by Dr. Edmund von Mach, may become State-wide and even extend beyond the borders of the New York State Department of the Legion.

Colonel Frederick W. Galbraith Jr., National Commander of the American Legion, announced yesterday that the demonstration to be held in Madison Square Garden on Friday, March 18, would be called the "All-American Meeting for God and Country," and that speakers of national prominence would be on the program. Robert Grier Cooke, President of the Fifth Avenue Association, is to be Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements.

"For two years an insidious propaganda has been carried on throughout the nation," said the statement of Colonel Galbraith. "Forces identified with movements and causes unworthy of America again appear to break the friendships born of the common struggle for human liberty.

"Propaganda in many forms, some of it of foreign origin and in foreign interests, is being disseminated, entering the school, the home and the church.

"Appeals for causes which in themselves are worthy, namely, humanity, decency and charity, are being made the vehicle for the spread of hate-furnishing germs for future wars.

Called Propaganda Meetings.

"Meetings which are disgraceful examples of propaganda are being held throughout the nation for the purpose not only of disuniting the American people but also of alienating us from those peoples who gave with us of their life's blood on a common battlefield.

"There comes a time in the history of all peoples when they must prepare themselves to meet a common foe. Such a time has come to the American people. Our honor, our ideals and our future are imperiled. Shall they remain undefended? The noble dead and those who now lie in hospitals, living monuments of willing sacrifice, who gave their bodies for their heart's desire, look to us to carry on—for God and country."

Miss Anne Morgan, Mrs. Charles H. Ditson and other women who were active during the war in relief work on behalf of civilian populations in France and other allied countries, attended the meeting yesterday of the Victory Hall Association in East Forty-third Street and took an active part in the discussion of plans for the demonstration in the Garden. Miss Morgan, representing the American Committee for Devastated France, was elected Treasurer of the committee.

Other women who are to co-operate in the promotion of the meeting are Mrs. Douglas Robinson of the Roosevelt Memorial Association, Miss Maude Wetmore of the National League for Women's Service, Miss Annie Hoyt, Mrs. Coffer Van Rensselaer and Miss Evelyn Goldsmith of the National Federated Workers for Disabled Soldiers.

The Vice Chairmen to assist Colonel Galbraith are: Charles G. Blakeslee, the Legion Commander in this State; the County Chairmen of the five county organizations in this city; Brig. Gen. George W. Wingate of the Victory Hall Association, Thomas Gannon, Commander in Chief of the United Spanish-American War Veterans; Colonel H. B. Fairbanks of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Colonel S. H. Wolfe of the Military Order of the World War, and C. D. Sigsbee of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion. Ralph M. Easley of the National Civic Federation is to be secretary.

"There was held at Madison Square Garden a meeting called to protest against the 'Horror of the Rhine,' said the resolutions adopted by the Marines of the Second Division Post. "The Lieutenant Colonel of the New York National Guard, Anderson by name, insulted the Secretary of State, our allies and the Republic of France, with whose sons we fought shoulder to shoulder.

"We, the members of the American Legion who served with the Second Division overseas, demand the instant removal from service of Colonel Anderson on the ground that he has proved that he is not 100 per cent. American, and we further demand his expulsion from the American Legion."

The resolutions also demanded "of the Governor the immediate impeachment of John F. Hylan, Mayor, on the ground that he has not carried out the oaths to which he has sworn his oath." The charge is made that Mayor Hylan "having advance knowledge of the pretext of this meeting, refused to take action and thereby allowed insults to his own country, and to our ally, France, to be perpetrated."

"against granting permits to hold Pro-German meetings while this country still is in a state of war with the Central Powers."

The resolutions also call upon the New York County Committee of the Legion for an investigation of the speech of Colonel Anderson and his trial and expulsion from the veterans' organization if it is decided that he made remarks unbecoming a member of the American Legion.

The Arthur B. Viens post of the Bronx, headed by Lieut. Col. William B. Stacom, a former associate and superior officer of Colonel Anderson in the Sixty-ninth Regiment, called upon the New York County Committee for full investigation of his appearance at the "Rhine Horror" protest. This post has among its members many veterans of the Rainbow Division.

The "Rhine Horror" demonstration is to be discussed tonight at a dinner to be given to Colonel Galbraith by the New York County Chapter of the American Legion.

ASSAILS RHINE MEETING.

Gymnastic Union, German, Opposes Alien Propaganda.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 7.—Disapproval of the mass meeting held in New York Feb. 28 under the leadership of Edmund von Mach and George Sylvester Viereck to protest against the use of French Colonial troops along the Rhine, is expressed in resolutions adopted by the National Executive Committee of the American Gymnastic Union and made public here today. The union has a large German membership with 200 branches in the United States.

The resolution declares that the union expresses its disapproval of meetings that can be construed as alien propaganda or meetings tending toward separation just as we disapprove of all agitation tending to incite racial prejudices among the American people. Instead of promoting good will, national harmony and unity.

ASK EMPLOYERS TO HELP SOLVE LABOR PROBLEMS

Philadelphia Business Men Plan for Education Through Series of Meetings.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—More than 100 business men of this city employing thousands of workers made plans today to establish a better understanding between employers and employes. The conference was held under the auspices of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

Resolutions were adopted calling upon all leading business men of the city to join in a plan of education through mass meetings of employers and employes, trade association meetings and the establishment of plant and shop meetings. The following resolution was adopted:

"Much propaganda, based upon unsound economic reasoning, is being distributed in this country, and is beginning to have serious effects in developing antagonisms and bad relations in industry and business.

"More specifically, a call has recently been sent over the country to disobey certain orders of our courts, the results of which, if carried out, would lead only to disaster.

"Many artificial restrictions now exist in our industrial establishment which interfere with the employers' rights to employ and discharge and the right of employes to seek employment, which curtail production and bars earnings of workers upon hours of labor, rather than results produced and un-American and unsatisfactory conditions are being widely advocated by certain groups and are being encouraged by the propaganda and actions referred to.

"By reason of these above facts and generally disturbed conditions, due to the war, unusual and intensified efforts should be made on the part of all patriotic citizens to re-establish good-will between all classes and a return to sound reasoning and action."

DEMANDS FORD PAY $3,000.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, March 7.—John Robic, 22 years old, thinking Henry Ford could help him in his financial troubles, wrote to the automobile manufacturer demanding under threats that $3,000 be paid in installments of $500 each.

Robic made daily trips to the Eliot Street postal station for a reply. A month ago it came, but the clerk, who was to signal E. E. Frazer, Postal Inspector, and another officer, fainted when she gave the letter to Robic, and he got away.

Still Robic could not forget the idea. He wrote Mr. Ford again and asked that the money be sent to 1,470 Kirby Avenue East, a grocery store. When Mr. Frazer got this letter he had a patrolman put on the beat to watch for Robic.

Robic called last night at the store. He looked through the letters and finally found one he wanted. Just as he was about to open it he was arrested.

In his letters to Mr. Ford, copies of which were found by the police in the prisoner's room, Robic did not say what he would do if the manufacturer failed to comply. He indicated, however, that "something terrible" would happen to Mr. Ford.

Taken before the United States Commissioner today, Robic pleaded guilty to attempt at blackmail and was held for trial.

Gives Rules to Restore Confidence to Business

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Having found cancellation of contracts to be one of the contributory causes for the existing business depression, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States issued tonight some rules which it believes will restore confidence and avoid future misunderstanding. Among these are:

"Draw contracts in conformity with the law of the State in which they are completed or accepted, making the obligations of both the seller and the buyer equitable.

"Provide in contracts for abitration in case of dispute either under the State laws, rules of trade organizations or other equitable agency.

"Stand for 'Golden Rule" policy throughout your business, taking less if necessary to demonstrate you mean it.

"Without preaching, keep before your employes and your trade continuously the value of good-will built on kept promises.

BURN RESOLUTIONS AGAINST ANDERSON

A resolution condemning Lieut. Col. Alexander E. Anderson as disloyal for his "Rhine Horror" speech in Madison Square Garden was burned in the grate of the State Apartment at the Waldorf last night by a vote of forty or more former officers and enlisted men of the 165th. There was one dissenting vote, that of Lieutenant Harold Allen, former Intelligence Officer of the 165th, who prepared and introduced the resolution after a spirited debate.

Lieut. Col. Anderson walked into the room and stood near the door while Lieutenant Allen was reading the resolution. He heard Lieutenant Allen read:

"Resolved, that Former Lieut. Col. Anderson's statements are inaccurate and misleading, disloyal to the memory of those who perished on the field of battle against those with whom Lieut-Col. Anderson now associates himself, disloyal to his former French comrades in arms and unworthy of a former officer of this regiment. And be it further,

"Resolved, that the undersigned former officers of this regiment remember with affection and admiration the fortitude and gallant bravery of their French comrades in arms and that they are in complete sympathy with the Republic of France in her present struggle to exact from Germany adequate reparations for the injuries done her during the war and are in complete accord with French policy in the Rhineland. They remember with horror and disgust the many contemptible policies of the German Army, evidences of which were encountered by them during their service at the front."

Anderson Warmly Greeted.

Anderson took no part in the discussion, but was warmly greeted at the close of the meeting by many of his former comrades in arms. It was Chaplain Francis P. Duffy who shouldered Anderson's cause at the meeting. Declaring that he was always on the side of France in a conflict with Germany and that he had declined an invitation to speak at the "Rhine horror" meeting organized by von Mach, although he had no other engagement for that evening, Father Duffy said he did not approve of Anderson's "fool speech at that fool meeting."

He added immediately, and the sentiment of many listening to his words appeared to be in accord, that there was too much limitation on free speech at present in this country, and that, if Anderson did not speak for the regiment, "no one or all of us can dispute his right to speak for himself."

Father Duffy praised Anderson's work for the regiment. Anderson, he said, was the Sixty-ninth's most distinguished product—no greater soldier had risen from the ranks of the regiment. Anderson enlisted eleven years ago as a private.

Objected to Anderson's Statements.

Captain William Cook presided. The first speaker was Captain R. B. Delacour, who declared that all admired Colonel Anderson's soldierly attainments. He thought there should be no malice against Anderson, but that former officers of the regiment, in his opinion, should resent Colonel Anderson's statement that he saw no horrors. The meeting, he said, should go on record as denouncing Colonel Anderson's statements.

Father Duffy quickly got the floor and said that since a variety of points of view would be brought to bear the meeting probably would become "heated."

"I am very decidedly pro-French," he added, "and to that extent I am anti-German. In a conflict between France and Germany I would always, I think, be as strongly on the side of the French as a man could be and retain his proper balance. I have taken part in many things on the French side, from aiding the work of rebuilding devastated France down. I was invited to speak at that meeting, and I told them 'No, I am not going and I have no other engagement. I went to see the boxing at the armory, where I met Anderson later—after the Garden meeting.

"If he had talked to me beforehand he would not have gone there. I told him it was a mistake, but he sticks to his guns, as you all know. We've fought together we can't tie one another up; none of you can bind my tongue, even though my ideas may not express the ideas of the 165th or may be taken as expressive of the ideas of the 165th; nor have you authority over Anderson. If he does not, he speaks for the regiment no one, or all of us, can dispute his right to speak for himself.

"I don't know of any officer who does more for ex-service men than Anderson. He gets them jobs, takes care of the burial of the dead, digs up lost citations—in some cases where this has been neglected by the company commanders."

Turning to Captain Cook, the Chairman, Father Duffy said that Lieut. Col. Anderson had recovered the citations of men from his company. "When you, sir, should have done it."

Captain Cook interrupted to inquire the names of the men referred to. Father Duffy supplied the names. Captain Cook answered that he and other company officers had searched diligently for the citations in question but had not been able to find them.

"No, but it was Anderson who did!" the Chaplain rejoined, banging his fist upon the table.

Speaking in favor of his resolution, Lieutenant Allen reminded his audience that both Colonel Anderson and Father Duffy were Knights of the Legion of Honor. He said he believed that an insidious propaganda had been organized here, with a Berlin connection, in an attempt to deal a treacherous blow "at the time Foch is marshaling his forces" for further occupation of German territory.

Lieutenant Allen then read the resolution. Before the vote to burn the resolution was taken, Captain Delacour said that if this was the sense of the meeting he was in favor of such action. Captain Cook burned a copy of the resolution, and three cheers for Anderson brought the meeting to a close.

JERSEY DRY BILL PASSED.

Leaders Predict Victory for Measure if Vetoed by Governor.

TRENTON, N. J., March 7.—The Senate late tonight passed Mrs. Van Ness's State Prohibition Enforcement act. The House recently passed the measure. It conforms to the Volstead act as to alcoholic content and makes violations disorderly acts which may be tried before Common Pleas Judges without juries. The penalty for violations is $500 fine or six months' imprisonment.

The passage of the bill is regarded as a victory for the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, which backed the measure. If Governor Edwards vetoes the bill legislative leaders say it will be passed over his veto.

Augustus Porter Trial Postponed.

The trial of Augustus Drum Porter, formerly Third Deputy Police Commissioner, on a charge of neglect of duty, was postponed yesterday by Judge Rosalsky until March 14, pending a decision on an application by the defense for an examination of the Grand Jury minutes.

Would Send Here 30,000 Homeless Nestorians; Britain Has Been Caring for Persian Refugees

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 7.—The British Government is asking the United States to agree to the emigration of 30,000 Nestorian Christians to America. They are descendants of the ancient Assyrians and as a result of the chaos created by the great war have left their homes near Lake Urumeyas in Northwest Persia and have been living in camp under British protection in Mesopotamia.

Local conditions make it impossible for them to return home and the British Government has notified the American Near East Relief Committee that it cannot undertake to continue the aid it has given them after April 1, but would be willing to pay half the cost of transporting the Nestorians to America.

At a conference held at the Colonial Office today Dr. James Barton, representative of the Near East Committee, pointed out serious difficulties in the way of the British plan. It would be necessary to have special legislation passed by Congress to get the Immigration laws relaxed for this purpose.

MRS. H. B. OWSLEY JR. WINS DIVORCE SUIT

HE SHARED $200,000 ESTATE

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, March 7.—It developed today that four days ago Supreme Court Justice Martin J. Keogh granted an interlocutory decree of divorce to Mrs. Hilda Davis Owsley, socially prominent in Chicago and Toronto, from Harry Bryan Owsley Jr. of Manhattan. By the decree Mrs. Owsley obtains custody of their child, Caroline Eileen Owsley, 3 years old.

No alimony was determined upon, but this probably will be fixed in the final decree. Mrs. Owsley was married to Mr. Owsley at Stamford, Conn., Jan. 8, 1913.

According to the court record, the plaintiff, who was represented by James A. Turley, gave her present address as 850 Seventh Avenue, Manhattan. Mr. Owsley entered no defense and was not represented by an attorney.

Th principal witness was Mrs. Cassie Fawsett, of 335 West Forty-sixth Street, Manhattan, who testified to renting a room to Mr. Owsley, who was accompanied by a young woman. It is said that Mrs. Owsley is an author and is a member of a prominent Chicago family.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 7.—Harry Bryan Owsley Jr., whose wife, Hilda Davis Owsley, obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce in White Plains, N. Y., is a nephew of Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, wife of the former Mayor of Chicago. She was graduated from Princeton University. While he was attending Princeton, his parents resided there, subsequently removing to Switzerland. Owsley was at one time attached to the American Diplomatic Corps at Constantinople.

In August, 1913, Owsley, at Stamford, Conn., married Mrs. Josephine H. Sampson, an English writer, whose pen name was Hildric Davenport. Seven months prior to the marriage Mrs. Sampson had written striking impressions of Reno, where she had obtained a divorce from Charles W. Sampson of Chicago.

AUTOMOBILES KILLED 945 IN STATE LAST YEAR

ALBANY, March 7.—There was a total of 39,075 automobile accidents in New York State cities in 1920 and in these 945 persons were killed and 22,731 injured, according to reports of city Police Departments made to the New York State Bureau of Municipal Information.

The bureau, in a report made public today, says that reckless driving or the carelessness of pedestrians was responsible for most of the accidents in which one or more persons were killed.

ALBANY, March 7.—To spur the Legislature into expediting the enactment of laws to prevent automobile thefts, the New York State Bureau of Municipal Information, an offshoot of the Mayors' Conference, sent to each legislator today a report showing that 7,005 automobiles had been stolen in the cities of the State during the last year and that only 3,996 had been recovered by the police. The report estimates the value of the stolen motor cars at approximately $7,000,000.

Two bills have been introduced, one by Assemblyman Henderson, Democrat, of the Bronx, and the other by Assemblyman Leininger, Democrat, of Queens, providing that owners of public garages must keep a detailed record of motor vehicles left with them for safekeeping or repairs. The Leininger bill makes it mandatory for a garage keeper to notify the police when the manufacturer's number on a motor vehicle has been removed or shows evidence of having been altered.

STARTS BACKFIRE AGAINST 'BLUE LAWS'

ALBANY, March 7.—The first gun in the legislative fight against those who would revive ancient "blue laws" and place additional ones on the statute books of this State was fired tonight, when Assemblyman Hackenburg of New York City introduced a group of bills "calculated to act as a backfire against the blue law legislation now being advocated in this and other States."

Mr. Hackenburg's program includes the repeal of a number of obsolete provisions of the penal law, the enactment of an amendment to the civil rights law, prohibiting State and local legislation restricting personal liberty, and repealing all laws "which interfere with the free pursuit of happiness, not endangering the public health or safety of others." Introduction of the measures followed a study of all the "blue laws" the New Yorker could find on the books.

Local curfew laws would be among those repealed if the Legislature approves one of the Hackenburg measures, which adds the following section to the civil rights law:

"No citizen of this State shall be deprived of, limited, or restricted in the exercise of any right of governing his individual conduct or his personal happiness in such manner as he may deem proper, provided the public peace and safety is not thereby endangered. No ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation of any city, town, village or county shall be passed so as to conflict with the provisions of this section. All acts, or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed."

There is a provision in the Penal law now to which no attention is paid, that prohibits "racing horses or other animals" for stakes. Assemblyman Hackenburg would include in this prohibition zebras, automobiles, balloons, flying machines, kites, steamboats, power boats, sailboats, rowboats or "any combination thereof" as well as aardvarks, agoutis, alpacas, badgers, Barbary apes, beagle dogs, ant-eaters, ayeayes, baboons, bats, bears, bloodhounds, koodoo, moose, mice, milking machines, typewriters, steam-rollers and other mechanical devices.

He would repeal sections of the Penal law relating to adultery, because "they are now used principally for blackmailing purposes." He would permit parachute jumping from balloons and repeal Penal law provisions affecting puppet shows, rope and wire walking and even dancing.

Another proposed amendment would permit circuses and carnivals to give exhibitions in towns without permits from town authorities.

The transfer of "complimentary or personal" tickets to places of amusement would be legalized under another proposal. Assemblyman Hackenburg holds that an admission ticket cannot be restricted in use because such restriction amounts to unlawful discrimination.

If the Legislature sanctions another of the Hackenburg proposals, possession of policy slips would not be presumptive evidence that the holder had "played the game."

ASKS TRACTION BILL HEARING

Citizens Union Wants an Opportunity for Discussion of Amendments.

The Citizens Union, through its Executive Committee, yesterday directed Walter Tallmadge Arndt, its Secretary, to ask for a public hearing on the proposed amendments to Governor Miller's Traction bill. The Citizens Union has proposed nine amendments. Other amendments have been announced by the drafters of the bill and it was the feeling of the members of the Executive Committee that there had been no opportunity for discussion of these proposals.

The amendments proposed by the Citizens Union call for the consent of the Board of Estimate to any plan of readjustment; the limitation of the power of the proposed commission to authorize an increased fare, except as part of an executed contract to carry out the reorganization plan; elimination of the provision that the plan of readjustment must provide for such a return to the city as will exempt its investment in the subways in computation of its borrowing capacity; a provision that members of the Public Service Commission shall serve for five years, be removable by the Governor and have a salary of $25,000 a year each, and a provision requiring at least two members of the Public Service Commission to be residents of New York City.

Extend Hours of Women Workers.

ALBANY, March 7.—Assemblyman Soule of Onondaga reintroduced in the Assembly tonight two bills which would repeal the law enacted by the 1918 Legislature prohibiting women from working in restaurants, lunchrooms and candy stores any later than 10 P. M. The Soule bills would extend the time limit to 1 A. M. for women workers in such occupations.

DRUNKEN POLICEMEN SOUGHT FOR ATTACK

ESCAPES AFTER A THREAT

J. Henry Smythe Jr., publisher of children's books and connected prominently with many civic movements, spent several hours in the East Thirty-fifth Street Police Station last night trying to identify three drunken policemen, one of whom attacked him early yesterday after the three had terrorized the neighborhood of Forty-second Street and Third Avenue. He, a waiter in a restaurant where the three men created a disturbance and where one of them dropped his pistol, and the chauffeur of a taxicab which carried the three away after one of them had made a pillow of his coat and stretched himself prone on the sidewalk in Third Avenue, all failed in their efforts at identification.

Inspector Thomas Underhill is investigating the affair, and Mr. Smythe said early this morning that it was up to the Police Department. He felt confident that the three could be identified by the department's own investigators.

Mr. Smythe was returning to his home, at the National Republican Club, he said, when the three staggered out of the Blue Point Oyster and Chop House, 161 East Forty-second Street. He learned that in the course of the altercation inside one of them had hurled a dish of potatoes at a waiter's head. They were in uniform, but carried no clubs, apparently just having come off a tour.

The men's behavior was so conspicuous that Mr. Smythe joined the crowd which trailed them across Forty-second Street. As they reached the south side of the street one of them whirled upon the curious followers, seized Mr. Smythe and, drawing back his fist, exclaimed:

"Who are you, an inspector?"

The policeman seemed about to strike him when he had denied any connection with the department, Mr. Smythe said. He feared the effects of a blow from a recklessly drunken man, as he wore glasses, and shouted a warning to the policeman. Then, taking advantage of the instant in which the policeman relaxed his grasp, Mr. Smythe twisted away and hurried through the crowd to the Hotel Commodore. There he telephoned to Police Headquarters and was connected with the East Thirty-fifth Street station, at least one of the policemen having worn the numerals of that precinct. It was almost a half hour before the Lieutenant on desk duty there was able to get a Sergeant to the spot to investigate. Mr. Smythe said, and meantime the three had departed.

ASSEMBLY PASSES CRIME WAVE BILLS

The Lower House received a bill from Assemblyman Steinberg of New York City designed to bring taxicab drivers truly within the jurisdiction of the Police Department and passed a series of measures making more drastic penalties for major crimes.

The Steinberg bill, introduced in the Senate by Senator Meyer, would transfer the licensing of taxi drivers from the office of the Commissioner of Licenses to the Police Department. The measure is sponsored by the city magistrates and was drafted by Chief Magistrate William McAdoo.

"At present there is a widespread suspicion that men utterly unfitted by character and antecedents get licenses, especially to run taxicabs. Many of these vehicles have been used for criminal purposes, with the aid and consent of the driver. This suspicion is now so widespread that it affects the honest driver, bringing them all under a cloud.

"It is almost commonplace among citizens to advise their women folks especially not to ride with unknown taxicab drivers, and in many instances where the women think that the cab is going in the wrong direction, so greatly do they suspect the class of drivers, that they call on the police.

"There is no question in my mind but quite a number of drivers should never have been licensed.

The Assembly also passed the Bloch bill making the punishment for robbery, first degree, not less than 10 years' imprisonment instead of not more than 20, as now provided.

DIRECTORS RUN MAIL CARS.

A., B. & A. Officials Man First Train Sent Out After Strike.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 7.—Directors of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad manned today the first mail train sent over the line since it was tied up by a strike last week. A. B. (Rick) Woodward, millionaire and owner of the Birmingham Baseball Club, was at the throttle. No passengers were carried. The train pulled out at 7 A. M. for Lineville and Manchester.

The line is in the hands of a receiver appointed by consent when road officials professed their inability to meet expenses under prevailing wage scales. The Railway Labor Board refused to authorize a reduction, and President Bugg, as receiver, put the lower scale into effect under the court order, bringing on the strike.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 7.—First steps in the attempted mediation of the strike were taken today when W. L. Chambers and Whitehead Kluts of the Federal Board of Mediation, called on Receiver B. L. Bugg and other officials of the railroad and later heard the views of the representatives of the railroad brotherhoods and unions.

Federal Judge Sibley, who ordered the road into a receivership, told the commissioners he would welcome their efforts to compose the situation and bring about a resumption of traffic operations. Nothing in the legal aspect of the case would prevent the mediators from functioning, Judge Sibley said.

WAGES CUT 10% BY LOCAL SHIPYARDS

Reductions on April 1 Will Affect More Than 30,000 Employes.

LACK OF BUSINESS IS CAUSE

A 10 per cent. cut in wages will go into efect April 1 in the larger shipyards in Brooklyn and Staten Island and Hoboken, according to an announcement made yesterday by Henry C. Hunter of 30 Church Street, counsel for the various companies. Notices of the reduction were posted in the yards on Saturday, Mr. Hunter said. More than 30,000 workers, he stated, would be affected.

According to Mr. Hunter, wages have been reduced in other shipping centres along the Atlantic Coast, this port being the last to join the movement. He attributed the reductions to high production costs and decreased business.

"There have been no wage agreements with the employes and they have expected this would have to take place," Mr. Hunter said. "A reduction of 10 per cent. was made a month ago at Baltimore. The Norfolk yards have made a 15 per cent. cut, and a cut of either 10 or 15 per cent. has been put into effect at Jacksonville, Fla. These reductions stabilize the present lack of business at the shipyards and that the present scale cannot be maintained."

The firms here making reductions are: Morse Dry Dock and Repair Company, Robins Dry Dock and Repair Company, Tebo Yacht Basin Company and James Shewan & Sons, all of Brooklyn; Tietjen & Lang of Hoboken and the Downey Shipbuilding Corporation of Staten Island.

Other firms are the W. & A. Flecher Company, Hoboken; Consolidated Iron Works, Hoboken; Atlantic Basin Iron Works, Brooklyn; Frank McWilliams, Inc., Staten Island; National Dry Dock and Repair Company, Staten Island; Brewer Dry Dock Company, Staten Island; Ira S. Bushey & Sons, Brooklyn; Theodore A. Crane's Sons Company, Erie Basin, Brooklyn; William U. Gokey & Co., Erie Basin, Brooklyn; Vulcan Iron Works, 17 Battery Place, Manhattan; Schuyler & Caddell, Erie Basin, Brooklyn; Staten Island Shipbuilding Company, Staten Island.

The list also includes the James Tregarthen Sons & Co., foot of East Seventh Street, Manhattan; Verdon & Co., West Brighton, Staten Island; Lord Dry Dock Corporation, 105 West Fortieth Street, Manhattan; Standard Shipbuilding Corporation, Shooters Island, Richmond Borough; Johnson Shipyards Corporation, Mariners Harbor, Staten Island, and the New York Dry Dock Corporation, Roseband, S. I.

BUILDERS REDUCE WAGES.

CHICAGO, March 7.—A 20 per cent. reduction in the wages of bricklayers, carpenters and common laborers employed in the building industry was announced today by the Associated Builders of Chicago, effective May 1. Bricklayers' and carpenters' wages will be reduced $1 an hour from $1.20, while unskilled laborers will receive 65 cents an hour. Representatives of the Carpenters' Union announced that the proposed reduction would be opposed.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 7.—Nearly all of the several hundred employes of the Nonotuck Silk Company, at Leeds, who have been on strike since Feb. 16, returned to work today. The strikers, mostly women, went out to resist a reduction of 15 per cent. The strikers have accepted the reduction and certain concessions in the way of shop conditions have been made by the company. The mills will operate on full time.

THOMPSONVILLE, Conn., March 7.—Following the statement that all forty of the dye-house employes of the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet Company, who, with several hundred employes of other departments, have been on strike for a week, would return to work today, a large crowd of strikers gathered at the mill today, but it was said that only three or four went to work.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., March 7.—More than 400 carpenters, masons and hod carriers are on strike here, refusing to take a reduction in wages. The rates of pay proposed by the builders are 80 cents an hour for carpenters, instead of 90 cents; $1 an hour for masons, instead of $1.18½, and a flat rate of $5 a day for hod carriers, instead of 62½ cents an hour.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC REDUCES

Orders Cut in Pay of Common Labor on Its Lines.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7.—A reduction in the wages of common or unskilled labor throughout its system, effective April 16, was announced here today by the Southern Pacific Railroad Company. The minimum will range from 30 cents an hour in the Southern Division to somewhat higher rates in other zones.

J. H. Dyer, General Manager of the company, in a statement ordered posted throughout the system, said that "in fixing new rates there will be taken into consideration decreasing cost of living and character of work, as well as wages paid for similar work in outside industries."

The statement said a meeting would be held in the general offices of the company in San Francisco on April 7 to hear complaints or suggestions of employes or their representatives.

BOARD CONDEMNS ERIE'S WAGE CUTS

UPHOLDS EMPLOYES' SIDE

Decision Cites Six Instances in Which the Company Violated the Board's Rulings.

UNION LEADERS REJOICE

CHICAGO, March 7.—The Railway Labor Board ruled today that the Erie Railroad had violated previous board rulings in six respects, particularly in reducing wages of employes and in failing to cancel these reductions when ordered to do so by the board.

The railroad ordered a 27 per cent. reduction in the pay of trackmen, effective Feb. 1, and ignored the board's order to restore wages to the rates ordered in the board's wage decision of July, 1920.

Business depression, reduced cost of living and revenues below operating expenses were given by the road as the reasons for the reduction order. The road maintained its right to hire common labor at the prevailing local rates, declaring this class of workers was governed by the law of supply and demand.

Many Eastern lines already have announced conferences on the question of maintenance of way wage reductions. The Erie decision, it is said, will play a considerable part in these negotiations.

The Erie Railroad set a precedent by its contention that a hearing would have to be held on the board order to restore the previous rates of pay. But today's decision been favorable to the Erie it would have opened the way for scores of similar contentions by other railroads, it was said.

Labor Claims Victory.

The decision was regarded in labor circles as a clean-cut victory for the employes, the board upholding labor's contention of violation by the Erie of decision 2, the wage award, in every instance.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Early Advance in Stocks, Later Reaction on the London Conference News.

There was more disposition on the Stock Exchange yesterday to observe the course of events at the London conference than there had been during the preceding week. Such movement of prices as occurred was upward during the earlier hours, when dispatches foreshadowing Germany's acceptance of the Allied Premiers' terms were circulated, and downward in the final hour of business when the press cables reported rejection of the terms and predicted an immediate advance by Marshal Foch into hitherto unoccupied German territory. A number of the more active stocks rose 1 to 2 points during the general advance of the forenoon and declined 1 to 3 or 4 points in the later reaction, and this double movement affected both railway and industrial shares. But the resultant change in prices for the day was extremely irregular. Although nearly all stocks closed below the day's highest, the closing prices showed almost as many net advances as net declines. Business was again very light, despite the rapid changes in prices, and one-fourth of the total transactions occurred in half a dozen industrial shares.

The market's closing left Wall Street in a mood of unquestionably greater interest in the German complication than it seemed to take last week. It was difficult, however, to trace any feeling of acute uneasiness; a fact which probably reflected in part the underlying belief that the dispute will still be adjusted, and in part the feeling that even the extension of the allied occupied area and the temporary administration of the customs might not greatly alter an already complicated situation. When the French army advanced into Frankfort and Darmstadt last April after Germany had sent troops into the neutral zone, financial markets took slight interest in the occurrence. Prices on the Stock Exchange did not decline, and it was during that very week that sterling exchange rose to $4.06¾, the highest rate reached on the recovery from the $3.18 of the previous February.

Foreign exchange acted yesterday much as the stock market did. All the European rates advanced in the earlier hours of business; sterling in particular going 1¾ cents above last week's closing to $3.91, or only 1 cent below the year's high mark of three weeks ago, and the German mark recovering from 1.61½ cents to 1.67, also the highest in three weeks. The afternoon reaction nearly canceled these advances, but left rates on those and other European points very little changed from Saturday. A recovery in silver bullion and a batch of January railway earnings statements, generally unfavorable as to net results, made up most of the day's meagre news in other directions.

Saturday's highly favorable showing of the New York Reserve Bank and the Reserve banks were carrying last no response in the money market, and none was expected. The burden which the reserve banks were carrying last season, as their share in the deadlocked interior indebtedness incurred for account of unlucky borrowers at the high prices of a year ago, has been partly relieved by liquidation on the part of the borrowers. But a good part of it has also been shifted back upon the shoulders of private banks, and that has meant a continuing drain on the New York institutions which hold account for Southern and Western institutions. Even with the Reserve banks, it is somewhat noteworthy that while the system's average reserve ratio is 8¼ per cent. above this date last year, the percentage of the banks at Dallas, Atlanta and Minneapolis is lower than in 1920.

MONEY.

MONDAY, MARCH 7, 1921.

Money on call on the Stock Exchange ruled at 7 per cent. all day, unchanged over the prevailing quotation of last Friday. The demand for new money was light. There was no change in the rates for time money, both classes ruling at rates which obtained all of last week. Bankers' acceptances and choice name merchants' paper continue to enjoy a fair demand from country bankers, with no change in quotations.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

The London news that the Allies had found the German reparations proposals unsatisfactory and had ordered troops to prepare to move into Germany today upset the foreign exchange market late in the day and caused a general reaction in European rates which almost completely discounted the gains which had been scored earlier. Sterling, which had been up to $3.91, reacted to $3.89⅛ and then recovered fractionally, while French francs, which had been strong and had advanced to 7.26, sold off abruptly to 7.16, as compared with a closing last week at 7.18½. German marks, usually less susceptible to diplomatic developments, went from an early high of 1.67 to a closing price of 1.62, which later, however, showed a net gain of ½.

The other Continentals were less active and most of the Mid-European rates showed small net gains from last week. The Scandinavian group was irregular, Norwegian being unchanged, Danish down 5 and Swedish up 7 points. The Chinese exchanges, which were a notably weak feature last week, were steadier yesterday and at the close reflected gains of about ⅛ cent in all quotations.

UNITED BUYS 'R. J. R.' STOCK.

It was announced yesterday that the United Retail Stores Company had acquired a substantial interest in the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company through the purchase of a large block of the Class B common stock from the R. J. Reynolds estate.

In connection with the sale it also was said that the stock had been acquired on favorable terms because the executors decided that under the offer from the United Retail Stores it would be possible to dispose of the holdings more advantageously than if they had been retained and the inheritance tax paid.

Motor Wheel Has $877,424 Profits.

The Motor Wheel Corporation has issued its first report covering ten months ended Dec. 31, 1920. It shows net profits of $877,424 after deductions of all charges except Federal taxes. After allowing $394,476, for depreciation of inventory and $49,002 for Federal taxes, the amount available for the capital stock is $433,856. This after payment of preferred dividends equals 54 cents per share on the 450,000 shares of common stock issued.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Foreign News and the Market.

The news that the German proposals in regard to reparations were not acceptable to the Allies caused a sharp reaction in prices in the late trading on the Stock Exchange yesterday. The declines for the day were not particularly large, but from the high of the forenoon a fairly sharp reaction was recorded. There was no heavy pressure to sell, however, as total sales for the day were again less than a half million shares, with about one-fourth of the business done in half a dozen issues. Atlantic Gulf, for instance, was the most active stock on the list, advancing in the early dealings and then breaking sharply toward the close, but this movement could be traced to reasons other than the foreign situation. The same is true of Chandler Motors and Allied Chemical, which were also very active, the former advancing while the other declined. The oil stocks declined in the late dealings, among them General Asphalt and Mexican Petroleum.

Reading Common Committee Active.

The Reading Company Common Stockholders' Committee, of which Seward Prosser is Chairman, is actively engaged in preparing an amended petition which will be filed with the Federal District Court in Philadelphia before March 15, containing suggestions for a modification of the present segregation plan. The committee contends that the $33,000,000 surplus of the Reading Company belongs entirely to the holders of the common stock and the petition will contain specific recommendations regarding the change in the plan which will allow for a distribution of that surplus for their benefit. A second circular letter has been issued by the committe asking for additional proxies and announcing that overnight proxies for 300,000 shares of the common stock were received, allowing the committee to intervene in the Government dissolution suit.

Decline in Allied Chemical.

Allied Chemical was one of the stocks which suffered in the late dealings, the shares breaking to a new low record for the current year. The reaction was due to statements made at the meeting of stockholders that the Directors would take up the matter of the common dividend at their meeting later in the month, but that the action would be governed by the reports of operations received from the subsidiary companies. Last Autumn it had been recommended that the shares be placed on a 6 per cent. basis, but up to the present time no action has been taken. Since the recommendation was made there has been a decided change in the business situation, consequently the Directors deem it advisable to await the annual statement of the subsidiaries.

The Investment Market.

Although the investment market is not displaying any great enthusiasm for new offerings—or for the old, seasoned securities, either—it is taking domestic issues in a way which promises better things at no far distant date. And there is a great mass of business to be attended to over the next few months, business which will not wait and will have to receive attention. But there is one thing reasonably certain, about as certain as anything can be, and that is that there will be very few foreign issues brought out in the next few weeks, or even months. Some of the leading investment bankers are positive on this subject and are not trying to conceal their feelings.

No Canadian Financing.

Definite word has been received that the Canadian Government will not attempt to refund the $25,000,000 maturity on April 1, but will pay off the obligation, partly out of current balances already here and partly by the shipment of gold from Ottawa. Just how much gold will be forwarded in the operation is not known, but it is believed that the amount will be in the neighborhood of $10,000,000. As for the $15,000,000 maturity which the Dominion will have here on Aug. 1, no final decision as to whether it will be paid or funded has been reached and probably none will be arrived at until the due date is close at hand.

Interior Liquidation.

Some of the distributing bankers are wondering if the time is not ripe for a greater amount of short time securities than have been coming out recently, and the reason for their wonderment is the statistical display of the Federal Reserve system, which shows that interior banks are "getting out of the Federal Reserve" much more rapidly than are the banks here. Since the peak of discounts was reached last November, the system, outside of New York has reduced these loans to member banks by $341,987,000, or 18.6 per cent., whereas the New York member banks have reduced their borrowing by $143,333,000, or 14.5 per cent. The interior banks, however, still are borrowing close to $1,500,000,000, and the more conservative here do not look for any great increase in "bank investment" until this sum is very materially reduced.

While it was the unanimous vote of representatives of a large majority of the members of the Association of Railway Executives to do away with centralized representation in the discussion of labor affairs, and the association's Labor Committee was abandoned to emphasize this stand, it is understood that some of the member roads look with favor upon regional boards of adjustment rather than individual boards for each carrier. It was rumored yesterday that there might be some dissension within the association as the result of this, but this was denied in authoritative quarters.

The Erie Wage Case.

Decision by the Railroad Labor Board in Chicago that the Erie Railroad had violated the Esch-Cummins Railroad law in cutting the rates of pay for unskilled labor and increasing the hours of work attracted attention yesterday in the financial district. It has been stated officially for the company that wages will not be raised again, as, even on the present wage basis, the company is just breaking even on operation. Before the cuts were announced on March 1 it was costing the Erie $1.97 to take in $1. The fact that the Labor Board has announced that it will not consider the Erie case again until the higher rates are re-established, and the road has said that it cannot make such reinstatement, is taken in some quarters to mean that this will be a test of the powers of the Labor Board.

The American Sugar Report.

The annual report of the American Sugar Company, to be issued within the next day or so, is awaited with a great deal of interest in Wall Street circles, in view of the recent sharp decline in the price of the common stock, accompanied by rumors of heavy losses last year in connection with the collapse in the sugar market. According to rumors in financial circles yesterday, the report will show an operating loss in the neighborhood of $10,000,000, which, with a loss of about $2,000,000 charged to reserves, will make a total of $12,000,000. It was also rumored that the cash position in the balance sheet will show a reduction of a similar amount. It is also expected that the balance sheet will show an enormous increase in borrowings.

Judge Thomas' decision has raised a big question in the minds of both the taxpayer and the tax collector. We suggest that you confer with us before filing your return as we have a recommendation to make which may save you considerable money should this decision be upheld.

CHANGE PROPOSED IN READING PLAN

NEW APPEAL FOR PROXIES

Modification Provides for Distribution of $33,000,000 Surplus to Common Stockholders Only.

The Reading Common Stockholders' Committee is preparing an amended petition to be filed with the District Court in Philadelphia before March 15, covering in detail its contention that the company's $33,000,000 surplus belongs to the common stock alone and its proposals for a modification of the segregation plan so that the surplus will be distributed to the common stockholders. This is taken in some quarters as proof that the committee will push its fight for the comon stockholders as far as possible. A second letter was sent out at the close of last week, asking for additional proxies. It read:

"Your committee, which was organized at the request of a large number of shares of Reading common stock, received overnight proxies representing approximately 300,000 shares, and was represented by counsel at the hearing in Philadelphia on March 1, and presented a petition for leave to intervene in the Government dissolution suit. Leave was granted and the entire matter adjourned for two weeks, during which time further interventions, suggestions and briefs may be filed.

"The contention of your committee is that the surplus of the Reading Company, amounting to upward of $33,000,000, belongs entirely to the common stockholders, and the intervention filed by your committee suggests a modification of the plan to maintain that contention. Your committee will be represented on all future hearings in the matter.

"It is our opinion that it is of the utmost importance to your interests that you sign and return the enclosed proxy at the earliest possible moment to the Secretary of the committee, so that your interests as a holder of common stock may be joined with the substantial interests already represented, in order that the modification looking toward the protection of the rights of the common stockholders in the surplus of your company may be presented to the court with as nearly unanimous representation as possible."

The fact that the response to the first call for proxies sent out by the committee brought big results is also taken to mean that the committee's suggestion will carry a good deal of weight.

At the hearing in Philadelphia on March 1 it was stated by counsel for the common stockholders that the plan as submitted to the court would mean that the surplus would be distributed to both classes of preferred as well as to common shareholders.

OFFERS CUBAN SUGAR.

The Cuban Sugar Commission has again come into the market and is offering Cuban raws at 5 cents per pound, an advance of ¼ cent per pound over the price named in its first offering. Only recently the commission offered 100,000 pounds at the lower price, which was quickly sold. The commission then withdrew from the market. The amount of sugar now being offered at the higher price was not mentioned in the Havana cables received by local sugar houses yesterday. It is believed to be of the old crop.

Of the 100,000 tons offered for sale, 65,000 tons were sold in the United States and the balance to Canada and Europe. The following companies were buyers of the initial offering: American Sugar Refining Company, H. E. Howell Son & Co., Warner Sugar Refining Company, Federal Sugar Refining Company and numerous smaller companies.

EXPRESS CO. SHOWS DEFICIT

Adams Report for 1920 Lists Settlement of $1,400,000 Claims.

The Adams Express Company report for 1920, issued yesterday, shows a deficit of $2,126,792 as compared with $3,342,017 at the end of 1919. President William M. Barrett in his remarks to stockholders says in part:

"Since the last report the association has adjusted claims asserted against it on account of operations prior to Dec. 31, 1917, aggregating more than $1,400,000, the amount expended in making such settlement being approximately $600,000, to pay which its loans from banks were increased during this period by $500,000. It will be seen, therefore, that the company has made substantial progress in disposing of the claims asserted against it, and the officers are proceeding with all the dispatch compatible with proper regard for the interests of the association to dispose of the balance of the pending claims."

MOVE ON GERMANY SENDS STOCKS DOWN

News that allied troops are to move into Germany today, which reached the financial district late yesterday afternoon, caused some rather sharp recessions in both security prices and the rate for foreign exchanges. As both markets had been strong, the declines, in many cases, failed to cut into the day's net gains, but most of the earlier advances were lost.

In the stock market, speculative issues reacted 1 to 2 points from the day's high levels, but there was no disorder or panic. In the foreign exchange market French francs declined about 10 points from their early high, and sterling sold off less than 2 cents in the pound. On the day sterling registered a net gain of a quarter of a cent, but French francs were down 2½ points. German marks, which had closed at 1.61⅛ on Saturday, moved up to 1.67 early yesterday, and after the receipt of the unfavorable news reacted again to 1.62 at the close.

Bankers were widely at variance in their interpretations of the events at London and in their predictions of what was likely to follow. In some places it was held that the movement of allied troops into Germany would be deplorable, as it was apt to bring on a political crisis in that country. Others took a more moderate view, and expressed conviction that Germany would make haste to comply with allied demands rather than undergo military occupation.

The idea of actual invasion of Germany was generally deprecated. It was argued that neither Germany nor the Allies could afford such a move; Germany because of the probable political effect and the allied countries, especially France, because of the cost of sending a large military expedition into the field. But most bankers here were optimistic, continuing to hold out hope that a settlement would be reached within the next few hours.

From a letter of W. S. Farish, Esq., Vice-President of the Company, in regard to the issue, we summarize as follows:

The Humble Oil and Refining Company is engaged in the production, transportation, refining and distribution of petroleum and its products and its production in 1920 was in excess of 10,000,000 barrels.

Although the Company's new refinery was not entirely completed and the pipe line system was not in operation during the year 1920, the net earnings in that year, before deducting reserves for depletion and Federal taxes, amounted to about $10,973,000.

The Company has invested $54,492,192 in plant and equipment. Its total assets, after giving effect to the present financing, amount to approximately $111,485,041, while, prior to this financing, neither the Company nor its pipe line subsidiary had any funded debt.

SAY STOCKHOLDERS WILL BUY IN D. & R. G.

Counsel for Committee Assert Terms of Court Decision Probably Will Be Met.

CHANCE TO SAVE PROPERTY

Commenting yesterday on the opportunity extended Saturday to Denver & Rio Grande stockholders to purchase the company for $10,000,000 by March 25, counsel for the Common Stockholders' Committee said that the terms of the decision probably would be met and the stockholders would buy in the property. The statement which was issued jointly by Judge Strasbourger and Daniel W. Blumenthal reads in part:

"The decision of the court for the first time after all these months of effort opens the way to the stockholders to save the valuable railroad property and all its investments and other assets from a complete loss. We have been working day and night and have been in touch with large banking interests and feel assured that we have worked out a feasible plan to accomplish the desired end.

Representing over 100,000 shares of stock and having the unqualified support of many well-known New York Stock Exchange houses and other banking interests throughout the country, and with the co-operation of all those various interests, it is practically assured that the terms of the decision by Judges Sanborn and Lewis will be met. The Denver and Rio Grande Railroad is unquestionably a valuable going concern, and any one who has watched the reports of its earnings in recent years knows that it is a paying concern.

"The stockholders are now in a position to reorganize and retain their property, thus making their securities valuable.

"This will not in any way conflict with tae other remedies that the committee is following to recover for the stockholders the large amount that has already been lost through the acts of its former officers and directors. Actions have already been started to attack the judgment obtained by the Western Pacific interests and eminent counsel have given their opinion that such action has a good chance of succeeding. In this manner many millions of dollars may be restored to the railroad's treasury."

Under the court ruling the stockholders must put up $100,000, which will be forfeited unless the entire $10,000,000 is paid by March 25. The Stockholders' Committee now represents approximately 100,000 shares of the stock. This would mean that a straight assessment of $100 a share would be necessary to raise the $10,00000,000. That any such assessment will prove necessary, however, has not been asserted.

The stockholders have still other litigation pending as referred to in the statement of counsel, which may eventually change the entire complexion of the case.

Western Road to Get Equipment.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Authority was granted to the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company by the Interstate Commerce Commission today to assume obligations amounting to $9,630,000 for the purpose of purchasing equipment to cost $9,684,093.

COTTON LIST SHIFTS WITH FOREIGN NEWS

Market Closes 6 to 14 Points Up and Spots Gain 15 Points.

The foreign news played a dominating part in the cotton market's fluctuations yesterday. The start was not very active, but prices were moderately higher, notwithstanding the none too favorable news in the early cable dispatches. Then, after some irregularity, the list moved up in sympathy with the higher prices for stocks and the better tone in the foreign exchange market, where all of the European rates were strong. There was a private cable stating that a settlement had been reached at London received by a commission house, and the circulation of this "information" helped the market a good deal.

All in all, the market moved up 45 to 55 points by early afternoon and it was moving along nicely when the late statements of orders to allied troops to move into Germany were received. This completely upset the list and nearly all of the previous gains were lost in something less than an hour. At one time the market broke sharply. At the close prices came back a little and final quotations showed net gains of 6 to 14 points. Spots were up 15 points.

Liverpool set a good pace for our market, opening at gains of 4 to 6 points, and then advanced until at the close that market was up 20 points or more all around. Spots at Liverpool were up 26 points from the close of last week and it was reported that the market was displaying a hardening tendency. That market, however, was closed long before word was received of the unsatisfactory German proposals and the drastic steps which the Allies were said to have ordered.

Domestic trade news was again negative and Southern spot markets were dull and generally unchanged.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.
May	11.68	12.11	11.65	11.73@11.74	11.60
July	12.10	12.50	12.07	12.13@12.14	12.05
Oct.	12.70	13.00	12.61	12.69@12.70	12.56
Jan	12.95	13.00	12.90	12.95	12.89

Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 12c, unchanged; New Orleans, 11c, unchanged; Savannah, 11c, down .25; Augusta, 10.50c, unchanged; Memphis, 12c, unchanged; Houston, 10.75c, unchanged; Little Rock, 11.50c, unchanged.

Yesterday's cotton statistics were:

	Yesterday.	Last Wk.	Last Yr.
Exports	14,240	48,222	55,153

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton showed a hardening tendency at 6.82d for middling. Sales, 4,000 bales, of which 3,000 were American. Imports, 6,000 bales, of which 3,000 were American. Futures opened quiet, 4 to 6 points down, and closed steady, 20 to 23 points up from Friday. Prices: March, 7.38d; May, 7.65d; July, 7.77d; September, 7.92d.

Manchester: Yarns and cloths were dull and irregular.

Additions to the Trading List.

The New York Stock Exchange has admitted to the list Seaboard National Bank rights. There was also added to the trading list $500,000 additional common stock of the Endicott-Johnson Corporation, making the total of purchasing equipment to cost $9,684,093.

$10,000,000 IN SUGAR BONDS PUT ON SALE

Issue Secured by $34,000,000 Worth of Property Is to Run for Ten Years.

SOLD AT PAR TO PAY 8%

The National City Company is offering today $10,000,000 in ten-year 8 per cent. sinking fund first mortgage bonds of the Cuban-American Sugar Company at par. This is the first sugar financing to be arranged in this market in some time.

The bonds are a direct obligation of the Cuban-American Sugar Company and are secured by about $16,000,000 in first mortgage bonds of subsidiary companies, representing property valued at approximately $34,000,000. Under the terms of the agreement, the company is to maintain a sinking fund of $250,000 quarterly, to purchase bonds in the open market up to and including 105. Any money provided for the sinking fund and not used will revert to the company. The issue is callable in whole but not in part at 107½.

The company further agrees to maintain net quick assets equal to the value of outstanding bonds at all times. It was said yesterday that the company's earnings last year were in the neighborhood of $10,116,000, before provision was made for Federal taxes, and that the five-year average of earnings available for taxes and dividends was about $11,600,000. The smallest earnings returned in any one year in the last five was about $8,000,000. Proceeds of the bonds will be used to reduce outstanding bank loans and to give the company additional working capital.

It is expected that other domestic financing will be announced in the near future, possibly this week, but it is doubtful if there will be any more foreign financing undertaken here for the time being.

FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, March 7.—Old 2½ per cent. consols, 46¼; British 5 per cent. war loan, 85¼; 4½ per cent. war loan, 78¼. Rand Mines, 2⅛; De Beers Mining, 10.

PARIS, March 7.—The Bourse opened strong today, but prices reacted in the late dealings and the closing was irregular and nervous. Three per cent. rentes, 7 centimes lower at 58 francs 55 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan, unchanged at 83 francs 95 centimes.

Exchange on London, 37 centimes lower at 54 francs 3 centimes per sovereign; American dollars were quoted at 13 francs 82 centimes, against 13 francs 93 centimes Saturday.

LOWER MONEY IN INDIA.

Reduction in Bank Rates at Calcutta and Bombay.

CALCUTTA, March 7.—The rate of discount of the Bank of Bengal was reduced from 7 to 6 per cent. today.

BOMBAY, March 7.—The rate of discount of the Bank of Bombay was reduced from 7 to 6 per cent. today.

Last July the lending rate of both the Indian State banks was reduced from 6 per cent. to 5, but it was advanced to 6 per cent. again on Nov. 4 and to 7 on Nov. 12 and 19. The present reduction apparently responds to slackening demand from trade.

Unlimited Sales— Limited Credit Losses—

That is the ideal business combination you should work toward in 1921. You can concentrate your efforts on the former if you have taken protective measures to insure the latter.

One prominent business man says: "While I have made it a practice to limit my credit risks, I can trace my principal losses to my failure to do so."

The American's Unlimited Policy of Credit Insurance limits your credit losses a year in advance. It protects the business you have. It gives you peace of mind—a feeling of security and stability—enables you to face the future serenely and optimistically. In any emergency of credit accounts there is nothing so strong or so safe as the American's Policy.

FOR BANK PRESIDENTS ONLY

A MESSAGE from the "LONDON"

THE line of credit you extend to your customers is largely dependent upon the earnings they show—isn't it?

But what assurance have you that your customer's debtors will pay, and make those earnings good? It's one thing to examine the statement of a customer's business, but quite another to be sure of all the accounts owing to that customer.

Wouldn't you give your borrowers a better line of credit if each one of them had all of their debtor accounts insured against failure? You know you would.

"LONDON" Credit Insurance will do this for you and your customers. It makes your loans surer, because your borrower, protected by "LONDON" Credit Insurance, is absolutely safeguarded against excess losses.

The Ideal Trustee

THE IDEAL trustee would have, among other qualities, the quality of permanence—a permanent home, a character which does not alter with the passing generations.

Since its founding in 1830, the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company has occupied the same site on Wall Street, where the old United States Bank formerly stood. The cornerstone of the Bank is embedded in the wall of the present building, linking it with the past.

PROFITS OF 'AGWI' TIED UP BY COURT

SPECIAL MASTER IS NAMED

The affairs of the Atlantic Gulf and West Indies Steamship Company, whose financial problems have been the subject of wide discussion in Wall Street during the last few weeks, were brought into the Federal courts yesterday by the filing of a suit in equity against the company and its subsidiaries, the Atlantic Gulf Oil Corporation and the Compagnia Petrolera de Tepetate. The suit involves a claim of $827,552 for a share of profits from three oil wells.

Judge Martin T. Manton appointed Herman Nessler Special Master to take over all the profits from the oil properties mentioned in the suit and issued a temporary restraining order, preventing the company from using these profits until the claims were satisfied. Mr. Nessler was directed to deposit the money in the Commercial Trust Company.

Coincident with the filing of the suit there was another break in the stock, the net decline for the day amounting to 1⅝ points. This, however, does not represent the decline which took place in the final hour of trading, for the reaction of the shares was about five points from the high of the forenoon when the stock was showing a disposition to recover somewhat. News of the suit against the "Agwi" company and its subsidiaries did not become common knowledge in Wall Street during the period of trading on the Stock Market. The petition in the suit was not actually filed until nearly 4 o'clock. It was the impression of some, however, that the weakness in the final hour showed that the prospect of the impending suit had become known before the papers actually became court records.

Profits From Three Wells Involved.

The plaintiffs are Henry C. Mount, Joseph H. Snowden and Henry McSweeney as individuals, and Pearl H Snowden, Joseph H Snowden and Henry McSweeney, as Trustees under a deed of trust effected Nov. 7, 1918. The petition asserts that the plaintiffs held leaseholds on the Mexican oil properties, comprising three wells, and that, under a contract with the Compania Petrolera, the plaintiffs were to receive one-seventh of the profits from the sale and production of the oil.

The Compania Petrolera, it is alleged, assigned its contract to the Atlantic Gulf Oil Corporation. The plaintiffs allege that since the "AGWI" concern took over the properties involved, the profits from the wells have been $5,000,000. They allege that they have received none of these profits. The defendants are accused of using the money received as profits on the oil properties to expand their operations.

The plaintiffs allege their share of the profits under the contract was due in three instalments, as follows: July, 1920, $75,703; October, 1920, $351,168; January, 1921, $400,681.

A. R. Nichol, President of the Atlantic Gulf and West Indies Steamship Lines, refused last night to discuss the suit and no word could be obtained from others closely indentified with "AWGI's" affairs. Whitman, Ottinger & Ransom, lawyers for the plaintiffs also declined to discuss the suit, referring to the court record.

Source of Much Speculation.

Atlantic Gulf and West Indies has been a source of much speculation and mystery in Wall Street for many days. It has been common knowledge that the company was seeking to arrange some financing to complete the payments due on tankers ordered several months ago as a part of the extensive oil development program undertaken in the Mexican fields. It has been said recently that the company was seeking about $15,000,000 and, while no definite statement has been made as to the kind of loan in prospect, it has been believed that some equipment trust certificates were generally favored by the company.

From time to time it has been rumored that hitches were developing in the financing, but in the last several days it has been understood that better progress was being made and only recently a prominent banker said he thought that "AGWI" would get its money.

The difficulties of the Atlantic Gulf and West Indies Company came to the fore when there were hints of a receivership in dispatches sent on from Chicago following what was afterward proved to be a fake meeting of stockholders of the company. The person who called the meeting, a Robert Deerfield of Chicago, has never been found and the company asserted at the time that he was not even a stockholder.

Aaron Kosofsky, a fur merchant of 662 Sixth Avenue, brought in touch of the sensational into the affair when he charged that a bear pool had been organized to depress the value of Atlantic Gulf and West Indies stock. Kosofsky requested an investigation by District Attorney Swann's office, but this developed nothing. Later he called a meeting of stockholders of the "AGWI" company, which was sparsely attended.

Good Friday Holidays on Markets.

It was announced yesterday that the New York Cotton Exchange will be closed March 25, Good Friday, and the following day. The Coffee and Sugar and Produce exchanges also are expected to close on those days. No action yet has been taken by the Stock Exchange. Usually it closes on Good Friday, but reopens Saturday.

Caddo Oil Profits Grow in 1920.

Earnings of the Caddo Central Oil and Refining Company for 1920 show considerable improvement over 1919; 1920 shows net profits of $873,064, equal to $5.82 per share on the 150,000 shares of capital stock. In 1919 net profits were $483,337 for nine months.

ASK HEAVY DAMAGES FROM BANKING FIRMS

New York Bank Among Defendants in $15,000,000 Suit Brought in Dedham, Mass.

DEDHAM, Mass., March 7.—Damages of $15,000,000 are sought in a suit filed in the Superior Court today in behalf of George H. Willett and Edmund H. Sears, who were partners in the firm of Willett, Sears & Co., which went out of business in 1918. Conspiracy to deprive the firm of its interest in several large manufacturing companies is charged against leading local banking firms and the Chase National Bank of New York.

The defendants include F. S. Mosely & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., the members of those firms as individuals—Daniel G. Wing, President of the First National Bank of Boston, and Robert F. Herrick, an attorney, who is designated in the suit as organizer of the syndicate that took over most of the Willett-Sears interests.

The suit alleges that the defendants took advantage of knowledge gained through a fiduciary relation with the plaintiff company to force upon it terms for a loan of ₹3,000,000 which resulted in the transfer of the controlling interest in the American Felt Company and the Daniel Green Felt Shoe Company under conditions which caused ultimate loss of the plaintiff company's holdings.

It is contended also that the syndicate through the workings of a secret conspiracy carried out a scheme by which they gained control of nearly a score of other companies in which Willett, Sears & Co. held stock.

Although the representations on which plaintiff company let go its holdings, it was declared, were such as to indicate that they were being operated at a loss, it is set forth in the report that a profit of $1,000,000 a year had been made in the last two years of the American Felt and Daniel Green Companies and an equal amount in aggregate on the other companies involved.

STANDARD OIL ORDERED TO PAY ADVANCE RENT

Supreme Court Justice Charles L. Guy gave judgment yesterday for Elmer E. Smathers, realty and oil investor, in a suit against the Standard Oil Company for a ruling that a lease between the two required quarterly payment in advance instead of at the end of each quarter.

When the Standard Oil Company decided several years ago to acquire property adjacent to its building at 26 Broadway negotiations were entered into for a long lease of Mr. Smathers's property at 18 Broadway, and the company took it for ninety-nine years at $250,000 a year, representing an outlay of $25,000,000. The parties agreed that a quarterly rental of $62,500 was to be paid and payments were made in advance to April, 1920, when the lease became effective. The lease provided for quarterly payments, but did not stipulate "in advance."

E. Bright Wilson, counsel for Mr. Smathers, told Justice Guy "that the court might think at first glance that the controversy between this wealthy plaintiff and this wealthy corporation is a mere trifle, but the exact amount involved is $371,250, although it is spread over a period of ninety-nine years.

"The amount is so great that the defendant says in its answer that if it had understood the rent was to be paid in advance 'it would not have executed the same.' The court could not go far wrong in taking judicial notice that the Standard Oil Company is not a trusting and trustful institution, which relies on those with whom it deals to protect it against its own improvidence. And it may be assumed that the landlord in a $25,000,000 lease is not a babe in the woods."

TO RECOVER SEIZED SHARES.

Ex-Congressman Metz Sues Enemy Property Guardian for Hoechst Stock.

Trial of a suit brought by former Congressman Herman A. Metz against Francis P. Garvan, Alien Enemy Property Custodian, to recover 1,990 shares of the stock of the Farbwerke-Hoechst Company, a New York State corporation, seized during the war, was started yesterday before Judge Mayer in the Federal District Court.

Isaac Levy, for Mr. Metz, declared that his client, a native-born American citizen, had in 1913 purchased the stock for a $597,000 promissory note. Mr. Levy asserted that the Trading with the Enemy act did not concern the property of any American citizen and the seizure of Mr. Metz's stock by Garvan was unconstitutional.

William Travers Jerome, appearing for Mr. Garvan, said that at the time the stock was transferred to Mr. Metz the United States Government was about to proceed against the Farbwerke-Hoechst Company for a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law. The transfer of the stock to Mr. Metz, who was then a Congressman, Mr. Jerome asserted, was intended to erect a barrier against their prosecution under the anti-trust and monopoly laws. Having thus been used to circumvent one Federal law, Mr. Jerome said the transaction was then availed of to thwart the operation of the Trading With the Enemy act.

WARNS BANK ON JUDGMENT.

Sheriff Learns That Irving National Has Planned for Appeal.

Sheriff Knott notified the Irving National Bank yesterday that unless an execution for $177, levied against the bank several weeks ago, is paid at once he will put a keeper from his office in the bank and start supplementary proceedings to determine whether the bank can pay the judgment. In behalf of the bank, it was stated that payment had been delayed pending an appeal. An application to appeal from an Appellate Term decision affirming the judgment was made to the Appellate Term yesterday.

The judgment arises out of a suit by Harry Wasserman to recover $132 he paid the bank in 1919 to buy 2,000 marks in Poland. He contended that after long delay the bank offered to return the value of 2,000 marks, which at that time had shrunk from $132 to $19.

U. S. STEEL WEIGHS 8-HOUR DAY REPORT

OTHER POINTS UNSETTLED

Committee on Shorter Hours Still at Work—Cost of the Change $80,000,000.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, said yesterday that the committee on the proposal for an eight-hour day in the plants of the corporation had not reached a decision which was wholly satisfactory, but that the final results of the investigation soon would be in hand. He said that the seven-day week and the long turn in changing shifts have been eliminated.

"We have today been in consultation with the Presidents of subsidiary companies, who compose the special committee heretofore appointed to consider the twelve-hour day question," said a statement by him. "The members of the committee have not reached a conclusion which is entirely satisfactory to all of them with respect to some of the features involved, and therefore have not made or are prepared to make a report. However, I believe that within the comparatively near future, perhaps thirty days or a little more, we shall receive the result of their investigations. The 'seven-day week' and the 'long turn in changing shifts' have been entirely eliminated by all of our companies."

William B. Schiller, President of the National Tube Company, is at the head of the committee working on the proposal. Just what the "features involved" were could not be definitely learned, but it had been said that the greatest difficulty over the adoption of an eight-hour day rested with the workmen, who were reported to be opposed to the plan because they would be unable to earn as much as under the present system of twelve hours.

The question of the eight-hour day was one of the chief points of contention on the part of union labor leaders at the time of the strike in September, 1919. The unions charged that the Steel Corporation would not make the change in working hours because of the cost. The action now being taken indicates that the steel officials have the situation under serious consideration with the view of making a settlement.

Already there are twenty plants in various sections of the country which are working the eight-hour shift. It also has been pointed out that swift progress had been made during the last twelve months toward the elimination of the "long turn in steel."

An article in the current issue of The Survey says that adopting three shifts would cost the United States Steel Corporation between $80,000,000 and $100,000,000 a year. It was set forth that there were 66,711 twelve-hour men in the employ of the corporation, which is 39.27 per cent. of the wage earners employed by its constituent companies in manufacturing. It also was pointed out that another $70,000,000 or $100,000,000 represented the corporation's cost for housing the additional number of employes who would be needed to make the change to an eight-hour day.

MEXICAN OIL RUMOR DENIED.

Standard Says Report of Prospective Purchase Is Untrue.

Rumors circulated in the financial district yesterday that Directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey had gone to Mexico to go over the properties of the Mexican Petroleum Company with the object of buying were flatly denied at the offices of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

ODD POINTS CLEARED IN STATE INCOME TAX

UNPAID WAGES NOT A LOSS

Commutation Fares Are Personal Expenses and Are Not Deductible.

The New York State Income Tax Bureau made public yesterday a new instalment of questions and answers on the State income tax, payment of which is due on April 15. Some of the questions and answers follow:

"Maurice—While I will report income received from ten A. T. & S. Fe bonds, I will deduct $5 paid for safe deposit vault to protect them. 'Am I right? Answer—This expense is a proper business deduction.

"Velie—While I am positive about deducting my automobile registration fee, doubt exists in my mind as to the so-called war tax on my new car. Answer—Such amount is a manufacturer's tax and is not deductible in the return of the purchaser of the car.

"Fort Lee—What disturbing news is this that non-residents are not allowed stock losses on the New York Stock Exchange? Answer—It is true—non-residents are not required to report income from such sources or permitted to deduct losses from such sources.

"Albany—Did I do right in taking out my commutation fares between my home and the General Electric plant in Schenectady as a business expense? Answer—No; commutation fares are personal expenses and are not deductible.

"Widow—My husband died in 1920. Is the value of property set aside for me, as the widow's allowance, income to me and taxable? Answer—No; since it constitutes a transfer of capital assets upon the death of your husband.

"F. S. B.—The L. S. & M. S. R. R. paid 3½ per cent. on its first mortgage bonds, which are free from State taxes. Who pays the income tax, the owner of the bonds or railroad? Answer—The owner of the bonds should include in his income the interest from the bonds and the 2 per cent. additional tax on such bond interest paid by the corporation to the Federal Government. This latter amount is additional income to the bond owner and not a deduction.

"Farmer—If my income from milk, sale of eggs, chickens, and a cow and a calf was $3,600; my school tax was $40, Federal land tax $78, and feed, hay, stalks, freight charges, horse shoeing and labor amounted to $1,400; cost of tar paper roof on ice house was $700; interest on mortgage amounted to $325; as a married man do I have to pay a tax? Answer—No; your net income is less than $2,000. However, the amount expended for tar paper roof is a capital investment and not deductible.

"Non-resident—The bank by which I am employed in New York has withheld the State income tax from my salary. I have no other income there. Does this withholding relieve me of the requirements of filing an individual return? Answer—No. The law requires that every taxpayer having net income in excess of his personal exemption should file a return.

"Business—In 1920, I collected accounts receivable which became due in 1918. Must I include such collections as income for 1920? Answer—No. The State Income Tax law became effective Jan. 1, 1919. Accounts receivable, due on that date, are capital assets to the extent of their fair market value as of Jan. 1, 1919, and their subsequent payment is regarded as return of capital.

"Employe—My employer failed in 1920, owing me $700 wages. May I deduct this item as a loss? Answer—No. The amount of your earnings to be reported has been reduced to this extent."

WHEAT DEPRESSED BY FOREIGN NEWS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 7.—The combination of rains in Kansas and Missouri where they were most needed and the more serious character of the political news from abroad, proved too much for the bulls in wheat today; and, while there was fair support given, the close was with net losses of 3 to 3½ cents, with March leading. The latter closed 8½ cents over the May, with considerable selling by the leading holders.

The trade construed the developments in Europe as bearish, figuring that, if German ports were blockaded, shipments of wheat from this country and Argentina would be checked. This view failed however, to have any effect on corn, which showed stubborn resistance to pressure and closed with net losses of three-eighths to one-half cent, while oats were off one-half cent.

Export demand for wheat was somewhat better with a liberal quantity of Manitobas sold to Europe from the seaboard and 88,000 bushels hard Winter via the Gulf, with further business after the close. A small amount was also sold for shipment to Colombia.

Government report on farm reserves, to be given to the trade after the close tomorrow, is expected to be rather bullish on wheat and bearish on corn and oats. Country offerings to arrive in all grains are light, but cash wheat premiums are easy, with a slow milling demand, and Kansas City and Omaha offered grain to come here at a lower basis than on Saturday. Buying of around 750,000 bushels of May corn to remove hedges against sales to the seaboard for export had the strengthening effect on that grain and prevented more than a moderate response to the weakness in wheat.

A decrease of 337,000 bushels in the visible supply of wheat brought the total down to 27,822,000 bushels, against 28,159,000 bushels the previous week and 50,168,000 bushels last year.

Corn increased 1,408,000 bushels, against 192,000 bushels last year, and is 28,741,000 bushels, against 22,333,000 the previous week and 5,143,000 last year. The small gain in corn was due to the slowness with which it is being unloaded at Chicago. It is estimated that 5,500,000 bushels are on track at the various terminal markets.

Primary points received 1,521,000 bushels wheat today, compared with 1,853,000 a week ago and 740,000 last year. Shipments were 599,000; week ago, 400,000; last year, 283,000.

Corn receipts were 1,988,000; week ago, 2,148,000; year ago, 962,000, and shipment, 1,017,000; week ago, 780,000; year ago, 507,000.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Saturday—7¼@7¾ per cent. for the best names.

Gray Goods Taper Off.

The local gray goods market opened actively enough yesterday, but the new twist to the German situation brought a slump in the afternoon. Offerings of goods were then much larger than in the morning, but buyers tightened up as sellers loosened. Printcloth sales included March deliveries of 39-inch 68-72s at 7¾ cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 6¾ cents and 38½-inch 60-48s at 5⅞ cents. Buyers paid 5¾ cents for near-by shipments of 6.50-yard sheetings. For 39-inch 4.20-yard sateens 12¾ cents was said.

Satin Coats a Factor

One of the "dark horses" in the pre-Easter race for supremacy in Spring garments for women is the satin coat. Both quilted and tufted coats are in demand, and the rapidity of the increase in their sale is said to be one of the features of the season. They are made both with and without belts, and when belts are used they are generally of the sash type that is so widely used this Spring. Some of the higher-priced coats, instead of being quilted or tufted, are trimmed with novelty fur, such as monkey.

Dress Demand Still Gaining

Although, from all accounts, it has not lagged at all since it really got under way, the approach of Easter finds a steady increase in the call for dresses here. The character of the merchandise wanted has not changed very much, the new weaves still dividing first honors with taffetas in the silk dresses. Of the crepes, the so-called Canton weave is most wanted, and many of the popular models made of this material are elaborately beaded and embroidered. Charmeuse dresses for street wear also are in growing favor with buyers. The vogue for blue, that was predicted several weeks ago, is said to be gaining momentum daily.

Want a Uniform Discount

The Executive Board of the Associated Dress Industries of America will meet today for the purpose of deciding the plan of procedure of the organization in connection with the question of discounts to retailers. The association is committed to a decision against any higher than a discount of 8-10, and it is the intention of the organization executives to enforce uniform terms on that basis. Instances have come to light where large stores are demanding 11 per cent. Such requests are being refused, but the manufacturers want united action so that the cost of merchandise may not be increased to the public during this critical period.

Waists Are Doing Well.

Reports from the waist trade tell of one of the best seasons experienced for some time. A wide variety of models and materials is in demand, but among the most popular styles at the moment is the so-called tie-on or tie-back. These slip on over the head and, while some of them have no fastenings, others are closed in front with lacing. They are developed in both silks and cottons, and get their name from a sash-like attachment which ties in the back into a large bow. Both plainly and elaborately-trimmed models are offered to buyers. The popular colorings, either in material or trimming, include white, black, flesh, rose, lilac, bisque, green and blue.

Woolen Fancies to Be Opened.

The opening of fancy worsted and woolen suitings for the men's wear trade by the American Woolen Company will occur tomorrow. The following divisions will show goods for the Fall 1921 season: Departments 2, 3 A, 3 C, and 7. These comprise fancy goods departments, with the exception of 3 C, which handles staple wool suitings. In the market the prospects for an active sale of fancies are regarded as particularly good, and decidedly better than the staple demand. The large business booked by the company on dress goods is also understood to be a factor that will induce quicker action by the clothiers, who do not want to see too much of their own production lost to them on the manufacture of dress fabrics.

Convenient Credit Terms.

Some wholesalers have seen fit to change their credit terms in particular instances so as to assist a customer in overcoming his present trade difficulties. The leniency is not general, but is used, it is said, in deserving cases. The wholesalers do not intend to maintain the new terms, but will keep them only over the period which is necessary to carry customers through some temporary problems. The warning has been sounded, however, that advantage may be taken of such generosity to demand the same favors in the future. The answer given, however, is that the customers who are benefiting through a lenient treatment of their cases are more of less "hand picked," and are therefore not apt to make ungrateful demands.

Suits and the Mode.

Dresses have proved the largest sellers in women's garments for the Spring, and the manufacturers are looking forward to an equally good or even better demand next Fall. In the meantime, however, more support is being thrown as time goes on, it is said, to the directoire mode, with the possible result that suits will become more fashionable than they have been. It is pointed out that the mode in question is more adaptable for suits than for dresses and, consequently, ought to improve the sale of the former garments. The style question now gives evidences of becoming of first importance when the Fall manufacturing season starts, as by that time, it is felt, prices will be more or less stabilized to the buyer's satisfaction.

New Hosiery Effects.

No fault is being found by buyers of hosiery with the wide range of novelties now being offered to them. A wholesale representative stated yesterday that the variety of merchandise now obtainable marks the widest in the history of the industry. Sheer hose continues to be in high favor, and in the fashion gray and taupe shades with the added ornamentation of clocking and embroidery. One of the latest styles offered by a Fifth Avenue shop is hosiery of a very sheer quality indeed, and in a flesh color that further serves to heighten the impression that no hose at all is being worn. On these goods there are painted butterfly and other designs. The effect is obviously to carry out the idea that the paintings are directly on the ankle of the wearer.

Fraud in Stamping Jewelry.

The Good and Welfare Committee of the National Jewelers' Board of Trade, in co-operation with the Jewelers' Vigilance Committee and the Jewelry Crafts Association, is now, through the collection of sufficient funds, in a position to take up a campaign against the fraudulent stamping of jewelry, under the State and national laws relating to such violations. All complaints are to be filed with Fred C. Backus, Secretary of the National Jewelers' Board of Trade, 15 Maiden Lane. All information submitted will be held confidential until such time as an actual proceeding has been commenced. The activities of the committee will not extend to cases arising out of verbal misrepresentations or guarantees, it is explained, but will afford protection to the public and ameliorate an abuse from which a large number of people, particularly the poor, have suffered in the past.

BUYS PARCEL IN GREENWICH VILLAGE

BOUGHT FROM HOE FAMILY

A large plot in the westerly Greenwich Village area near the Gansevoort Market has been purchased by Henry Schultz. It includes the two old three-story buildings at 63 and 65 Gansevoort Street, covering a plot fronting 50 feet and the abutting property at 22 to 30 Little West Twelfth Street, fronting 104 feet, and occupied by three and six story fireproof structures. Title to the latter parcel was passed last week from the American Tranfer Company, of which Simon Hess is President, to Mr. Schultz.

The Gansevoort plot was purchased from William J. and Alfred G. Hoe. It has been owned by the Hoe family for more than fifty years. The combined parcels are between Ninth Avenue and Washington Street, the Gansevoort Market stand being one block to the west and the Twelfth Street portion is opposite the Collier building.

William H. Whiting & Co. were the brokers in the sale of the Hoe property. The two purchases represent an investment of about $250,000, and the property will be used by Mr. Schultz for his trucking and warehouse business. He has been for several years at Avenue A and Twenty-third Street, but his ownership there was recently sold by the Whiting Company and Mr. Schultz will soon move to the Gansevoort site.

RECEIVER FOR MINING CO.

Compagnia Metalurgica Mexicana Said to Owe $4,250,000.

Judge Julius M. Mayer, in the United States District Court, yesterday appointed Donald O. Brown receiver in equity in a suit filed by Antoinette G. Pearsall against the Compagnia Metalurgica Mexicana, a New Jersey corporation. The action is brought by the plaintiff as a holder of fifty shares of the preferred stock of the Montezuma Lead Company, which, according to the complaint, was guaranteed by the defendant company by an endorsement signed by Robert S. Towne, as President, and dated Feb. 21, 1900.

The defendant, according to the bill, owes secured and unsecured debts totaling $4,250,000, all due except $2,042,000 serial bonds. It is alleged that the revenues and profits are derived from the mining and smelting of silver, and that, due to the low price of silver, the company is unable to obtain the funds needed to pay off its indebtedness. The company, says the petition, has assets in excess of its indebtedness, but a receiver in equity is asked for to prevent dissipation of assets.

Gimbel Bros. Case Off Calendar.

The case against Gimbel Brothers for alleged profiteering was stricken from the calendar yesterday by Judge Knox in the United States District Court. The indictments are among those affected by the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court holding unconstitutional certain sections of the Lever act. Action will be postponed until the Federal District Attorney here has studied the Supreme Court's decision.

Trend of the House Demand

Ever since the days of Peter Stuyvesant, and his "Knickerbocker" contemporaries, the best residential development in New York has been East of Fifth Avenue. The renewed interest in private houses has created a strong demand for those located in the better neighborhoods between Park Avenue and the East River, where values to-day are exceedingly attractive.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION. | REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION. | REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.

in bankruptcy, will sell under the direction of Warren F. Freeman, Auctioneer, 15 State Street, Boston, Mass., telephone Main 5572, and Aaron Polak, Auctioneer, 17 East 125th Street, New York City, telephone Harlem 5132.

beginning Tuesday, March 15th, 1921, at 10:30 A. M., and continuing during Wednesday, March 16th, and Thursday, March 17th, at Alden St., Fall River, Mass.

The entire plant of the International Piano Manufacturing Company, consisting of real and personal property, will be offered in one parcel.

The REAL ESTATE consists of 8 acres of land, with valuable riparian rights on fresh water lake. The buildings consist of one two-story granite factory building 66′ by 300′ with 15,870 square feet of floor space per floor, with wooden one-story ell 56′ by 110′ used for shipping room; main four-story brick factory building 43′6″ by 110′ with 4,750 square feet of floor space per floor, with two-story brick ell 59′ by 184′ with 10,370 square feet of floor space per floor; also three-story brick ell with one-story brick pump house connected, containing two one-hundred horse power boilers and engines; also one-story granite ell 38′ by 68′6″ with 2,520 square feet of floor space; also one-story brick ell 30′ by 68′ with 1,850 square feet of floor space; also one-story granite ell 40′ by 100′ with 3,730 square feet of floor space, part of which is adaptable for garage purposes; also one-story wooden ell 35′ by 38′ with 1,300 square feet of floor space; also one-story wooden ell 34′ by 54′ with 1,650 square feet of floor space; also one-story wooden ell 40′ by 23′6″ with 874 square feet of floor space. Total floor space in main factory and all ells 83,404 square feet; one-story brick foundry building, with 4-ton cupola, 50′ by 146′, containing 7,240 square feet of floor space. All of these buildings are heavy mill construction, in good repair; are equipped with modern sprnkler system; are steam heated; electric lighted; equipped with the Dictograph intercommunicating telephone system, consisting of one master station and ten sub-stations, communicating to all parts of the factory; and ample toilet facilities. The Fall River Electric Light Company is also wired to the plant, with a transformer capable of supplying a minimum of 350 horse power in electrical current. The plant is also equipped with two ten-inch water mains from the City of Fall River water supply, under 70 pounds pressure. The insurance rate is very low, in consequence of the ample water and sprinkler protection.

The City of Fall River has undertaken, and bids have been received for, improvements in the Quequechan River, upon which this property is situated, for conservation of the water supply, which is derived from the South and North Watuppa Ponds, of practically twenty miles area, by improving the channel, deepening and dredging the same, which, when completed, will involve the filling in of the property at present under water, and which will mean the reclaiming for building purposes, or for any other purposes, approximating 8 acres of land, in addition to the present area now used for manufacturing purposes. These plans are very extensive and mean an outlay of approximately $3,000,000.00 by the City of Fall River, and will be of inestimable value to all property adjacent to the Quequechan River, and especially to the property of the International Piano Manufacturing Company.

An unlimited quantity of fresh water is available at all times, by an intake located in the Quequechan River, and to any manufacturing concern, where water is an item of any consequence, this supply, obtained without cost, is of unlimited value.

LAND and BUILDINGS: $203,000.00

THERE WILL BE NO BUILDING FOR MANY YEARS TO COME.

It is six years since building ceased, and it will be another six before it is in full sway again.

Building is an economic impossibility, except at rents far beyond the financial capacity of 90 per cent. of New Yorkers. Hence, when a chance like this to purchase at $17,500 (on exceedingly easy terms), well built, well cared for, Astor estate dwellings, it is common sense and wisdom to purchase and enjoy the benefits of these low-priced homes. Located in a clean block, 15th St., between 8th and 9th Avs., four-story, basement and cellar, 14 rooms; leases expire May 1; convenient to subway, "L," surface and crosstown lines. See these houses today. 345 West 15th St. is vacant and open for inspection. Apply there or owner, R. F. Klipatrick, 132 Nassau St.

The Stamp of Assurance

The belief exists among some tax payers that the mere filing of a return based upon the figures that their books reveal is sufficient both for the tax payer and the government.

The real stamp of assurance comes with the filing of a return prepared by Certified Public Accountants whose analysis of the books and records is based on sound accounting principles, and whose interpretations of tax liability is based on a complete knowledge of tax requirements.

SCHOOL PLAN GETS UNANIMOUS SUPPORT

CLASS TAUGHT ON STAIRS

Forty Buildings Expected to Be Under Construction in Year if Money Is Voted.

Public interest in the school situation was shown yesterday by the large attendance at the public hearing given by the Board of Estimate at City Hall, on the Board of Education's application for $63,000,000 to carry out a building program to provide a seat for every child of school age in the city. The application was supported by many individuals and representatives of civic organizations. No one opposed it. After the hearing the board referred the application to its Committee on Finance and Budget.

The building program was adopted by the Board of Education on Feb. 21. It calls for the construction of forty-seven elementary schools, twenty-six portable school buildings, six high schools, an addition to a high school, a training school for teachers and a parental school, the purchase of a vocational school building and expenditures for additions, improvement of playgrounds and fire prevention.

Dr. Edward B. Shallow, Associate Superintendent of Schools, said seventeen schools and ten additions were now building. If the Board of Estimate authorized the appropriation, forty new schools would be under construction before the end of the year. He explained that the portable school buildings were for use in the outskirts of the city.

Henry Smith, Deputy Controller, asked if the Board of Education did not already have $4,000,000, that might be used for construction. Dr. Shallow explained that this $6,000,000 was for equipment and would be spent as soon as buildings were completed.

"Are you of the opinion that the Board of Estimate is justified in approving this extensive building program?" asked Mayor Hylan.

"Absolutely," replied Dr. Shallow. "We'll never get anywhere unless you do. We are ten years behind on our buildings."

C. B. J. Snyder superintendent of buildings of the Board of Education, said that plans for ten school buildings had been prepared in addition to the twenty-seven under construction.

H. B. Chambers of the Taxpayers' Alliance of the Bronx, started to tell how few schools had been built recently in that borough.

"There is no use talking about that," said the Mayor. "Let us get the money first and fight about the sites afterward."

Alderman Jacob W. Friedman said Washington Heights had had no new schools for years. The Mayor asked him if he favored the appropriation of $63,000,000 for school buildings.

"Yes, and three times as much," replied Alderman Friedman. "This is the most important problem in the city. It is greater than the traction problem. We must have schools."

A teacher in Public School 37, 176 East 115th Street, said that classes were being taught on the stairs; that children in overcoats had to use the front steps as a study room, and that there were 700 more children in the school than could be taken care of.

Appearances in favor of the application were made by the Bronx Board of Trade, the Queens Chamber of Commerce and a dozen similar organizations.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 7.—A concurrent resolution was introduced in the lower house of the Pennsylvania Legislature tonight declaring it to be the sense of the General Assembly that the war debts of foreign Governments to the United States should not be canceled; that the payment of these obligations should be insisted on, so that the bonus proposed for soldiers, sailors and marines who took part in the World War "be not imperiled," and that sufficient revenue be thereby guaranteed for the payment of the proposed bonus.

The resolution was laid over for printing.

EVERY ONE TO EAT FISH TOMORROW

'National Day' Appeal Is for One Fish Meal in Place of Meat.

Tomorrow is to be National Fish Day, when everybody is urged to eat at least one meal of fish instead of meat. By so doing it is expected that a drop in the price of food will result, and the people will see the benefits of eating more fish.

At a meeting of housewives held in the City Hall yesterday Mrs. Louis Reed Welsmiller, Deputy Commissioner of Markets, and Dr. Copeland, Health Commissioner, told of the good that may be derived from making fish more prominent on their menus.

Dr. Copeland said that 765,000 pounds of fish were condemned by the Health Department last year because the people had refused to buy in sufficient quantities.

"About 1,500,000,000 pounds of fish are marketed annually in this country," he said, "including shellfish, and the city consumes 48,000,000 pounds. The per capita consumption in the country is thirteen pounds, but in New York City only eight. This should be multiplied by at least five.

"Many people will not eat fish because they fear ptomaine poisoning, yet there is no more danger of poisoning from fish than from any other food, providing there has been proper care and cleanliness in the handling of it. There is a prejudice against cold storage fish. I have seen frozen fish, when chopped out, swim away. An increased consumption of fish would mean a decrease in prices.

Public Service Head Asks $29,600 Penalties for Failure to Report.

Public Service Commissioner Alfred M. Barrett signed complaints yesterday in four actions brought in the Supreme Court against the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company to collect penalties aggregating $29,600 for the alleged failure of the company to file reports for September, October, November and December, 1920, as required by an order of the commission in 1911.

This order requires that all railroads other than steam roads in the jurisdiction of the commission shall make a detailed monthly report of operations. It was alleged that the Hudson & Manhattan had failed to respond after repeated requests. The penalty of $100 a day for each day of delinquency was sought in the suits.

ELECTRIC RATE CUT BY CITY INJUNCTION

Nixon Ordered Advance Due to Rise in Coal, Which Has Fallen About Half.

Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan yesterday granted a preliminary injunction applied for by Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien restraining the New York Edison Company and the United Electric Light and Power Company from continuing to charge the increased rates for electricity which went into effect in December of last year.

The immediate result of the decision is to reduce the price of electricity from 7 and 9-10 cents a kilowatt hour to 7 cents.

The Court held that the seven-cent rate, which became effective on July 1, 1917, was fixed by a contract; that the contract still was in effect, and the increases granted last Fall by the Public Service Commission was illegal.

Previous to 1916, a ten-cent rate was in effect. Following disclosures of the large earnings of the electric companies, the rate was cut to 8 cents after proceedings before the Public Service Commission. Six months later it was cut to 7½ cents, and in July, 1917, to 7 cents.

The electric companies last Fall asked for permission to increase rates, pointing out that the price of electricity had fallen when everything else had gone up and that the 1917 rate was based on a coal price of $3 a ton, against $15 a $16 a ton last Fall. Ex-Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon granted the companies the right to increase their rates on a sliding scale to be determined by coal prices. They were permitted to make an extra charge of .51 cents for each 10 per cent. increase in the price of coal over the $3 rate of 1917. Commissioner Nixon allowed this increase as a compromise, holding that it would not be large and that the public would be better served, than by reopening the whole question of rates at prolonged hearings.

By December, when the companies first were able to take advantage of the new rates, the price of coal had dropped to $7.50 and $8 a ton. The increase was worked out at nine-tenths of a cent.

Corporation Counsel O'Brien immediately brought the suit on which Justice Cohalan granted the decision yesterday. The 7-cent rate under this decision must remain in effect until final adjudication of the case.
